

Boom Looming for Santa Catalina

By DONNELL CULPEPPER
Santa Catalina Island, a sleeping giant for 30 years, is beginning to show signs of life and more than likely will take its place in Southern California's great economic development within the next two or three years.
No disparagement is intended by calling the island a sleeping giant. Its residents are fine people, but its growth, population-wise, has been static for almost three decades.
What caused such a condition?
A higher cost of living and water—precious water that the island needs badly.
So what is going to cure its ills?
The Southern California Edison Company took over the water, power and gas departments on Nov. 29, 1962, and thereby started a chain of events that may change the entire face of a beautiful island that lies just 25 miles away from Long Beach and 15 minutes by air from the Long Beach Municipal Airport.
Edison, in purchasing the utilities from the City of Avalon, the Avalon Public Service Company and the Santa Catalina Island Company, departed from its usual role of electrical energy alone.

Water, to Edison, was something that went over dams and created electrical kilowatts. Gas was something that it burned in its steam-generating units to create more of that electrical power.
But now Edison is faced with supplying all of Catalina not only with electricity, but also with water for the homes and gas for the stoves and heaters.
Yet, Edison did not step into Catalina and agree to spend six million dollars as a starter for improving those utilities without a purpose.
The SCIC (Santa Catalina Island Company) and its owner, Philip K. Wrigley, also had to toe a strict marker in a deal that may be the salvation of the island.
Edison expects a margin of profit in the years to come and the Wrigley interests have to give a guarantee to that end.

The Edison deal—that's the way Avalon residents refer to it—has started so many rumors that already the prices of a few privately owned houses at Avalon have spiraled upward in a fantastic and unrealistic rise of property values. For instance, there's one cracker box on a medium-sized lot that is being advertised for sale at more than $40,000.
Possibly the most discussed rumor is that Edison will build a sea-water conversion plant within two years. This Edison does not confirm, but neither does it deny such a story. It seems most likely that such a plant will be built because Edison engineers feel that, with recent advances in sea-water conversion by private industry, water prices can become competitive with such water as is contained in Catalina's reservoirs.
Still another rumor is that Edison, no doubt, will build an atomic-energy generating plant on Catalina and send enormous power to the mainland via underwater cables. While there are numerous places on the islands where such a plant could be built on solid rock foundations, Edison isn't willing to talk about such a program at this time. An Atomic-energy electrical plant probably could be built more cheaply on Catalina's hard rock than downcoast from Long Beach where immense concrete foundations must first be poured.

Philip K. Wrigley, sensing the inflationary spiral that could take place if Catalina land were sold outright, has turned over land and residential development to William L. Pereira and Associates, who are preparing a master plan of orderly development. They likewise are developing Irvine Ranch properties.
Catalina, 20 miles long and eight miles at its widest point, yet only 2,400 feet wide at the isthmus, has 75 square miles but certainly not all that area can be utilized for residential areas, nor even farming areas.
ITS HIGHEST peak is 2,100 feet and many of its hills are rocky and precipitous. Still, there are rolling

Sacramento Ready for Big Events

New Legislators and Brown Take Oaths Monday
By JAMES McCAULEY
I. P.T. Sacramento Bureau
SACRAMENTO—A tripleheader will open California's 1963 lawmaking season on Monday.
The legislature convenes at noon. Ultimately the 120 legislators face such thorny issues as money management, educational problems, freeways, the death penalty and social welfare aid levels. But first order of business will be to swear in 34 new assemblymen and nine new senators.
NO. 2 EVENT in the state's tripleheader will be the inauguration of Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown for his second term. Brown's inauguration will be on the Capitol steps — just two hours after the legislature convenes.
Brown's oath-taking will be ushered in by a 19-gun salute from California National Guard howitzers, band music and the posting of the colors. The governor will make a postinaugural address — and is expected then to outline more of his proposed 1963 legislative program.
OPENING-DAY hoopla concludes at event No. 3—an evening inaugural celebration in Municipal Auditorium followed by a dance and party in El Dorado Hotel.
On hand will be the biggest names in show biz and political biz.
Entertainment will be by Hollywood stars Frank Sinatra, Barry Sullivan,

EX-ADDICT A TEACHER OF JFK'S NIECE Synanon Beats Narcotics

By ROB SCHMIDT
The attractive young nursery-school teacher issued a quiet order and the pretty 4-year-old girl obeyed with a polite "Yes, Ma'm."
The teacher's name is Nadine Blair Portugal. Every veteran vice officer in San Pedro knows her. She first got into trouble with the law when she was 11. By the time she was 17, she was a confirmed drug addict.
The little girl is Victoria Lawford. Her uncle is the President of the United States.
How does a girl like Nadine Portugal come to be a teacher to a girl like Victoria Lawford?
Nadine says it simply. "Because there was a place called Synanon."
Synanon is the name of an organization in Santa Monica which rehabilitates narcotics addicts. It appears to be doing even more. There is strong evidence that Synanon has found a way to help criminals remove the basic "character disorder" — the phrase is Synanon founder Charles Dederich's — which made them violate the law in the first place.
Professional men from all over the world, involved in both the practical and theoretical aspects of the cause and prevention of crime and the rehabilitation of offenders are studying the phenomenon of Synanon to see if it truly is "the most significant breakthrough in the field of criminology in the past 50 years."
The quotation is from an article written by Dr.

NADINE PORTUGAL combs the hair of her 4-year-old daughter, Fawn, at the nursery she runs for the world-famed Synanon organization in Santa Monica. Synanon's technique has been called a breakthrough in the treatment of narcotics addicts. Nadine and Bob Nevin, (left) Synanon's mail clerk and bus driver, both have been rehabilitated. She also runs the church nursery to which the Peter Lawfords send their 4-year-old girl.

Lewis Yablonsky, associate professor of sociology and social welfare at UCLA, and an acknowledged expert in the field of penology, for the September, 1962 edition of the professional publication, "Federal Probation."
It is one of many such endorsements by recognized leaders in the fields of criminology, penology, sociology, and psychiatry. Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., who visited Synanon in his capacity as chairman of the Senate subcommittee to investigate juvenile delinquency, said on the floor of the Senate last Sept. 6 that "there is indeed a miracle on the beach at Santa Monica."
He said Synanon "may well be the first hopeful method of curing drug addicts that has ever been devised."
Synanon is a building full of dope fiends who have stopped using dope, of prostitutes and panderers who have stopped

Tshombe's Forces Rally for Attack on Elisabethville

ELISABETHVILLE, Katanga, the Congo (UPI)—Katanga Interior Minister Godefroid Munongo—said to be the power behind President Moise Tshombe—has reformed the shattered Katangese Gendarmerie and is marching on Elisabethville with 1,000 men, U.N. sources said Saturday.
At the same time Radio Free Katanga said U.N. forces which seized Jadotville late last week had resumed their drive on Tshombe's headquarters town of Kolwezi and had driven 40 miles from Jadotville against "fierce resistance." Jadotville is 80 miles from Kolwezi.
The Katanga communiqué said U.N. troops were stopped between Mulungushi, 20 miles northwest of Jadotville, and Nguba, 20 miles further on, "by violent battles." U.N. sources indicated earlier their forces had halted at Jadotville to await a Tshombe peace feeler.
U.N. REPORTS said Munongo was marching up from the Northern Rhodesian border.
The development threatened to explode a new round of fighting in the mineral rich province. It came as U.N. Undersecretary Ralph Bunche arrived in Leopoldville and gave the green light for further military operations against Tshombe.
Bunche pinpointed three more main military objectives including Tshombe's stronghold at Kolwezi and Sakania. The stronghold is located on the border of Northern Rhodesia, 100 miles southeast of Elisabethville, from which the Katangese were reported moving with at least six armored vehicles.
IT APPEARED obvious Bunche was hoping to withhold these major U.N. strikes until Secretary General U Thant's two-week ultimatum to Tshombe to talk peace or face renewed warfare expires Jan. 14. The new Katangese offensive could change all that, however.
Tshombe has shown no signs of talking peace at the moment.
U.N. reconnaissance aircraft flying over the Sakania area Saturday reported that Munongo has reformed stragglers from the Katangese Gendarmerie who were driven out of Elisabethville in a U.N. Christmas offensive and was leading them into battle.
(NORTHERN Rhodesia charged that three Swedish U.N. Saab jet fighters flew deep into Rhodesian territory Saturday in the same area. It ordered its own jet air force to patrol the border and halt further incursions.)
The U.N. spotter craft said the Katangese were moving from Sakania and Ushoshi, about 12 miles away, where the Katangese still hold immigration and customs posts. The road is the only route the civilian population can move food, medical supplies and gasoline into Katanga from the south.
The U.N. command said Munongo's forces controlled part of the road and a rail line which runs parallel for 16 miles between Elisabethville and the Northern Rhodesian border.
The central government, meanwhile, flew in officials to Elisabethville to assume control over the administration in a further step to incorporate secessionist Katanga back into the Congo government.
In another development aimed at reunification, Marcel van Rooy, director of the National Bank of Katanga, flew into Leopoldville to discuss the Katangese monetary situation and possibly work toward sharing Katanga mining revenues with the central government.
The three targets outlined by Bunche were Kolwezi, Sakania and Dilolo.

Pentagon Asks Cut in ROTC

WASHINGTON (AP) — A drastic revision and cut-back in the Reserve Officer Training Corps program by colleges and high schools will be proposed to the new Congress by defense officials, Senate sources said Saturday.
They reported that Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara advised that the proposal will call for an end to ROTC programs in high schools; elimination of the present compulsory ROTC programs in all land-grant colleges; and reduction of the four-year ROTC courses in most colleges and universities to two years.

25th March of Dimes Sees Victory Over Polio Ahead

By BEN ZINSER
Medical-Science Editor
Victory against polio looms as the March of Dimes observes its 25th anniversary this month.
Around the globe medical science is administering the knockout blows in the form of Salk and Sabin antipolio vaccines.
Last year, for the first time since records were kept, the number of polio cases in the nation dropped below the 1,000 mark. In Long Beach only five new cases were reported in 1962 — a far cry from the 238 seen here in 1948.
The March of Dimes — the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis — showed the way.
The key people in the fight included:
FDR — the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, himself a polio victim. His birthday was chosen for the date for the famed birthday balls, proceeds of which went to research programs "to stimulate and further the meritorious work being done in the field of infantile paralysis."
Henry L. Doherty, Miami Beach hotelman. It was he who conceived the idea of holding $1 admission dances in every city in the nation on FDR's birthday.
Eddie Cantor, comedian. He's credited with coining the phrase, "The March of Dimes."
Basil O'Connor, a New York lawyer. He became the mainspring of the fundraising campaign that would finance the battle.
Long Beach did her part.

Report Gen. Taylor Opposing Skybolt

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor disagreed with the other top military chiefs when they voted to support the ill-fated Skybolt bomber-launched missile, reliable informants said Saturday.
Taylor, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, reportedly agreed with Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara's conclusion that the Skybolt should be dropped.
It was learned also that Taylor and most other members of the top military group favored starting toward production of the Nike-Zeus antimissile missile.
On the Nike-Zeus issue, Taylor apparently differed with President Kennedy who has indicated he will deny the Army any money to prepare for production of the missile-killer. Before being elevated to JCS chairman, Taylor was Kennedy's personal military adviser.
The Defense Department has ordered cancellation of the Skybolt, but the issue is almost certain to echo in the new Congress where the 1,000-mile-range missile has strong friends.

L.A.C. Says: Campaign Statements

"Secretary of Labor Wirtz admits he gave the U.S. public incorrect statistics on unemployment just before the Nov. 6 election date. In doing so he raises new doubts that the administration 'news is a weapon,' theory can ever be restricted to military matters. This recent comment by the Wall Street Journal is an indication of how official news releases—or leaks—at election time need greater supervision.

It recalls how Governor Brown promised — and now promises — there will be no new taxes needed to balance his budget. But it is overlooked that some $50 million of these budget items were included in Prop. 1A — which was passed because the state colleges and universities needed over $200 million. The general budget items were included because they were more certain of carrying when tied to the school issue.

In the case of Secretary Wirtz quoting that "over 4.5 million more Americans have jobs than when this administration took office in 1961" — he was using invalid figures because seasonal adjustment actually showed the figure as only 1.2 million more having jobs. But it was an impressive figure and undoubtedly influenced many votes.

It is now admitted that misleading information was given out concerning the Cuban crisis — just before election day. It is justified by assistant defense secretary Arthur Sylvester with the statement—"It is the government's right—and therefore the people's right—to lie to save itself." Most of us agree that where military security is concerned, this is sometimes true. But it is a dangerous doctrine.

In his hour-long radio and TV discussion with three White House reporters the President appeared to be very frank and open in discussing world affairs. But it was apparent some of the most embarrassing questions bothering the public were not asked him—or were greatly modified. The actual discussions and agreements of on-the-ground inspection of Cuban bases were almost entirely ignored.

This management of news releases and the criticism that information is colored or withheld can be a dangerous factor. If the public comes to question the free flow of news out of government it will question all that it reads. This would be a tragic loss of confidence in the integrity of news releases from government agencies.

The press, radio and television often dramatize news far out of proportion to its importance. But on the whole, these mediums quote accurately information provided by government agencies. In many cases they report rumors—or leaks—that seem questionable. But if the facts were given by the agencies involved, these questionable stories would not have the impact they do have.

It is always refreshing to have a correction made as has been made by Secretary Wirtz. But it is unfortunate that the correction came soon after an election when the false figures were given out just before the election. —LAC

Boys Slide Off Cliff, One Killed, One Hurt

SAN BERNARDINO (UPI)—A slick, snow-covered slope was disastrously inviting to three 15-year-old hikers Saturday and two of them slid off the edge of a 300-foot high cliff. One boy was killed and another injured seriously.

The three hikers, all from Van Nuys, had gone to Wrightwood, a mountain resort, 40 miles north of here this morning. They were taken to the resort by Mrs. Herbert Tschantre, mother of one of the boys, John Martin Tschantre who was able to stop short of the cliff edge and escape injury.

But the two boys who followed him on the seats of their pants vanished over the precipice. Dead was Robert D. Slatter, son of a Los Angeles city fireman.

John Iosue suffered head injuries and was taken to St. Bernardine's Hospital where he was listed in serious condition.

Deputy Coroner Allen F. Paine said the three boys were hiking without any skiing equipment along a ridge between Sheets Creek Canyon and Heath Creek Canyon at an elevation of 8,200 feet when they decided to slide down the slope.

'Kidnap Victim' Sought as Thief

Lakewood sheriff's deputies still were hunting Bellflower "kidnap victim" Douglas E. Gildien early today.

But not for the same reason they so urgently sought him Saturday.

Then it was feared the 21-year-old Gildien had been kidnapped by robbers who grabbed about $3,000 from a safe in a filling station where he had been employed.

BY SATURDAY night, however, it was determined Gildien voluntarily left this area with his wife, Laoni, 18, and baby at the same time it was discovered that the station, at Woodruff Avenue and Artesia Boulevard, had been robbed. A check-cashing booth was broken into and signs of a struggle were apparent.

Gildien returned to the home of Bennie Romero, 4508 Palo Verde Ave., Lakewood, where he had been staying since Christmas, packed up wife and child and drove away, officers discovered.

HE MAY be heading toward his former hometown of Columbus, O., officers said, in a 1956 Ford Victoria two-door sedan with light brown paint over dark brown.

And the hunt goes on for Gildien. Only this time, officers hope eventually to book him on suspicion of grand theft.

N.Y.-to-Acapulco Flights Considered

MEXICO CITY (UPI)—The new U.S.-Mexican air travel treaty which is to be negotiated soon may provide for direct jet flights from New York City to the Pacific resort of Acapulco, it was reported.

A tourist department spokesman said Mexico would insist that any such arrangement must provide for service by both Mexican and U.S. airlines over the proposed new route. The nationalized Aeronaves airline now has a monopoly on flights to Acapulco.

MAN SLAIN, EX-MOBSTER SHOT IN ARM

FAIRFIELD, Ill. (UPI)—

An elderly farmer was slain in gangland style Saturday and a prohibition-era mobster suffer a bullet wound, awakening memories of the bloody underworld wars of the 1920s and 1940s in this coal-mining and farming area.

The bullet-torn body of H. S. Taylor, 72, unofficial "mayor" of the unincorporated Pond Creek community, was found in the front seat of his 1958-model car parked atop a hill on a gravel road about 3/4-mile from the farm of Charles (Black Charley) Harris, 68, onetime lieutenant in the dreaded Shelton brothers gang.

A short time after Taylor's body was found by an oil-field worker, Harris appeared at a Fairfield doctor's office with a bullet wound in his left arm. He was taken to a hospital for surgery.

Sheriff Eugene Leathers of Wayne County said there had been ill feeling between Taylor and Harris for several years.

NOW, ABOUT THAT SET—

Telephoned Alarm Given Accidentally

Mrs. Elaine Rosenoff of 715 Havana Ave., telephoned an appliance store on east Anaheim Street Saturday to ask if repairs to her radio had been completed.

She was talking to a clerk when the phone circuit cut out, then cut in again with a recording:

"This store is being robbed," the recording said. "Please phone the police . . . this store is being robbed. . . ."

Mrs. Rosenoff called the police and told them of her strange phone conversation.

Officers rushed to the scene to find the store's ingenious robbery warning device had been activated accidentally.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Rosenoff walked into the living room to speak to her husband, Ben.

"I don't know if the radio is ready yet," she said, "but a funny thing happened on the phone. . . ."

PART OF CATALINA ISLAND'S BUFFALO HERD SHOWN GRAZING IN REMOTE VALLEY

Catalina to Boom

hills and valleys that slope toward the ocean on both sides of the island. Those would make ideal areas for homes, but the land developers are not just about to start a wild, disorderly stretch of residences that could not be provided with power, heat and, once again, that precious water. All land will be leased for 55 years, not sold, and leases will be renewable for 20 or 40 years.

Another rumor — and this one has been going the rounds for many years — is that a canal will be cut at the Isthmus to link the open Pacific on the west with the quieter water on the lee side of the island.

There is this much to be said for that rumor: An investigation has been started to determine the rise and fall of the tides and to see what such a canal would do to the quiet mooring area of the Isthmus.

J. H. (JIM) RAE, one of Edison's main trouble-shooters for many years, has been named manager of the Catalina operation, which will be separate from Edison's interests on the mainland, at least for the time being.

Jim and his wife, Trieva, already have moved to the island. They have one daughter, Linda, who is teaching her first year in South High School at Torrance.

Jim's last job with Edison was that of employee relations coordinator. He has done a real circuit-riding job for Edison — all the way from the mountains to the sea.

Here are some of the most urgent tasks:

Raise the height of Thomson Dam at Middle Ranch 25 feet to provide more water immediately.

Repair Wrigley Reservoir at once. It is a holding unit that virtually has been abandoned.

Replace and enlarge all existing pipelines, both for water and gas and all of which are subject to dangerous leakage under increased pressure.

Add one diesel electrical generating unit to the present power plant at Peppy Beach, just east of Avalon.

Then, says Rae, comes the long-range program of building additional reservoirs in canyons where water can be contained from natural runoff. Edison and SCIC have prepared maps showing just where such reservoirs will be situated. It is estimated that 50,000 acre feet of water falls on the island each winter and that most of that is lost in runoff. The mean annual rainfall is 13 inches.

Long Beach has a tremendous interest in Catalina's future. For one thing, the school district there is a part of the Long Beach system. And, possibly this is more important, thousands of recreational boaters look to Catalina Island as a place to go, to fish, to hunt, and to have family fun.

ODDLY enough, boating brought SCIC and Edison together. Harold Quinton, chairman of the board of Edison, made frequent boating excursions to the island. There he met Philip Wrigley and the deal began to take shape.

The most optimistic Chamber of Commerce-minded people of Avalon predict that 52,000 persons could be housed within 20 years on the island with a development of its potential water supply as outlined in the SCIC report about the Edison program.

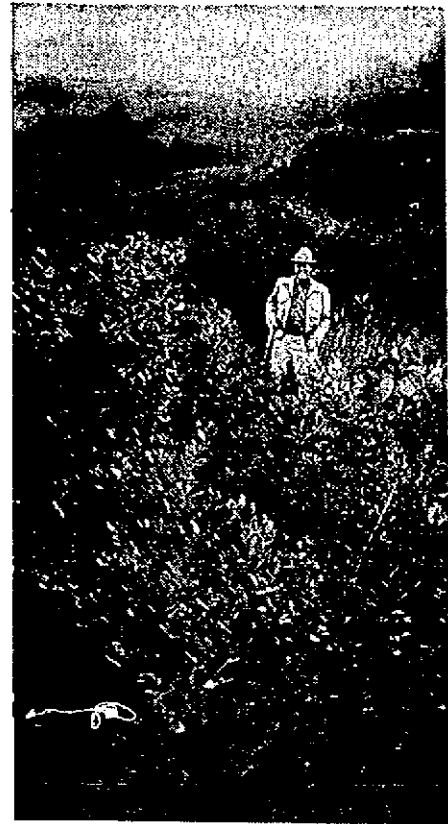

Others far more realistic feel that the island's population could rise from its present 1,600 to 17,400 in 20 years with a rise in the average daily tourist total of 1,500 to 2,900.

PHILIP K. Wrigley now owns 60 per cent, while other heirs of the Wrigley family own the rest. The Wrigleys own all land except 35 percent of the City of Avalon, which is privately held.

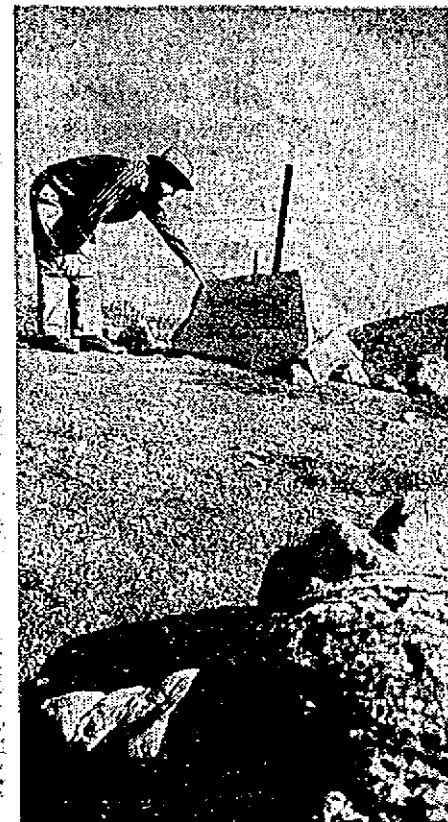

The island is served in the summer by the SS Catalina and by smaller boats in the winter. Also, there is a barge which carries supplies to Catalina residents. That is one of the factors why the cost of living is higher there than on the mainland.

In addition, two airlines, Avalon Air Transport and Catalina Channel, operate from Long Beach. Amphibious planes are used.

A helicopter operator has applied for a license to operate from Los Angeles to Avalon and the Isthmus.

CONGRESS TO BATTLE ON RULES

By WALTER T. RIDDER

Chief, I. P-T Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—The 88th Congress will convene on Wednesday and will immediately become engaged on the political battlefield.

The House of Representatives will resume a fight which began two years ago. The issue will be the size of the powerful House Rules Committee which decides what legislation will go on the floor of the House and also decides in what form it may be presented.

Much of President John F. Kennedy's legislative program lies at the mercy of the Rules Committee, so the first of the chief executive's "must" legislation will be to have the House vote to continue the Rules Committee at its present size, ten Democrats and five Republicans.

PREVIOUSLY the group had been aligned 8 Democrats and 4 Republicans, a division wanted again by the conservatives in the lower chamber. Two years ago enlargement of the Rules Committee barely squeaked through, the vote being 216-212. Enlargement of the committee enabled appointment of liberals and swung the balance of committee power away from the conservatives. Kennedy will also be facing his old antagonists, the Southern Democrats on the Senate side of the capital. Here the issue will be the perennial one of changing the rules of the Senate. Essentially the issue will be to put some form of limit on senatorial debate in order to eliminate the filibuster and to curtail a senator's long-held right to speak as long as he wants—or can.

Standing firm against the rules changes will be the Southern Democrats who view the filibuster as their only safeguard against some civil-rights legislation which they desperately oppose. Sen. Russell, D-Ga., probably best illustrated the position of the Southerners when he said that he would vote for a rules change "only when the shrimp have begun to whistle."

WHILE the Kennedy administration holds a comfortable margin in the Senate, it doesn't possess enough muscle to push through the rules change on its own. A rules change needs a two-thirds majority and in order to get the necessary margin the liberal Democrats will have to pull votes from the Republican side of the aisle.

Brown, New Legislators Take Oaths Monday

Dean Martin, Dorothy Dandridge, Jimmy Durante, Steve Allen, Joe Stafford, Gene Kelly, Joey Bishop, Norma Zimmer and the Paul Weston orchestra, according to inaugural planners. CHIEF JUSTICE Phil S. Gibson of the Supreme Court will administer the oath of office to Brown. The legislature will be called to order by Sen. Hugh Burns (D-Fresno), senate president pro tempore, and Speaker of the Assembly Jesse M. Unruh (D-Los Angeles).

Brown, all constitutional officers and the legislature will be introduced at the evening inaugural celebration.

The new Brown administration will begin its second term on a note of grand formality. Monday night's celebration party is by invitation only. And guests will wear white ties and tails or long evening gowns.

Addicts' Mutual Aid Cures Many

CHARLES DEDERICH
Founder of Synanon

ernment, in multimillion-dollar hospitals at Lexington, Ky., and Fort Worth, Tex., claims a "cure" ration of between 12 and 16 per cent, but they acknowledge that their figures merely indicate that between 12 and 16 per cent of the addicts they release do not come back for more treatment.

SYNANON HAS been in existence less than five years, so its "success" ratio of 85 per cent is not a final or accurate figure. But the 136 "clean" addicts at Synanon don't care. They, like Nadine Portugal, are thankful they've found a way to stay away from narcotics. Synanon—the word derived from the slip-of-the-tongue of a confused addict attempting to say seminar—evolved from Alcoholics Anonymous-type meetings conducted in 1957 and '58 by Dederich in his ramshackle beachfront "pad."

DERERICH, a former

business executive who had boozed himself into near oblivion, was the leader in philosophical discussions which somehow were held at the level of the motley collection of drunks and addicts in attendance.

Some of the addicts came to the realization after awhile that they didn't feel the need to shoot dope any more. That, in fact, they hadn't used any narcotics since they'd been yakking things up with Dederich. Not all the addicts stayed away from narcotics, but those that did banded together and eventually moved in with Dederich. Soon his "pad" became too small for the growing group, and, aware that they had stumbled onto something, they took the plunge and rented the old armory for $500 a month.

OFFICIAL Santa Monica screamed. Having a bunch of dop fiends on their beach was not to their liking. Having Negroes and whites, males and females, living together was not to their liking either.

The local newspaper maintained a constant barrage of editorial invective. Synanon was taken to court, convicted of a zoning violation, and ordered to leave. Maybe you're doing good, it was told, but do good someplace else.

The Los Angeles County Probation Department ruled that since it was a violation of an addict's probation to associate with other addicts, probationers couldn't stay at Synanon.

SOME JUDGES inquired, found that the ad-

HONORED WITH AN invitation to the White House Conference on Narcotics last September, Nadine Portugal of Synanon stands in front of the organization's bulletin board at the conference with one of the East Coast's leading experts on treatment of addicts, Dr. Daniel Casriel, psychiatrist with New York's Flower and Metropolitan Hospitals. Nadine, a walking testimonial for Synanon, ran away from home when she was 11 and was an addict at 17.

dicts at Synanon were clean and that the probationers there had stopped using drugs, too, and in many cases overruled the Probation Department and ordered probationers to stay at Synanon.

Official department policy has remained unchanged. The list of judges who have overruled the department is growing.

Synanon and Dederich's contribution to the battle against narcotics has drawn no recognition from the Santa Monica city fathers, but other government agencies apparently have a different opinion.

One of the officials who think Dederich's ideas are worth listening to is President Kennedy. He invited Dederich to participate in the White House Conference on Narcotics last Sept. 27 and 28.

DEDERICH AND 11 other Synanon inmates and friends went to Washington and drew considerable newspaper space in the New York Times, the Washington Post, and other eastern newspapers.

One of the 12 who made the trip was Nadine Portugal.

Lovely and poised, Nadine spoke freely to newsmen and legislators of the time when she was not very pretty and not very much in command of herself.

WHEN she was 11, she ran away from her San Pedro home for the first time. From then on, it was long years in the gutter. There was little she didn't do, few depths she didn't reach.

all addicts, like herself. They knew what it was all about.

She found something else, something she didn't like.

She was ridiculed! She was called a sniveling, cowardly, whimpering piece of nothing. She was called stupid. She was called soft.

They shouted at her. She shouted back.

She washed dishes, cooked, sewed, scrubbed floors, argued, was shouted at some more and shouted back some more. And she talked to newcomers and found out how stupid and soft they were. She told them so. She called them sniveling, cowardly, whimpering pieces of nothing. She tried helping them.

AND SHE found she didn't need dope anymore.

Gradually she was given better, more important jobs. Late in the summer she began working as a mother's helper at the Santa Monica Presbyterian Church nursery school. One of the church's ministers, Rev. Charles Harvey, a long-time friend of Synanon, got the job for her.

She worked well, so well that eventually she was put on salary as one of the four full-time teachers of the 40 or so pre-school children, including Peter and Pat Lawford's daughter, Victoria.

Now she wants to stay in nursery-school work. She has taken courses at UCLA and intends to take more. She has her daughter, Fawn, living with her at Synanon. Both are happy, both have a future.

It could have been otherwise.

IN NOVEMBER, 1960, at the age of 25, she entered Synanon. She found understanding there. The people with whom she lived were

World Victory Ahead in Conquest of Polio

By 1951, birthday balls here were drawing up to 6,500 March-of-Dimes contributors.

Big names studded the playbills of benefit shows. In 1950 the entertainers at the Long Beach benefit in Municipal Auditorium included Charles Laughton and Ed Wynn. That year Long Beach contributors donated $36,831 to the fight against polio.

Then in 1955—breakthrough. The Salk vaccine.

PEOPLE ROLLED up their sleeves and went to work. The incidence of polio began to fall.

In 1955, 21,305 Salk inoculations were administered in public immunization programs in Long Beach. By 1960 a total of 325,983 shots had been given in local public programs, plus thousands more in doctors' offices.

Citizens groups teamed with the City Health Department to do the job. The medical association also pitched in.

Now the final blows against polio are being dealt through administration of the new Sabin oral vaccine.

The National Foundation, meanwhile, has broadened its goals to stimulate research in other virus diseases, birth defects and arthritis.

The cadence of the March of Dimes has stepped up, not slowed, in the fight against disease.

Peru Arrests Its Communists

LIMA, Peru (UPI)—Peru's ruling military junta proclaimed a nationwide state of siege Saturday to break up what it called a revolutionary plot hatched in Moscow and Havana.

Police flying squads arrested scores of known Communists in pre-dawn sweeps. The government did not say how many suspected Communists were arrested, but unofficial estimates in the capital said about 800 persons had been taken into custody.

Buses continued to roll up to police headquarters in Lima into the night, indicating the roundup was continuing. Saturday night, Aprista Party sources said 21 of its members were arrested in the town of Huaraz and brought to Lima—the first indication that noncommunists were being caught up in the raids.

Gov. Barnett's Case Set for Feb. 8

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A federal appeals court Saturday ordered Mississippi Gov. Ross Barnett and Lt. Gov. Paul B. Johnson Jr., to show Feb. 8 why they should not be held in criminal contempt for blocking Negro James H. Meredith's admission to the University of Mississippi.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, in an order signed by six of its nine judges, said it would try the two officials at a later date if they pleaded innocent or showed other cause at that time.

BARNETT If they fail to appear to JOHNSON answer the four counts charged by the federal government, the two could be found guilty immediately and sentenced to heavy fines and imprisonment.

Tshombe Key to Peace, Says Rusk

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk emerged from a two-hour session with President Kennedy Saturday and reported "there's a real chance of getting a quick settlement in the Congo."

But, he said, it's up to Katanga President Moise Tshombe to bring about the peaceful settlement, which Rusk described as long overdue. Tshombe, Rusk said, has indicated he goes along, in principle, with U.N. Secretary-General U Thant's reconciliation plan.

Ike Calls for Personal Diplomacy

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower called Saturday for more personal diplomacy and less government protocol in the search for world peace.

"I think there is a definite grass-roots interest among the peoples of the world to make governments get out of their way in their own attempts to establish a free world," Eisenhower said at the first annual trustees meeting of People-to-People.

Eisenhower, chairman of People-to-People and two other former heads of state, Harry S. Truman and Miguel Aleman of Mexico, joined in the session dedicated as a "Salute to Mexico."

Kennedy May Seek Anti-Strike Law

NEW YORK (UPI)—Sources close to the administration said Saturday there was a possibility President Kennedy may seek anti-strike legislation to end the 14-day-old strike of dockworkers on the East and Gulf coasts.

Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz declared that eventual settlement of the strike was "bound to have an effect on the future of collective bargaining."

Squatters Hold Ranches in Mexico

EL PASO, Tex. (AP)—Negotiators seeking a peaceful evacuation of lands invaded by hundreds of squatters in the border Mexico state of Chihuahua, reported Saturday they have been unable to convince the leaders to move their people out.

Latest reports said "Paracaidistas" (parachutists) continued to hold their ground on five large ranches invaded in the Casas Grandes, San Buenaventura, Asuncion, and Janos areas.

Reports reaching Juarez, across from El Paso, quoted one of several leaders of the movement—Emilio Garcia—as saying preparations are in the making for a new invasion of lands in the Madera region in the next few days.

Tony Curtis May Wed Co-Star, 18

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Tony Curtis confirmed Saturday that he and 17-year-old Christine Kaufmann may get married, but he said it won't be for at least a week, maybe Jan. 18.

"I certainly would not discuss marriage with Christine until she is 18," said Curtis in a statement released by his publicist. The beautiful young German actress, who co-starred with Curtis in "Taras Bulba," will be 18 next Friday.

Ball to Brief NATO on Atomic-Arm Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States would supply equal numbers of planes with their nuclear bombs. They would be under direction of the NATO commander, U.S. Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer.

But the NATO Allies obviously will have to approve the offer and work out details for the bomber-force control system if it is to go through.

BALL WILL tell the Allied representatives on the Council, associates expect, that the Nassau Pact represents a great breakthrough toward strengthening the unity of the Western Allies instead of allowing the unchecked development of national nuclear forces, as in Britain and France, to generate forces which would threaten the alliance with disintegration.

Ball is scheduled to go on from Paris to Germany to give Chancellor Konrad Adenauer a first-hand report on the nuclear-force project and the Nassau conference. Kennedy administration leaders consider the German government's attitude toward the project a matter of great importance because it offers an opportunity for West Germany as a modern industrial nation to share in a multi-national nuclear force without becoming a nuclear power in its own right—something forbidden by post-World War II agreements.

THE PRESIDENT discussed the subject with Secretary of State Dean Rusk and NATO Ambassador Thomas K. Finletter at Palm Beach, Fla., Saturday.

Ball is expected to tell the 15-nation NATO Council that Kennedy is prepared to carry out in the near future the first of the three stages envisioned in last month's U.S.-British Nassau Pact. The pact calls for providing the NATO powers with an alliance-controlled, European-based force of Polaris nuclear missiles.

The first step would be the commitment undertaken by Kennedy and Macmillan to make available to NATO strategic bomber forces already in existence. Britain and

Governors' Group OKs National Guard Cut

WASHINGTON (UPI)—

The executive committee of the National Governors' Conference Saturday gave qualified approval for the states to let the Army proceed with its plan to reorganize the National Guard drastically.

But the governors emphasized that each state was still free to veto the Army plan which would mean the elimination of four of the present 27 National Guard divisions.

The action, however, released the governors from a pledge made at a meeting in Hershey, Pa., last July to withhold their approval of the sweeping changes until they had consulted further with the Army command.

These consultations were held Saturday.

The decision came after the Army made a major concession. It agreed to coordinate an internal improvement of the 23 divisions which will be retained.

Gov. Albert D. Rosellini of Washington, president of the governors' conference and chairman of the executive committee, predicted a majority of the states would approve the Army plans.

"I would think that these plans should be acceptable to the majority of the states," he added. "The Army has made a real concession, and we hope to establish the rest of our case in Congress."

The governors will fight in Congress to lift restrictions on recruiting for the Guard.

Asked whether some states will still withhold the approval required by law to reorganize the Guard, Rosellini said, "Yes, there will be some." He mentioned Mississippi and said "there are others."

Gov. Ross Barnett of Mississippi, a member of the governors' seven-man committee on the National Guard, cast the only dissenting vote to the committee report which was adopted by the executive group.

The Guard committee met earlier Saturday with Army Secretary Cyrus S. Vance. Its report to the executive body emphasized these points:

The governors should approve before the appropriate committees of Congress to support legislation establishing that the "average strength" of the Guard shall be 400,000 men. The words "average strength" would substitute for the Pentagon's phrasing of "end strength."

The governors hope this would establish that units can exceed manpower levels part of the time.

The plan for internal improvement of Guard divisions, announced by the Army Saturday, is the most acceptable yet offered.

Individual states are left free to exercise their legal right to reject changes.

Friends Pay Carson Final Tribute

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Actor Jack Carson, the movies' ace portrayer of loudmouth fourflushers, was eulogized Saturday as a man of quiet but deep religious belief.

Dr. Raymond Lindquist, pastor of Hollywood Presbyterian Church, surprised Carson's friends when he disclosed that the 52-year-old actor had completed eight chapters of a book dealing with his religious beliefs.

"The theme of the book was that God had put a responsiveness in every man and we are judged on how well we utilize that gift," the minister said, adding that Carson often discussed the book with him after attending church.

Carson's memorial rites in Forest Lawn's Wee Kirk o' The Heather, a replica of Annie Laurie's Church in Glencalra, Scotland, climaxed one of Hollywood's saddest weeks.

Carson died five hours before actor-producer Dick Powell on Wednesday. Both succumbed to cancer. The two knew each other over the years but were not close friends.

The crowd at Carson's rites was almost wholly different in content from the celebrity-studded turnout at Powell's funeral Friday.

Veteran character actors, known only by face; ex-vaudevillians and golfing buddies from Lakeside Country Club composed most of the 250 mourners at Carson's rites. There also were many rank-and-file studio workers.

But there were names among them — Raymond Massey, Buddy Rogers, Johnny Weissmuller, William Demarest, Danny Thomas and George Gobel.

Gobel, a golf chum and Encino neighbor, left the church in tears.

Pallbearers included actors Dennis Morgan and Dave Willock, longtime showbusiness partners of Carson's.

In the family room along with Carson's widow—his fourth wife—was Mrs. E. T. Wells, the former singer Kay St. Germaine. She was Carson's second wife and mother of his two children.

Sonny Tufts, who attended Powell's funeral Friday, arrived just as Carson's rites ended. He had been caught in a traffic jam.

Singer Constance Towers sang "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," the actor's favorite song.

More than 50 floral pieces turned the little church into a veritable garden. The coffin was closed.

Cremation will follow but, a family spokesman said, not immediately.

Powell was cremated simultaneously with his memorial rites.

Patman Assails 'Brainwashing' Done by Tax-Free Foundations

By GEOFFREY GOULD

WASHINGTON (AP)—One large tax-exempt foundation and a wholly-owned subsidiary have spent more than $750,000 since 1955 for public relations purposes, a congressional report said Saturday.

The report said also that another tax-exempt foundation spent $172,583 for public relations services in a 10-year period.

Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., chairman of a special House small-business committee, said in his report to committee members that such expenditures were "an abuse of a public trust, an imposition on the kindhearted American people who subsidize the foundations. In my view, expenditures of this nature should be cause for revocation of tax exemption."

PATMAN SAID taxpayers "have enough of a load without carrying foundations that engage in brainwashing activities."

Patman's report was one of a series in which he has accused some foundations of business activities inconsistent with their legal standing as charitable institutions. Patman has said some foundations are abusing their tax-exempt status and has called for thorough review of laws and regulations under which such tax exemption is granted.

The Texan's principal targets this time were the tax-exempt Howard Hughes Medical Institute of Miami Beach, Fla., its wholly-owned subsidiary, Hughes Aircraft Co., and the Ford Foundation.

PATMAN reported the Hughes institute since 1955 has paid $46,417 to a large New York public relations company, Carl Byoir and Associates. In addition, he said, over the same period, Hughes Aircraft paid Byoir $166,686 in fees and $545,733 in reimbursements.

Says U.S. Firm to Sublet Navy Work to Japan

CHESTER, Pa. (AP)—The president of the Sun Shipbuilding and Drydock Co. says a Seattle firm, recently awarded a U.S. Navy contract, plans to subcontract much of the work to a Japanese firm.

Paul E. Atkinson, in a letter to U.S. Rep. William H. Milliken, R-Pa., made the charge and said such a move would be contrary to law and to the U.S. national interest.

The contract, for the $15 million job of lengthening two fleet oilers, went to the Puget Sound Bridge and Drydock Co. Sun Ship was the next low bidder.

PHILADELPHIA

Electronic Hotfoot Due for Starlings

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Philadelphia, which once tried to rid city hall of starlings by broadcasting the bird's distress cry on a public address system, is about to try something else.

Public Property Commissioner Fred T. Corleto said a $49,500 electrical network to give the birds an electronic hotfoot has been installed on roofs and ledges and will be turned on soon.

Brazilians Vote Today on Setup

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI)—An estimated 18 million Brazilians went to the polls today to decide whether or not to scrap the parliamentary system which many blame for Brazil's continuing government crisis.

Foremost exponent of a return to the presidential system is President Joao Goulart.

This parliamentary system was initiated 16 months ago when Goulart succeeded President Janio Quadros, who suddenly resigned. Rightist military officials were suspicious of leftist Laborite Goulart, who at that time talked like a radical demagogue. Conservative congressmen pushed through the amendment changing the government from a presidential to a European-style parliamentary system.

GOULART contends that the system serves to shackle his administrative initiative and is responsible for the nation's failure to move as it should.

It is taken for granted here that the referendum will result in an overwhelming victory for the return to "presidentialism."

The voters will indicate "yes" or "no" on a ballot asking:

"Do you approve the amendment which instituted parliamentarism in Brazil?"

FAVORING a return to the strong executive, in addition to Goulart's Labor Party, is the Social Democratic Party of former president Juscelino Kubitschek.

BOURBON STREET'S BLUE

D.A. Aims at Shutting Down the 'Trashy and Criminal' Joints

By I. J. VIDACOVICH

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—Inside one of the joints that line Bourbon Street, a bored stripper mechanically goes through her act to a phonograph record of "Patricia" on a runway behind the bar.

Ten minutes later, like as not, she will slide up to a male customer at the bar and suggest that he buy her a drink, too. At $2.65 per drink.

Outside, a barker entices the tourists, making it all sound exciting and naughty to the men and like a peek into perdition for the women.

DOWN THE street, with its lacy iron grillwork and its patina of a more opulent age, are night clubs for the jazz buffs.

There is an art gallery. There is a superb restaurant. Here is a place to go and sing along with two entertainers at twin concert grand pianos. There is a shop that sells kewpie dolls, postcards and cheap souvenirs. Behind that dingy door is a fine apartment house with a swimming pool. Next to the curb is a portable hot dog stand.

BOURBON STREET is what you want. Brassy and muted, charming and bawdy, historic and tinselly. And in trouble.

The strip joints have been one of the major attractions.

Tens of thousands of tourists visit them every year, especially at Sugar Bowl and Mardi Gras times.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY Jim Garrison, in office for less than a year, wants to sweep out the trashy and the downright criminal on the street. What will it do to the legitimate businesses?

He now has five strip joints under padlock. Several club owners admit they know of no way to stop him from closing every "joint" on the street if that is his intention.

There have been arrests for prostitution. Perverts have been seized in raids. There is no complaint places that attract, if only through curiosity, tourists who are normal, decent citizens.

GARRISON does not feel Bourbon Street will be hurt in the long run. "I'm not against night clubs," he said, "and tourists like good night clubs. But these (the strip clubs) are not night clubs. They're tourist traps."

His main targets are clubs where strippers mix with customers and ask for drinks. Garrison calls it "a form of commercial vice that is very vicious—its purpose is to empty the entire contents of the unwary wallet."

He also labels it a cover for prostitution, and claims that when his undercover agents investigated the clubs on the street, they were approached by 22 women and got 22 offers of prostitution.

FRANK CARRACCI, who owns three strip clubs and the famed about this sort of clean-up. But what of the strip Court of Two Sisters restaurant, disagreed. He said organizations have cancelled "convention on top of convention" because of the word that Bourbon Street has changed. "They tell me," he said, "that all we have to offer now is old buildings, and they want more than that."

Club owner Larry Lamarca disagreed with Garrison on the "evils" of B-drinking.

"Most men who come into the clubs come in to talk with the girls. Most of them begin by asking 'how did you get in this business,' and 'how do you feel when you're up there on stage.' It seldom goes further than that," Lamarca said.

THE CLOSING of the first club under court order, Jazz Ltd., surprised the old timers along the street. A bartender said "that was known as one of the Sunday School clubs. The owners were really tough about keeping the club in line. If he (Garrison) can close that one, he can close them all."

Grapevine Road Accidents Cut

SACRAMENTO (AP)—Conversion of the once-trafficous Grapevine Grade on U.S. 99 to an eight-lane freeway has slashed death, injury and accident rates, the state reported.

State Highway Engineer J. C. Womack said accident frequency dropped by two-thirds and fatalities by 89 percent despite a 10 per cent increase in traffic.

From an average of eight deaths on the grade before the freeway, the number dropped to one—an intoxicated pedestrian—for a full year of the freeway.

THE NUMBER of accidents for a year dropped from 114 to 41; injuries from 77 to 25. Runaway trucks, formerly the greatest hazard with an average of nine a year, decreased to one after the freeway. Rear-end accidents dropped from 59 to 16.

Womack said the study was based on the average yearly number of accidents for two years before the freeway opened, with one full year after completion.

THE "AFTER" year was July 1, 1961 to June 30, 1962. The Division of Highways said it did not use 1960-61 because "bugs" were still being worked out. The freeway opened in July 1960.

Womack attributed part of the decrease to the policy of reserving some of the right-hand lanes for exclusive use of slow-moving trucks.

He said the 6.6-mile, $7.43 million project has reduced the accidents on the Grapevine to the statewide average for rural freeways.

Kennedy Plans All-Out Fight in Congress for Tax Cut

By
HARRY WILSON SHARPE
United Press International

President Kennedy let it be known last week that he will wage an all-out fight in the new Congress for a big tax cut this year—perhaps as much as $8 billion along with offsetting tax reforms.

Congress convenes Wednesday. How receptive it will be depends on Kennedy's selling job. The President believes an across-the-board cut would help keep the nation relatively prosperous. Without the cuts he fears unemployment will rise dangerously.

THE FIRST cut would come July 1. Others would be spaced out. And he would recover $3.5 billion through tax law "loophole" closings. This is where Congress could balk, as it has in the past.

The President, at the dawn of the new year, also thought Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev may have learned a lesson from his brink-of-war Cuban missile venture and thus improved chances of keeping the peace.

Kennedy said that while the United States has no intention of invading Cuba, the absence of action depends on how well Moscow-oriented Fidel Castro lives in peace with his neighbors. But he wanted it understood that Washington would be sympathetic toward a shift to free government in Havana.

CASTRO LASHED out at Kennedy and ridiculed him for paying "indemnification" for 1,113 ransomed invasion prisoners. He also ridiculed the President at a revolution anniversary celebration for welcoming the prisoners in Miami's Orange Bowl and suggested he may have had "too much to drink."

Castro's speech, against the background of a massive military display, dimmed chances for the freedom of more relatives of the prisoners.

In other foreign fields, the President took a guarded attitude toward the continuing East-West struggle. He found the West still holding the military balance of power and the United States holding a big edge in nuclear weapons.

Domestic and foreign prospects taken together, he saw 1963 as another year of peril but an era of more opportunities for advancement. Politically, he regards his second-term candidacy as more or less inevitable, but recognized there might be a decline in his popularity.

THE PRESIDENT and Khrushchev exchanged New Year's greetings, with Khrushchev calling for a joint effort to improve mutual relations and the international situation.

The United States and Britain urged French President Charles de Gaulle to accept Kennedy's offer of Polaris nuclear missiles to make NATO's defenses more deadly. But De Gaulle insisted he still wants and will have an independent nuclear striking force. He has shunned NATO because the United States has deprived France of atomic secrets given to Britain.

Britain agreed to accept the Polaris in lieu of the American Skybolt missile which Kennedy canceled as outdated and too costly. The 1200-mile Polaris can be fired underwater from submarines and is regarded as a potent war deterrent.

Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer took over this week as supreme commander of NATO forces succeeding Gen. Lauris Norstad who is retiring.

The Defense Department formally ordered the Air Force to stop Skybolt testing and terminate production as quickly as possible. The decision will leave thousands of persons jobless.

The United States was directly involved in two "hot" wars. In Viet Nam, three U.S. soldiers were killed and four wounded when Communist guerrillas shot down five U.S. Army helicopters south of Saigon. The Americans were advisers and instructors for the pro-Western South Vietnamese army.

In the troubled Congo,

United Nations troops armed with some U.S. weapons and transport drove deep into Katanga province in an attempt to force secessionist Katanga President Moise Tshombe to bow to the Central Congo Government.

Kennedy is determined to prevent a Communist bridgehead in Africa. U.N. Secretary General Thant has warned Tshombe he must negotiate or fall.

In other news spheres, death ended the careers of Sen. Robert S. Kerr, D-Okla., and movie actors Dick Powell and Jack Carson. Kerr died of a heart attack. Powell and Carson succumbed to cancer, bringing to four the number of Hollywood celebrities who have died from the affliction in less than a month.

Sen. Kerr's death was a severe blow to the President's New Frontier legislative program. The Oklahoman wielded a big stick for Kennedy in the Senate and will be sorely missed. The President flew from Palm Beach to Oklahoma City Friday to attend his funeral. Kerr was the richest man in the Senate but as a young lawyer was so broke he milked a neighbor's cows for half the milk.

On Jan. 1 Social Security taxes for the nation's federally insured went up an additional $2 billion. Motorists scored the third highest New Year's holiday traffic toll with 389 dead. Tolstar, the world's first communications satellite, and its successor, Relay, suddenly came to life after weeks of silence due to radiation zones surrounding the earth. In Moscow 32 Russian peasants risked imprisonment by pushing past Soviet guards into the U.S. Embassy seeking protection from religious persecution. Soviet officials took them away in a bus after threatening to confiscate the camera of any Western photographer taking pictures. The peasants cried: "Those who believe in God and Christ, help us." American officials were sympathetic but powerless.

New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, starting his second term, bid for the support of conservatives, liberals and progressives. He is regarded as the GOP's top presidential prospect in 1964.

U.S. Continues 'Copter Use in Viet War

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army will keep on using helicopters in the bush-war battles with Viet Cong Communists in Viet Nam, despite the guerrilla gunfire which has been blasting those aircraft.

The Defense Department issued Saturday a summary of the action earlier this week in which three Americans died, 10 were wounded and five helicopters brought down, one of them a total loss.

Embraced in the summary was what amounted to a policy statement: "Use of helicopters to provide transportation for Vietnamese forces will continue as a primary means of pressing offensive operations against the Viet Cong."

The announcement had originated at headquarters of Gen. Paul D. Harkins in Viet Nam, passed through Army channels and had the approval of the Joint Chiefs of staff and the Defense department. The White House was reported to have asked for a complete report on the battle. The summary issued by the Pentagon today presumably was based on that report.

The summary and policy expression appeared to be intended for several purposes, including:

1. Getting out the Army-Defense Department version of what happened last Wednesday.

Reds Fear E. Berlin Breakout

BERLIN (UPI) — East German Communists set up a heavy machine gun covering a blocked off East-West Berlin street tunnel Saturday to prevent any mass escape by East Berliners attending a sporting event near the wall today.

The tunnel is under the elevated railway lines running between East Berlin and the French sector of West Berlin and was part of Gleimstrasse before the Communists blocked it off when the anti-refugee wall went up Aug. 13, 1961.

West Berlin police said the machine gun was aimed down the tunnel and that the Communists usually take extra precautions when some event brings a big crowd close to the wall.

THE COMMUNISTS also announced they would blow up an empty house on their side of the Zimmerstrasse near the U.S. Army Checkpoint Charlie on Tuesday. The area has been the scene of numerous tunnels, shootings and difficulties between East and West Berlin police.

Communist police Saturday returned a 21-year-old West Berliner to the West after he had served eight months in a labor camp for "slandering" East Germany. Exact nature of his offense was not known, but Eastern guards telephoned West Berlin police to turn the youth over to them.

The extra precaution along coal-short East Germany appealed to the people to conserve natural gas so it could be used for industry.

Belgian Film Critics Choose U.S. Film

BRUSSELS (AP) — The U.S. film "The Miracle Worker," directed by Arthur Penn, Friday won the annual prize of the Belgian film critics.

Second came the French film, "Cleo de Cinq a Sept," (director Agnes Varda), and third, "Jules et Jim" (Francois Truffaut), another French film.

Another U.S. film, "West Side Story," directed by Robert Wise and Jerome Robbins, placed fourth. The British film, "A Taste of Honey," directed by Tony Richardson, was fifth.

Draft Change Studied

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Argentine authorities were said to be studying a plan to lower the draft age and reduce the military service requirement for properly prepared youths. Informed sources said the plan provides for the conscription of young men at the age of 18 instead of 20 as at present.

day about 35 miles southwest of Saigon. The statement said the deaths, injuries and damage occurred in efforts to rescue those aboard a helicopter hit during the airlift operation.

2. Heading off criticism of Army tactics in using helicopters under the jungle warfare conditions of Viet Nam.

The summary said experience shows helicopters can penetrate "otherwise inaccessible areas and deprive Guerilla forces of the initiative. In 1962, U.S. Army aviation aircraft flew 50,000 sorties in Viet Nam, half of them combat-support sorties. Ground fire brought down only nine aircraft, the department says. A news dispatch from Saigon Saturday said that in another engagement near the Cambodian border the South Vietnamese government claimed 47 Viet Cong killed, largely as the result of air strikes. The same dispatch, in discussing the battle southwest of Saigon on Wednesday, said American officers who participated believed that inadequate intelligence, lack of aggressiveness and poor coordination were factors contributing to the difficulties encountered by the South Viet Nam forces. In some Washington quarters, there is inclination to attribute some of the trouble to inadequate and late use of fixed-wing aircraft in the battle. And the impression in these quarters (admittedly far removed from the scene) was that this failure to provide fighter planes to help the armed helicopters arose from decisions of the South Viet Nam command.

Viet Nam and U.S. officers who planned the attack on the Viet Cong were reported to have requested that fighter planes be assigned to strike in advance of the helicopter airlift, using rockets and machine guns. But higher echelon headquarters already had committed available fighters to other targets. The report here was that only after the helicopters had come under heavy fire was it possible to divert fighters from other targets and that even then fewer than half a dozen were assigned to the mission.

Baby Ill After Cancerous Eyes Removed

GLASGOW, Scotland (UPI) — Margaret McKeown, the 20-month-old baby whose remaining eye was removed in a New York clinic recently to save her life, is "fretting and ill," her parents said Saturday night.

Margaret already had lost one eye when surgeons told her parents last year the second had a malignant tumor which would kill her if the eye was not removed. After several weeks of indecision by her parents, Margaret was flown to New York three weeks ago and the second eye was taken out.

Her father, Matthew, said Saturday night he was afraid as though in pain over the something may have gone past few days," McKeown wrong since the second operation. "She has been crying

Hunting Big Cats Is Anaheim Rancher's Hobby

By KEN KNIGHT

"BUSINESS—Citrus and Cattle," read the calling card. "HOBBY—Lion Hunting."

It belonged to Leo F. Douglass, of 10611 Douglass Road, a pioneer developer of Anaheim who has lived on the road named after him since 1911.

EARLY road travelers hereabouts, of whom there are untold numbers, may feel put upon when they think of others lying snugly abed, but there are compensations. I found this out when I got up at an unholy hour to attend a meeting set at the ridiculous time of 7:15 and requiring considerable driving through heavy traffic.

And I mean heavy. The roads were jammed, and the intersections clogged with people going somewhere, presumably to work. Those who don't get out until 9 or 10 have no idea what it's like between 6 and 8.

This is bad, but for the benefit of my readers, all of whom no doubt sleep late, I made mental notes of some interesting viewing experiences.

FOR instance, in Alamitos Heights I saw a lady out in her nightie and bare feet. She was standing on her front sidewalk. The morning newspaper lay four or five feet out in a freshly-manured lawn and she was trying to get it without soiling her pink tootsies.

Her method was to fish for it with one of those sprinkler turners. I brazenly slowed down to see if she could get the paper in the notched end of the tool. I don't know how she came out because I hastened away when she realized I was gawking. The nightie was pretty thin and she couldn't know my whole interest was in the unique fishing operation.

Coming along a little further I encountered a hitchhiker in dapper dress and carrying a dispatch case. His thumb gesture caused me to slow momentarily, but only that. Those stories of hitchhiker crimes have impressed me, and I figured a mean hitchhiker might as likely as not be smartly dressed and with gun in bag.

On Ocean Blvd. I encountered a brisk, refreshing seashore breeze, and the view of the bay across Bluff Park was inspiring. Several men were walking along the sidewalk next to the rail, looking sturdy and determined as they took their morning constitutional. One of them had a dog on leash which he apparently didn't trust. Approaching another pedestrian, he jerked the leash and circled widely around him. Or maybe he didn't trust the other pedestrian. I'll never know. Men have made news by biting dogs.

I ROLLED on along the shoreline, jostling for position among other drivers, all of whom seemed hell bent for election. Several of the cars were filled with men, obviously car pool participants, and in each case the driver was going like the devil while appearing to be asleep. In all of these cars I never saw a smiling face, and surmised that early risers are generally grouchy and danged poor company.

Some had obviously left home in a hurry. On Ocean close in I came alongside a man who was shaving with an electric razor as he drove, and another who was sipping something from a paper cup.

Downtown, I observed a crane on top of the partly constructed hotel at 600 E. Ocean and wondered how they got it up there. A little further along I noticed for the first time, although I often pass there, that the tiny All States Society office building is surrounded by what I took to be a flock of metal flagpoles. Presumably they're for state flags and if they were hung, it would make quite a display. The poles, however, are in rather poor shape. Some are rusty, some are bent, some have a ball on top and some don't. What's the story about that?

MY travels took me to Terminal Island and the Navy base. Mostly what I saw over there was a mad scramble of traffic. They really pour into the place in the early morn.

It was a good thing I had all those worthwhile experiences on the way. When I got to the gate, I discovered my meeting was some place else and I missed the whole thing.

It was an enlightening and thrilling trip, though.

The card could also have been printed — Leo F. Douglass—Deer Hunter's Friend.

Since the gray-visaged 70-year-old rancher began hunting mountain lions in 1928 he has killed more than 30 of the big cats.

"The department of fish and game estimates that a mountain lion will kill at least one deer a week for his food," Douglass said, "but from personal experience I would say lions kill quite a few more."

ALTHOUGH he admits to killing more than 30 mountain lions, a conversation with the quiet spoken Douglass soon indicates that his "kill" may easily amount to more than twice that number.

In 1962, Douglass killed three mountain lions in a pursuit of his hobby that takes him through California, Arizona and Utah. He has killed six cats in the nearby Santa Ana mountains.

"I first started it in 1928 and haven't ever been able to get enough hunting," Douglass said as he strode over to the pens where his pack of hounds bayed in nervous anticipation.

"The bounty is $60 for a female mountain lion and $50 for a male, but heck, I guess that every lion shot cost me at least $200," he says.

"When I get ready to go hunting, I just pull my truck up here and get about three dogs and take off. Sometimes I'm gone a couple of weeks," Douglass said.

"Fish and game people tell me about a cat or farmers will call me."

"I set the dogs on the trail and they run the cat until it's trapped or tired and then I shoot it with either a 9 m.m. Luger, or a .357 cal. Magnum."

WHILE THE mountain lion has no natural enemies except man, they pose a problem for sheep and cattle ranchers, often wantonly killing stock just for the thrill of the slaughter.

"I remember once I got a call from a game warden in northern California, a mountain lion had been killing sheep."

"I got right up there with the dogs and the cat had killed 22 sheep and carried one off for its meal."

"Unfortunately, I didn't get the cat. It was so hot the feet of the dogs couldn't stand it. They ran from shade to shade and we called off the hunt."

During his 34 years of mountain lion hunting, Douglass has studied his quarry carefully.

"The lion travels a 40 mile circle and does it every week. They breed every two years and keep the cubs with them nearly two years."

"THEY ORDINARILY won't attack a person, although I've heard of two cases where children have been killed by mountain lions."

"If the mountain lions in the area are big, that means there are a lot of deer for them to kill for food. The mountain lions of the desert are lighter than those living in the mountains."

Scattered throughout the Douglass home are numerous mountain lion pelts.

Asked when he planned to leave on another lion hunting trip, Douglass smiled and replied:

"Tomorrow, I guess. That's about as soon as I can get away."

BETHLEHEM SHIPYARD COMPLETES BIG EXPANSION PROGRAM

22,000-Ton Dry Dock No. 2 Dedicated

The cargo ship Hawaii was raised out of the water Saturday—an event which served as dedication for the harbor area's newest and largest privately owned dry dock.

In a simple—and useful—ceremony on Terminal Island, Bethlehem Steel Co. officials announced completion of a multimillion-dollar expansion program which began in 1961. The Hawaii was the first ship to be brought aboard the 22,000-ton-capacity sectional dry dock.

While company officials watched, workmen went about the task of securing the 12,691-ton freighter.

"Completion of the expansion program with the addition of this dry dock to the San Pedro yard greatly increases our capacity and indicates Bethlehem's faith in the growth of the harbor area and the increasing importance of the West Coast to the maritime industry," said W. A. Harrington, San Pedro yard manager.

This will be the second dry dock operating in the yard. Dry Dock No. 1 is a 15,000-ton sectional dry dock. The docks are parallel to each other, one on either side of Pier 2. Pier 2 is the central pier in the newly constructed basin.

Dry Dock No. 2 has an overall length of 657 feet, 3 inches and width of 96 feet, 8 1/2 inches. The dock will accommodate ships in the class of Matson's Lurline or American President Line's President Cleveland.

Thirty-six turbine-type pumps can raise the dock in 60 minutes. Each pump is capable of discharging 4,000 gallons per minute.

Two whirley cranes serve Pier 2, which is adjacent to the main ship channel of the Los Angeles Outer Harbor. Each crane has a lifting capacity of 22 tons.

With completion of the expansion program and addition of the new dry dock, the San Pedro yard is now one of the most modern ship-repairing units on the West Coast, said Harrington. During the recent construction program, four new piers were built. Pier 1, on the south side of the basin, has a length of 560 feet and a water depth at mean low tide of 25 feet. Pier 2, in the center of the basin, has a length of 660 feet. Pier 3, on the northernmost edge of the basin, has a length of 690 feet and can accommodate a 50,000-ton-deadweight tanker.

Pier 4 faces west onto the Los Angeles ship channel and was used recently to perform work on the 940-foot-long SS Manhattan, largest commercial vessel built in the United States.

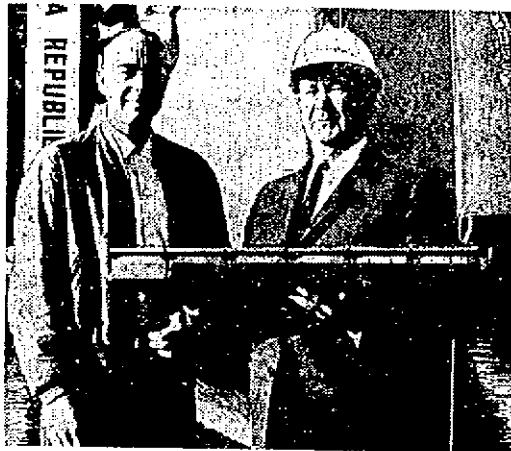

Besides the cranes on Pier 2, each of the other piers has two whirley cranes—each with 90-foot booms.

The yard now can handle almost every type of ship-repair and marine-engine overhaul. It has a full range of completely equipped shops, and its engineering crews and operating personnel are fully qualified to repair, construct, and install machinery and equipment required for ship-repair and conversion, and high-pressure piping systems of modern commercial and naval vessels.

DOCKMASTER DICK STINE guides the 12,691-ton cargo ship Hawaii into the harbor area's newest and largest drydock during dedication rites.

HOLDING SCALE MODEL of new drydock are Jack Dore, left, SS Hawaii official, and W. A. Harrington, yard manager for Bethlehem Steel's San Pedro shipyard.

OPERATOR IN PUMPHOUSE watches as huge freighter Hawaii is raised out of water in new drydock. Drydock dedication marked completion of shipyard expansion program started in 1961.

Diabetes Parley at 2 p.m. Today

Latest developments in research in diabetes will be reported at the first annual conference of the Diabetes Association of Southern California today.

The meeting, open to the public, will be held from 2 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. in the main auditorium of Los Angeles County General Hospital, 1200 N. State St., Los Angeles.

Main speaker will be Dr. Peter H. Forsham, San Francisco, chief of endocrinology and metabolism at University of California Medical Center. Six seminars will be conducted during the afternoon.

Participants will include two Long Beach residents.

Dr. Fred W. S. Modern, chief of the chronic disease section at Long Beach Veterans Administration Hospital, will be moderator of a panel discussing "Problems of the Young Diabetic."

Henry G. Abadie, former president of the Long Beach Society of the Diabetes Association of Southern California, will be a member of the panel discussing "Leadership of Diabetic Groups."

Dr. Charles R. Brantingham, president of the Long Beach society, has arranged for exhibition of a display on "The Diabetic Foot." The exhibit was prepared in the podiatry clinic at Georgetown University.

A burglar smashed a window to enter the Dan Deo Drugstore, 3345 E. Artesia Blvd., Saturday and stole $130 from cash drawers, according to police.

All-Digit-Dialing Hearing Monday

Hearings resume Monday morning in Los Angeles on the merits of all-number telephone numbers as compared to the present two-letter, five-number designations.

The State Public Utilities Commission will hear testimony on two complaints, one filed by James J. Oppen, Van Nuys attorney, and the other by Edward L. Blincoe, president of the Utility Users League of California.

Both seek to block Pacific Telephone Co. from changing to the all-number system.

A case brought by Oppen, was taken under submission by the PUC Dec. 28 after three days of hearings. It sought to block Pacific from bringing out its Northwest Telephone Directory on an all-number basis.

The three cases were joined for hearings, but decisions will be rendered separately, according to PUC President George G. Grover, who presided at the opening sessions.

Monday's hearing will open at 10 a.m. in the New State Building, 107 S. Broadway, Los Angeles.

Industry Site Home Ban Set

An ordinance to bar residential subdivisions in industrial zones is on its way to passage by Long Beach City Council.

Proposed by the Planning Commission, the measure drew no opposition when read for the first time last week. It is scheduled for adoption Tuesday.

Planning Director Werner Ruchti said that only few and small vacant tracts remain in the 3,540 acres of industrially-zoned land here. Much of the development in the industrial land has consisted of residences, which are permitted in two of the three manufacturing zones, M-1 and M-2.

THE ONLY exception allowed by the new ordinance is that one single-family dwelling may be constructed to house the watchman of an adjacent industry.

Planning Commission records show 9,558 acres in Long Beach zoned for residences, 3,524 devoted to such uses as parks, recreation facilities and other community purposes, 2,780 acres in ditches, rivers and utility right of way, 1,517 commercially zoned and 6,694 acres used or reserved for streets and highways.

Long Beach police would like to know the identity of Maxine Alexander's secret admirer—and so would Maxine.

Miss Alexander, piano player at the Anchorage Cocktail Bar on 61st Place near Ocean Boulevard, told officers someone stole a publicity photo of her from the marquee in front of the Anchorage. The 12-by-27-inch picture cost her $27, she said.

Further Delay Would Have Been the Real Tragedy

AMONG ITEMS THAT WILL be tossed into the lap of the California Legislature in the forthcoming session is a report, now nearing completion, charging that the state water plan contains elements of "a very great and tragic engineering and political error." An old canard for a new year?

The author of the report is Charles M. Weber, a former state assemblyman, who has been studying state water problems under a legislative grant. In a preview report this week, Weber declared that the Feather, Yuba, and other Northern California rivers at times won't have surplus water for the Feather River Project; that the Oroville Dam will be unduly expensive; that the cost of water will be doubled if the Feather River Aqueduct and Oroville Dam are built as planned; that he has a plan that would double the amount of water the aqueduct could provide.

We've heard these things before, of course.

THERE HAVE ALWAYS BEEN, and probably always will be, disagreements as to the best way of capturing and distributing water on a statewide basis in California. Such disagreements delayed approval of the present water program long past all reason.

The present plan was hammered into shape by years of debate after dozens of false starts, and it rests on a foundation of studies and reports sufficient to support a pyramid. Only the final realization by a majority of lawmakers and voters that further delay would do irreparable harm to a growing state brought the issue to a head. People began to understand that whatever the imperfections of the proposed plan, inaction would be far worse. Without water, arid California would curl up like a dead leaf.

PERFECTION IS RARELY attained in any public program. We frankly doubt that it will be attained in the water program. But the program will provide water, and, according to responsible authority, in adequate quantities.

Mr. Weber's full report will be awaited with interest. If it offers constructive changes within the framework of what has been approved, without bogging the program down in further debate, fine. Meanwhile, the truth is that the "very great and tragic error" would have been further delay in putting the present plan into effect.

Vendor Allows No Manipulated News

By Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—A friend of ours was recently riding with one of Washington's famed—and loquacious—taxi drivers. The driver reported without encouragement from our friend that on Sunday, his day off, he sold newspapers on the steps of Washington's Roman Catholic cathedral, St. Matthew's. He recounted that not so long ago at the conclusion of a Mass a young man came over to the pile of New York Times and stood gazing at the front page.

"The second I laid eyes on the guy," said the driver, "I knew he wasn't going to buy nothing." The driver said his belief was reinforced when the man started lifting a corner of the page and glancing at pages two and three. "Get your hands offa there," he shouted at the non-customer. "This ain't no library." The man apologized and shuffled off.

"I watched him as he went," said the driver, "and I thought there was something familiar about him. Suddenly it comes to me," and the driver mopped his brow at the recollection. "He was Bobby Kennedy."

WE'LL SOON GET A POSTAL rate increase, but the post office department doesn't think the volume of mail will be reduced. The amount of mail handled by the post office in the United States is simply staggering, a fact not generally recognized by critics. They usually point to the mail system in France as being the best in the world. "Sure," say our officials, "but all of the mail handled in one day in all of France is just about the amount handled by our Chicago post office alone."

A much admired feature of the mail system in France is the "pneumatique." For a few cents extra the mail is whizzed along and delivered within Paris in about five hours. The system has been tried out in the U.S. It didn't work. Why not? The affluent society, says Postmaster General J. Edward Day. In France, the mail user carefully counts the extra pennies it will cost him and usually decides the message isn't worth all that. In the U.S., speed, not expense, is the essence. When the system was test run here, the American just gaily put on the extra stamps and postal apparatus was just as overwhelmed by the deluge of letters as it is in ordinary mail.

AMBASSADOR TO ITALY G. Frederick Reinhardt is pondering the inadvisability of holding back routine announcements. He failed to inform the Roman press recently that he was due for a routine trip to Washington for consultation. Meanwhile, a syndicated columnist in the U.S. reported a baseless rumor that Reinhardt was to be recalled and replaced by outgoing Ohio Gov. Mike DiSalle. The DiSalle story hit the front pages in Rome on the same day Reinhardt belatedly announced his return to Washington. The timing of his announcement gave credence to the phony column report.

While Jackie Exuded Cheer, Male Kennedys Fumbled Ball

WASHINGTON — Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy may not have realized it, but sometimes it only takes one generous gesture by a person in high places to set off a chain reaction of generosity. Her visit to the sadly neglected Junior Village in Washington has set off such a reaction. Since Mrs. Kennedy played fairy godmother to the children in the government orphanage in the nation's capital, all sorts of other people have followed her example.

Among them were 13 enlisted men from nearby military stations who spent Christmas Day helping to care for the children. They didn't know much about children, didn't know anything about changing diapers, but, inspired by Mrs. Kennedy, they wanted to help the homeless children of Junior Village feel more at home.

Said Pvt. Gary Bauer of Chicago as he blew up a balloon for a sad-eyed little girl of 3: "She hasn't smiled all day long, and I've been here since early morning."

Just then the little girl smiled.

Another development: Jimmy Hoffa, head of the powerful Teamsters Union, has taken an interest in Junior Village and although there will be no announcement, he is making a sizable contribution.

Finally, requests for adoption of children from the orphanage have doubled in the past month—all following Mrs. Kennedy's visit.

WHILE Jackie Kennedy was building up a lot of goodwill and affection, male members of the Kennedy family seemed to forget the political axiom that the public is more easily impressed with small things than big issues.

One thing that impressed them in late December and early January was the amount of money President Kennedy spent taking members of his cabinet and staff down to Florida by special planes to confer with him when he could have saved the money by remaining in Washington.

The public long has had the idea that the White House is a place to be lived in and worked in. They know that it costs several million dollars to keep it up. They consider it one of the most beautiful houses in the U. S. A., if not the world. They know that 30-some other Presidents have found it a good enough place to live and work in without constant trips to Palm Beach, Newport and Hyannis Port.

So the fact that President Kennedy had a raft of advisers and cabinet members fly down to Florida when they could have conferred in Washington was noted with critical interest, along with the skiing trip to Colorado by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy in a special plane.

FRIENDS of Sen. Wayne Morse, who has battled so vigorously against the public utilities and the power interests, tell this story on the Oregon Democrat: During an election debate, one of Morse's critics shouted at him: "What about the powerful interests that control you?"

Morse shouted back, "You leave my wife out of this!"

HARRY S. TRUMAN and the Soviets have at least one thing in common—abstract art. Truman referred to abstract art as "those ham and egg" pictures. The Communist Party uses more highfalutin language—"degenerate bourgeois influences"—but it all adds up to the same thing. . . . The late Sen. Bob Kerr of Oklahoma was true to his convictions to the very end. Most senators go to the Bethesda Naval Hospital when they are ill where they get the equivalent of medical care—free medical treatment by the U. S. government. But Bob Kerr, who was largely responsible for defeating the Medicare bill in the Senate, died in Doctors Hospital, a private institution. . . . In fairness to Rep. Floyd Breeding, the defeated congressman from Kansas, it should be noted that Mrs. Breeding worked in his office almost every day for six long years but never took a cent of salary. When he put her on the payroll during the last two months of his expiring term—to help pay his heavy campaign debts—she was finally being paid for part of the work she had previously been doing free. Her salary for six years, if she had taken it, would have totaled around $36,000. She got paid $1,900.

August Poll Called Turn and Saw Nixon After Presidency

POLLSTER LOU HARRIS submitted a confidential study last August, 10 weeks before the election, showing Pat Brown led Richard Nixon 53 to 47 per cent. November's final came out Brown 52.6 and Nixon 47.4.

The study ranged through numerous other campaign specifics based on deep interviews of about 1,000 Californians. It is a fascinating record for reasons other than its accurate forecast of the final.

One of the fascinations: Despite Brown's lead, when voters rated four public figures on the kind of job they were doing, Brown scored only 43 per cent positive, 57 per cent negative. This contrasted with positive readings of 71-29 for Sen. Tom Kuchel; 68-32 for President Kennedy; 67-33 for Chief Justice Earl Warren.

Harris, nonetheless, found some good in Brown's score—it was an 8-point improvement over his 35 per cent positive rating of April 1961. The improvement looked better when compared with another poll reading: Queried on a JFK-Nixon 1964 presidential pairing, it was JFK 62-38.

HARRIS resolved, therefore, that California's contest was in many ways a JFK-Nixon race and recommended that JFK come to this state to speak for Brown and that advantageous use could be made of Warren's son's switchover to Brown.

Brown-Nixon favor was weighed also by areas and numerous other factors. Los Angeles read 66-34 for Brown while San Diego was 61-39 Nixon. By occupation, executives and professional people went 61-39 Nixon, farmers 60-40 Nixon, white collars 50-50 and labor 65-35 for Brown.

Protestants favored Nixon 80-40, Catholics were 75-25 Brown and the Jewish rating was 76-24 for Brown. Union membership read 66-34 Brown, nonunion was 54-46 for

HOUSER

Nixon. In nationality groups, Irish gave Brown a 65-35 edge while German went 60-40 for Nixon.

Sex and age were interesting indicators. Males 21 to 34 years old went Brown 61-39; 35-49 years went Brown 59-41; 50 years and older went Nixon 55-45. Females 21-34 went Brown 56-44; 35-49 years went Nixon 52-48; over 50 also was 52-48 Nixon.

THE RACIAL vote divided 51-49 for Nixon among whites; 76-24 for Brown among Negroes and 84-16 for Brown among Mexican-Americans. Upper middle income groups registered 54-46 for Nixon, lower middle was 52-48 for Brown, low was 64-36 Brown. Finally, the reading from registered voters who had not voted in the primary was 62-38 for Brown, a statistic which drew Harris emphasis on registration and get out the vote activities.

It was further recommended that Brown hit hard in his strong areas, Los Angeles, with labor which represented 32 per cent of the electorate and with bread and butter and education issues among the younger voters. The study showed one of four who voted for Republican Joe Shell in the primary would go for Brown.

Nixon's most frequently mentioned positives were experience as vice president, sincerity and honesty, a good family man and good personality and speaker; his negatives, insincere, phony moralist, cold fish, poor speaker and debater, out for himself, mud-slinger.

BROWN'S POSITIVES were that he was for the people, aged and Negroes, honest and sincere, good on water, hard and conscientious worker. Brown's negatives, indecisive and weak, handled Chessman case badly, wild spender and did not enforce narcotics laws.

Perhaps one of the most telling readings of the Harris study was one rating voter opinion on Nixon's prime interests. Running for Governor scored 36, running for President scored 64.

Crime, Prisons Grow, but Prevention Programs Lag

U. P. T. Sacramento Bureau

SACRAMENTO—The most frustrated officials in California are those charged with containing crime and criminals.

They constantly must seek more taxpayers' money to build more prison cells and hire more law enforcement officers and guards. But this stopgap measure only handles the criminals after they have become criminals.

There is little emphasis yet, says the correctional officials, on broad community crime prevention programs. So crime and prisons both grow.

Walter Dunbar, state director of corrections, pointedly asked California communities for help on crime prevention during a recent crime prevention panel discussion in Redding.

In analyzing the 50,000 boys, girls, men and women in confinement or under supervision of the California Youth and Adult Corrections Agency, Dunbar declared:

"Many have deep-seated emotional problems, many lack maturity. They are plagued with the same resentments and defiance of authority they displayed in their home or in elementary school days.

"Are we using every possible means of detecting the youngsters with emotional, maturity problems and do we have a community or school service for counseling them before they turn to crime?"

DUNBAR SAID CALIFORNIA correctional studies show that some men's crimes stem from as simple a problem as inability to get and hold a job.

The typical California felon is 30 years old, of normal or better intelligence, has a seventh grade education but has no trade skill. Most are marginable people but could have been trained for a vocation (other than crime).

"One obvious question a community might ask itself then is: 'Are we providing locally the kind of training, the work opportunity and guidance of young men and women need?' said Dunbar.

Dunbar listed adequate community law enforcement facilities as essential.

"Are special work, laboratory and other facilities available afternoons and at night for those youngsters with energy which they will expend—one way or another?" asked Dunbar.

In calling on schools and other community agencies to recognize and treat children's emotional problems before they trigger a later criminal act, Dunbar has some strong economic arguments.

California crime is much costlier than crime prevention—even if the prevention includes costly psychiatric help and extensive vocational training.

It now costs $10,000 to build a new California prison cell. Subsequent institutional time costs are figured at $1,800 a year for each inmate. Even a parolee costs the state $300 a year. Added on to these costs are the outlays of public assistance checks to the families of criminals.

CORRECTIONAL OFFICIALS already have broad programs of their own underway to prevent convicts from becoming repeaters when they are paroled.

Though correctional staffs are limited, California felons now get counseling, psychological testing and psychiatric help to find the most likely road for rehabilitation.

Though most convicts in California have no bread-and-butter trade when sentenced, correctional officials usually succeed in training them for a marketable vocation.

Half-way houses, work camps and work shelters also are used to aid rehabilitation. And Dunbar has proposed community correctional centers further augment the state correctional processes.

BUT DUNBAR RIGHTFULLY is a little apologetic that such a broad correctional program is necessary in the nation's No. 1 state. He still basically is a prevention man.

Concludes Dunbar: "In all of these facilities, we are trying to help the offender after his criminal pattern has developed. This is almost like waiting until a youth is crippled by polio to give him vaccine."

U. S. Should Start Calling the Shots

EDITOR:

The first lady addressed the 40,000 persons in Orange Bowl stadium in flawless Spanish, and the crowd with moist eyes cheered her short, heart-tugging speech. She is so happy that her son has known the brigade officers, and it is her most solemn wish that some day he may be a man at least half as brave as the members of Brigade 2506.

My, doesn't that ovation just make your heart bleed! And did everyone hear the big speech that was given regarding our 23 Americans who are rotting in Fidel's prisons? What is Jackie shooting for, a contract with MGM or the like.

I believe we are using the patsy attack on this whole situation in Cuba. Therefore, to cover up our mistakes we employ theatrical methods to win the supposed confidence of the American people.

Where is the prudent, aggressive type of individual who does not turn his cheek to be slapped over and over again? When you have a thorn in your side, pull it out. Don't try to eliminate it by using medication. Let's get smart, American people, and live and do what should be expected from the number one nation in the world. We are the number one country on this planet, and no other nation in the world has what the U.S. does.

Why not let the U. S. give the ultimatums for a while and let's quit acting like some poverty stricken, spineless, backward, non-aggressive country who comes in second best.

How Would You Vote on Foreign Aid?

EDITOR:

I wonder what the opinion would be if U. S. citizens during the 1964 Presidential election could vote on these suggestions:

1. Eliminate foreign aid, as it seems the people who need it don't receive what they need.

2. A lottery three times a year where one could purchase a ticket at any post office in the U.S.A. (Gambling? What about the race track?).

Truth Apparently Beginning to Hurt

EDITOR:

Re the letter of R. G. Palmer in the Dec. 25th Public Forum: It seems an increasing number of President Kennedy's supporters advocate silencing any and all opposition or criticism, no matter how well informed or respected the source. Hitler's supporters also favored a press either friendly to the regime or silent.

This sort of thinking is far more dangerous to our freedoms than anything advocated by David Lawrence. There is no place in this country for a person or administration that considers itself above reproach.

It is apparent the truth is beginning to hurt.

Languages in the News

By Charles F. Smith
and Robert Strangman-Dorrie

The Chinese Communists have long referred to the U.S. as tsu lao hu ("paper tiger"), meaning there was nothing to fear from it. The complete Chinese proverb in this regard goes, Tsu lao hu yung i'ch'o ch'uan, meaning, "A paper tiger is easy to break with your finger."

To the aggravation of the Chinese fellow Communists, Chairman Khrushchev, in his recent explanation of Russia's temporizing with the U.S. over Cuba, turned the Chinese proverb around, saying, "The American tiger has atomic teeth." In Chinese, in case there are any Chinese Reds who haven't heard Khrushchev's inventive modification of their proverb, it is, Mei kuo tsu lao hu yun tsu ya, "Mei kuo," the word for America, mean literally "beautiful" (or "fine") land.

Speaking of tigers, paper or otherwise, February, 1962, to February, 1963, is the Year of the Tiger on the traditional Chinese calendar, a good year, perhaps, for tigers to turn around and bite those who have been bedeviling them.

A copy of the Berlitz "Diner's Dictionary" will be mailed to anyone submitting a question used in "Languages in the News."

A Perfect Gift for Mother Is Her Figure

Vickie Mullins just recently had a baby and was frustrated about all kinds of figure problems that developed after her baby arrived. Vickie's new figure is a present from her mother.

as told by: Vickie Mullins,
410 E. South St., Long Beach.

My name is Vickie Mullins and I live at 410 East South St., Long Beach, Calif. I am writing this because it's the holiday season and I am really one happy girl. A few weeks ago my mother, Mrs. Blanche Richette, read an ad that appeared in the Independent Press-Telegram telling about Pat Walker's Stauffer System program. It told about Miss Walker (who is the national figure authority for the Stauffer System) and what wonderful things she has done for people who needed help in reducing.

My mother called and talked to the manager, and she told her that Miss Walker would be in the salon that afternoon and that she could talk to her personally. Miss Walker did. My mother told her about the fact that I had just recently had a baby (this is my baby, Debra Jean, and my mother that's in the picture that you see). She told her that I was beginning to have all kinds of figure problems and how frustrated I was over them because before I had the baby I had a pretty figure. So my mother took me to the salon and they measured me and gave me a figure analysis along with a courtesy treatment, and they told me where I would lose, how long it would take and exactly what it would cost.

My mother gave me a new figure for a Christmas present. It's the best present any mother could give her daughter because it will be something I will have and cherish long after most presents are forgotten. I am losing beautifully; the people in the salon are so nice to me and I am even going to be able to wear a pretty dress on New Year's Eve, not the one I thought I would wear which would hide my abdomen and hips, but a nice sheath. I really feel that I'll have something to celebrate on New Year's because I have a beautiful new baby, a wonderful mother who was thoughtful enough to help me, a husband who is encouraging me, and furthermore, I'll have my figure back. To me, this is great. I am glad mother read that ad.

They measure me every ten days and, honestly, it is hard to believe that you can enjoy

What Others Say About New Figures

Here are a few quotations from the hundreds of grateful letters received from women who have taken the Pat Walker's Stauffer System treatments:

"I lost 22 pounds and 34 inches over all. I lost where I needed to lose — including four inches from my waist, three inches from each thigh and six inches from my abdomen. My family says I look 10 years younger and my new figure has put me on top of the world." — Mrs. Ruth Rundlett.

"Life is so wonderful again," says Mrs. Grace Funder. "For years my dress size was an unattractive 40. Today it is a trim 12. I lost 67 pounds without dieting... without exercise. It was easy. I owe everything to Miss Walker."

"In two months I reduced 19 pounds and trimmed 21 inches from my figure measurements. Aches and pains are gone and I feel wonderful." — Mrs. Jeanette Weinberg.

HAWAIIAN OPENING A SUCCESS

The opening of Pat Walker's Stauffer System in Salon recently in Honolulu, Hawaii, was a tremendous success.

Miss Walker personally supervised the expansion of her salon reducing service to the 49th state, and reported, when she returned to Long Beach, that:

"It is our hope that our thousands of friends in Southern California, when in Honolulu, will look us up for a friendly visit at 1551 Kapiolani Blvd."

No Rigid Diet in Program

Vivacious Pat Walker, who has helped thousands of Southland women to achieve their dreams of a brand new figure, is now directing a new program from her Long Beach Stauffer System Salon, 423 E. First St.

Nationally known as a figure authority, Miss Walker has operated salons here and over the Southland for years and is launching a vast new program. She is the national figure authority for the vast Stauffer system.

NO STARVATION

Women with problems are finding Miss Walker's figure control methods offering them a new way of life without suffering from effects of near starvation.

There is no secret to Miss Walker's success, for across the nation some 4 to 5 million women from ages 14 to 84 have been given a new figure and no secret could be maintained by that multitude of happy women.

The key to the success—or secret if you wish to call it that—is in losing where the loss is needed and in firming and toning the tissue to retain the new figure.

DIET WON'T DO IT

"Under a rigid diet program women will lose weight," says Miss Walker. "But they won't lose it in all the places they should."

"Perhaps the waistline may shrink from hunger but the bulging hips, large thighs, thick ankles and sway back remain after dieting. "Under our system we accept each individual as a separate figure problem."

Women who have no figure problem find our treatments tone their bodies, relax them and soothe the nerves without creating a false appetite.

MRS. STEVENS is now a size 10. She was a size 16 and had to wear boxy jackets and full skirts and was ashamed to be seen in a swimsuit.

As told by Jackie Stevens, 920 Mar Vista, Seal Beach.

I am smiling in this picture and really feel like smiling for a change. About 3 months ago I saw an ad with Pat Walker's picture telling about Miss Walker and the Stauffer System. It was a full page ad and it really impressed me. I went to work the next morning and took the ad with me.

My name is Jackie Stevens and I live at 920 Mar Vista Ave., Seal Beach. I am married and have 2 boys, ages 12 and 8. I am 34 years old. I have a good job with Dean Van Lines in Long Beach. For many years, it seems like forever, I was hiding my figure under a boxy suit or coat, huge handbags and full skirts. My problems were all from the waist down. I had given up slacks and told everyone I didn't like the real truth was I was ashamed to wear a bathing suit. I'm proud to say I'm finished with my treatments. I had fun while getting my figure back. They are awfully nice people in the salon and I enjoyed every moment of it. Now I wear a size 10 dress. Before I wore a 16. I had to because my hips and thighs were so bulky. I lost 7 inches in my hips and 5 inches on each thigh and my legs look decent again.

I thought I'd be scared when they took this picture because it is the first time I'd ever done anything like this but Miss Walker walked up to me and said, "It's people like you that make my work worthwhile." Then she said something that made me laugh and I wasn't nervous anymore and

Pat Walker Says:

Most women are happy to know that under our figure correction program there is no starvation diet.

Not only do we remove unwanted fat where needed, but we firm and tone the tissue so the body holds the new contour.

We consider each woman as an individual case for no two women have figure problems alike. Age is no barrier if a woman decides she wants to improve her figure.

A perfect figure is every woman's most valuable asset and every woman can have it with proper guidance.

We offer all women a free trial treatment and figure analysis and we will inform them how long it will take to make their figure corrections.

Nearly all women have a good figure in their youth. When their figure problems start they have a tendency to slump and poor posture creates problems in the abdomen, hips, thighs and other areas. Nature did not intend it that way.

the photographer snapped the picture and it was all over. I feel I owe Miss Walker and the Stauffer System an awful lot because I'm a much happier woman today than I was before I met them and believe me, when I say you have no idea what it's like to want something as bad as I did — a pretty figure and to have it come true. — Jackie Stevens.

MRS. LILLIAN POLAK was ashamed to be photographed when she was a size 24½ and weighed 209½ pounds. Now she is down to a size 18, has reduced 46 pounds and is still going down.

as told by Lillian Polak, 286 Hermosa, Long Beach

My name is Lillian Polak, I'm a housewife and I live at 286 Hermosa, Long Beach. I am married and have 2 children and 3 grandchildren. I am 56 years old. I wish you could have been me before I went to Pat Walker's Stauffer System. I wish I had a photo of how I looked before I went to reduce with her system. I don't have one because I looked so awful for so many years that anytime anyone ever took a picture of me, I made a point of hiding behind my husband and anyone else who was near me because I was ashamed of how I looked.

One day I was having my usual morning cup of coffee and reading the Independent Press-Telegram and I read about Pat Walker's Stauffer System. That was 2 months ago. I really didn't think they could help me. I had given up so long ago, but anyway I called them. But before I did I called my next door neighbor who is a close friend of mine and asked her if she would go with me because I needed moral support. She said she'd go. Incidentally, she took the treatments too. She looks wonderful and is almost finished. Well, we went in the next day and believe me, that was my lucky day. Miss Walker was there—in person—and she talked to me personally. Somehow just talking to her made me feel that I had a chance to look nice again. At that time I was a size 24½ and weighed 209½ pounds. In this picture I am wearing a size 18 and have lost 46 pounds and still going down.

Sniper Kills 4, Wounds 7 in 6 Months

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—The sniper strikes unseen by night, swiftly felling his victims from behind in a burst of gunfire.

He has struck 11 times in six months.

Only one man has seen him. He died the next day.

The sniper has killed four men and wounded seven others, all Negroes.

He stalks by night an old neighborhood that sprawls from Main Street to the James River in Richmond's central west end.

THE NEIGHBORHOOD, populated mostly by Negroes, has come to know terror; the kind of terror that empties streets at nightfall and sends people behind bolted doors until dawn.

The police bureau has put extra manpower into the area and skilled investigators have pursued every clue.

The sniper last struck on Dec. 1, leaving a 14-year-old boy dead.

The case moves slowly now and clues have grown few, says Lt. F. S. Wakefield, in charge of the investigation.

Each attack by the sniper has followed nearly the same pattern.

THE VICTIMS all have been men, usually young men. He strikes after dark, using a high-powered automatic pistol without warning from behind.

The sniper first hit last June 21. Two young men were wounded by a hail of gunfire. Later that morning a block away, Andre Mills, 42, was found dead.

The second victim was John Anderson, 32, who was shot down Sept. 4 by an "unknown colored male who came up behind him." Anderson lived until the next day but could give police only a sketchy description.

Private Rite for Stimson, Portraitist

Private rites will be held for Joseph B. Stimson, well-known portrait photographer and longtime official year-book photographer at Poly, Wilson and Jordan High Schools.

Stimson, of 3963 Gundry Ave., died Thursday.

A Long Beach resident since 1922, he opened his own portrait studio here in 1933. Active in professional circles, he was a former president of the Long Beach Professional Photographers' Association, past treasurer of the state group and participated in national activities.

He is survived by his wife, Nettie; daughters, Mrs. H. Virginia Ehnann, Mrs. Cecile House; sisters, Misses Olive and Irene Stimson, Mrs. Bess Bourland, Mrs. Helen Spaulding, Mrs. Grace Gochner; brothers, James, Don, Fred; two grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Dillard Family Funeral Directors are in charge.

Princess Spending $238,000 on Home

LONDON (UPI)—Builders have almost completed the $238,000 renovation of a 20-room 17th Century mansion for Princess Margaret and her husband Lord Snowdon. It was disclosed Saturday.

Builders said work progress was almost a "miracle" because they found an underground stream beneath the basement and discovered dry rot and termites.

Express Details

DUBLIN (AP)—The Belfast-Dublin express plunged off the line Saturday night at a speed of 60 miles an hour, but only four of 200 persons aboard were hospitalized.

DOUBLE BLESSINGS AT HOSPITAL

Three sets of twins have been delivered at St. Mary's Hospital since Jan. 1. Mrs. James Davis (left), 1440 Gundry Ave., holds twin girls born Jan. 4; Mrs. Robert Parks (center), 2189 W. 20th St., holds twin boys born Jan. 3, and Mrs. Melvin Atkisson, 530 W. 35th St., holds twin girls born Jan. 2. Normal ratio of twin births is one in every 88 deliveries. At St. Mary's for the first four days of 1963, it was one in 10.

Cuba Permits Swiss to See U.S. Captives

HAVANA (AP)—Swiss officials will be permitted to visit 17 Americans in prison on the Isle of Pines off the south Cuban coast, a responsible source said Saturday.

Informants said three members of the Swiss Embassy will make the trip, possibly today. The Swiss have looked after U.S. interests since Washington severed relations with Havana.

The only reason advanced here was that there was a lack of time to prepare for the trip.

THE SWISS will be permitted to take food parcels to the Americans, the informant said.

The Americans were convicted of crimes against the safety of the state.

Three other American men were held at Principe Castle in Havana and one American woman is in Guanajay Prison, 28 miles west of Havana. The latter four were visited by the Swiss last month.

All the imprisoned Americans were allowed to receive Christmas parcels.

A SWISS spokesman emphasized that efforts to obtain the release of the Americans is continuing, but declined to comment on the progress of negotiations.

Meanwhile, a number of Americans of Cuban descent who had expected to leave for Florida Thursday remain in Havana. They were not permitted to board a Pan American World Airways plane sent to the Cuban capital.

The only reason advanced here was that there was a lack of time to prepare for the trip.

Explosives Truck Detonates, Two Die

JAY EM, Wyo. (AP)—Two truck drivers were killed Saturday when their explosive-laden truck plunged off U.S. 85 in eastern Wyoming and the cargo detonated.

The Wyoming Highway Patrol identified the drivers, as Billy E. Jordan, 31, of Purcell, Mo., and Jack Calvin Carey, 42, of Galena, Kan.

The patrol said the blast ripped the top off the truck and the ensuing fire left the giant tractor-trailer a charred skeleton.

The accident happened about 20 miles south of Lusk, near Jay Em, a small ranching community.

Officers said the truck entered Wyoming from Nebraska and was headed north toward Montana. The driver had reported to a check station at Torrington, Wyo., less than an hour before the crash.

Officers said the manifest showed the truck was carrying explosives in five-pound kegs. An officer said the explosives might have been dynamite, but he was not certain.

Dental Care For O.A.S. Pensioners

Complete information about dental care benefits available to pensioners in this county is available at the Dr. Cowen Dental Offices.

There is no obligation for this service, and personal visits to the office can be made at any time, without advance appointment.

Dr. Cowen points out that the current expanded O.A.S. dental care program provides for 2 different procedures, depending on the type of dental work needed.

"We can provide immediate service, on the very first visit, for those who need X-ray dental examination, or repair or adjustment of their old dental plates," Dr. Cowen points out. "The O.A.S. Identification Card must be presented."

"If new dental plates are needed, the O.A.S. rules require that an authorization be obtained from the Department of Social Welfare, and our staff is at the service of the pensioner for assistance in filling out the application and taking care of the details."

General health is often directly related to the condition of the dental plates, Dr. Cowen added. Plates that are loose, or have teeth missing, can be a handicap to the balanced chewing power that permits the wearer to obtain the healthful nutrition value from the food he eats.

DR. COWEN Says: Modern...Improved DENTAL PLATES

Come in and learn how Modern Dental Science has developed new dentures that overcome many of the disadvantages of old-fashioned "false teeth." Lightweight and strong... designed to help bring you added comfort and healthful chewing power... set with new artificial teeth that have a remarkable resemblance to natural teeth. ## County Employee Seeks Damages

A $350,000 claim for damages has been filed against the County of Los Angeles and five county employees by a sixth county employee.

Clark R. Howard, 30, of Los Angeles, an investigator in the auditor-controller's office, charges defamatory statements, threats to bring about his discharge unless he voluntarily resigned and a threat to arrest him unless he resigned.

Cited by Howard in the claim were his boss, County Auditor-Controller Roscoe Hollinger; William W. Turkington, chief of Hollinger's audit department; Robert A. Gill, executive assistant to Hollinger; and Capt. S. R. Jolivet and Sgt. W. T. Cushman of the sheriff's department.

HOWARD contends the actions are based on a personal dispute between him and J. William Hayes, whom he described as a Beverly Hills television producer and husband of TV actress Nancy Gates.

Instead of backing him up, Howard claims, the county officials have sought to oust him.

The claim was referred to the county counsel's office for study. Hollinger's office declined to comment.

MOST TORN UP ROAD IN TOWN

Plans Call for Widening of Tenth Street Between Redondo and Park

By GEORGE WEEKS
The tearing up of Tenth Street isn't over yet.

Both the city and the county have plans for improvements that mean at least partial blockading of the traffic artery closed more often than any other in Long Beach during the last seven years.

City engineers are drawing specifications for the widening of the street from 36 to 45 feet between Redondo and Park Avenues, a $128,000 project to be financed from gasoline tax funds.

CONSTRUCTION of the first segment, from Redondo to Termino Avenues, is scheduled for the late summer, City Engineer Jess D. Gikerson said.

The more easterly portion will be delayed for at least two years. Meanwhile the county will step in with some digging of its own.

The county improvement is a $1 million storm drain, starting near Termino Avenue, occupying part of Tenth Street and eventually reaching a connection in the Colorado Lagoon area.

ALTHOUGH plans are being prepared, the scheduling is still uncertain. And city road wideners can't begin their job until bill over the storm drain has been compacted, a process requiring many months.

Most of the prolonged blockades that have caused near-rebellion on the part of business men along the street are attributed to county storm drain construction.

City improvements have generally proceeded on schedule, Gikerson said, except for some difficulties in relocating underground utility lines affected by the widening.

The broader street—seven-foot sidewalks on both sides in addition to the 45-foot pavement—has been completed from Alamitos to Redondo Avenue.

8 Homes in Redondo to Be Auctioned Off

Eight homes in the Redondo area will be auctioned by the County Flood Control District next Thursday, starting at 10 a.m.

The houses were acquired by the district in purchasing property for construction of the Redondo Beach storm drain. The district has no use for the homes, however.

The dwellings are at 1740 and 1744 Goodman Lane, 1741, 1742 1745 and 1746 Steinhart Avenue, and 1743 and 1747 Ford Avenue. A minimum bid of $100 has been set on each house.

Successful bidders must remove the houses by Feb. 15.

The number of children in Los Angeles County attending half-day sessions was 22,821 in 1962, an increase of 2,843, according to Dr. C. C. Trillingham, county superintendent of schools.

Most affected were the first three grades, Dr. Trillingham said.

There were 12,136 first-grade children, 6,585 second-graders and 1,972 third-graders attending school on a part-time basis, he added.

The range of children in half-day sessions was from 71 in one district to 14,431 in another, the county superintendent reported.

New Exemption Rule

L. P. T. Los Angeles Bureau

Claims for tax exemptions by veterans or churches will not be accepted by the county assessor's office until after March 4, County Assessor Philip E. Watson announced Saturday.

New claim forms will be used for the first time this year, Watson said.

In prior years, veterans' and churches' exemption claims could be filed at any time.

THE NEW forms, together with a set of instructions on how to file the claim, will be mailed to all churches and all veterans who received exemptions on real property in 1962, Watson said.

Veterans who have filed previously and who do not own real estate will be sent claim forms on request, he added.

Veterans who will be filing for the first time must appear in person at an assessor's office and present evidence of qualifying service in the armed forces.

WATSON SAID he expected that in the future most veteran and church exemptions would be claimed by mail. Deadline for filing for the exemption is May 6.

Taxpayers may file in person or by mail at the main office of the assessor in the Hall of Administration, 500 W. Temple St., Los Angeles, or in any branch office. Local branch offices include the Long Beach County Building, 415 W. Ocean Blvd., and in San Pedro at 1019 S. Pacific Ave.

the Leader." Belote is cadet commander of Squadron 93.

Pupils on Half-Day Sessions Increase

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The 1962 Northern California construction strike forced an increase in the number of students on half-day session in the California public schools.

Roy E. Simpson, state superintendent of public instruction, said that 67,992 students were attending classes on a half-day basis in the current fall semester. The total was up from 66,173 a year earlier but down from the 93,952 half-day students in 1960.

Simpson said 18,247 of the students were on half-day sessions because the construction strike delayed occupancy of many classrooms.

new areas caused marked changes in the half-day scheduling, Dr. Trillingham said. Five districts showed an increase in half-day classes, while four showed a decrease. There were six districts which went on half-day sessions for the first time last year. Seven districts which previously had half-day sessions did not require them last year.

Although classroom construction is under way in many districts, anticipated enrollment indicates the added space will not accommodate all the students without part-time classes, Dr. Trillingham said.

OLSZEWSKI HEADS 7TH CENTURY SPORTS NIGHT

JOHNNY OLSZEWSKI
Fabulous Career, Preps Through Pros

By HANK HOLLINGWORTH
Executive Sports Editor

Johnny Olszewski, one of the greatest football players in Long Beach history, will be the principal honoree at the Long Beach Century Club's seventh annual Sports Night Banquet on Jan. 24 in the Lafayette Hotel.

The official announcement was made Saturday by Century Club president Miles Sines.

Johnny-O follows in the footsteps of some of the world's finest athletes from Long Beach, who have been similarly honored in the half-dozen previous Century Club fetes.

Long Beach's other award winners in past years have been two-time double Olympic Games diving champion Pat McCormick (1957), the Cleveland Indians' seven-time 20-game pitching hero Bob Lemon (1958); Olympic Games' medal winner and now the greatest female long-distance swimming champion in history, Greta Andersen (1959); New York Yankee pitcher Bud Daley (1960); veteran football placekicking expert Ben Agajanian (1961); and baseball's most famous humorist, Rocky Bridges (1962).

Olszewski, only known athlete in sports history to wear the number "0" on his uniform, has had a fabulous gridiron career from high school days, through college and into professional ranks.

His name first blazed across the sports pages in the late '40s when he starred for the CIF championship St. Anthony High School eleven. Johnny's prep career was climaxed when he was named CIF football player-of-the-year.

He proceeded to the University of California for four years, where he received all-America recognition along with another still-active former Golden Bear, Les Richter of the Rams.

Johnny-O then spent the next 10 seasons in professional football—with the Chicago Cardinals, Washington Redskins and Detroit Lions of the National League, then this past season with the Denver Broncos of the American League.

Olszewski won't be the only athlete to be honored Jan. 24 as the Century Club plans a half-dozen special major awards, a number of awards to state and national championship Long Beach teams, and individual awards to athletes who have attained national recognition during the past year.

For the third consecutive year, witty Paul Salata, former USC and San Francisco 49er star, will be master of ceremonies.

Special entertainment is planned for the first time at this banquet by the Century Club. Details will be announced at a later date.

A special award—one that has been of particular significance for three straight banquets—also will be included this year: To Long Beach's most popular athlete. Ballots will be printed in the Independent and Press-Telegram later this week for readers to vote for their most popular athlete to follow in the footsteps of previous winners Bob Soth, Vicki Van Hook and Ron Fairly.

Banquet chairman Wayne Bryson and ticket chairman Dean O'Hare already have reported the largest advance sale in the banquet's seven-year history. Choice seating arrangements still are available for the general public on a first-come, first-serve basis—through a special ticket box on page D-2 of today's sports section, and at Kenny's Sporting Goods Store and Apple Valley Steak House.

Svare Named Full-Fledged Rams Coach

HARLAND SVARE
Youngest NFL Coach

By JERRY WYNN

Remove that asterisk from the name of Harlan Svare. He is now the full-fledged head coach of the Rams.

Appointed as interim coach to succeed Bob Waterfield late in the 1962 season, Svare was named to the permanent position Saturday by club owner Dan Reeves. He received a one-year contract at an undisclosed salary.

"I couldn't be happier," said the former New York Giant linebacker and defensive coach who, at 32, becomes the youngest head coach in the National Football League.

Svare announced that he will have an entire new staff of assistants.

Hampton Pool, former Ram head coach and for the past three seasons offensive assistant, will be retained by the club in the capacity of a consultant to Reeves and will not participate in active coaching. Vic Lindskog, offensive line coach, was released.

Svare said he will appoint new offensive backfield, line and end coaches and has asked Les Richter to retire as a player to become defensive coach with Lindon Crow as assistant in charge of the backfield. Crow was not asked to retire.

"Les told me he wants a little time to consider the offer," said Svare. "I hope he will join the staff."

In announcing the appointment of Svare, Reeves emphasized that "he was my choice all along and the only person contacted for the job. The only reason I delayed my decision was to sit down with

LaRusso's Foul Shots Break Tie

By DON HARDIN

The Lakers are no longer pretenders to the throne. Before a crowd of 14,986—the largest National Basketball Assn. gathering of the season—at the L.A. Sports Arena Saturday night, the Lakers eked out a 108-104 victory over the erstwhile champions, the Boston Celtics.

It was new, but all-pro Jerry West who ignited the late spark which carried the Lakers to their third victory over Boston in four encounters this year. Elgin Baylor, who was banned from the game with six personals with 6:13 to go, still managed to contribute 26 points. However, West led the team with 27, nine in the final quarter; Rudy LaRusso, just as great in the clutch as was West, had 18.

CO-LEADER

ED FURGOL displays pleasure after round of 67, good for three-way tie for lead in L.A. Open. Dutch Harrison and Bob Rosburg share top spot.

By JERRY WYNN

Golf tournaments make strange bedfellows.

A withered-arm wonder, a 52-year-old club pro and a sloop-shouldered scrambler are leading the $55,000 Los Angeles Open today.

Ed Furgol, whose right arm hangs limp; Dutch Harrison, the popular old Arkansas Traveler, and Bob Rosburg, the pudgy putting whiz, are the threesome with the least-some.

They finished Saturday's surprising second round with 36-hole totals of 138—Furgol and Harrison shooting four-under par 67s and Rosburg a 70.

AS STUNNING as the rise to prominence of Furgol and Harrison—both considered old dogs in a battleground of young lions—was the descent of Gene Littler, the first round leader.

After a sensational opening 65, gentleman Gene skidded to a 72 Saturday and had to cope with almost every trap and tree on the sprawling Rancho course to arrive at that figure. Even so, he clung to the lead with two holes to play only to tumble with bogies on the final two holes.

Littler's total of 137 left him one stroke behind the leaders in a second place tie with big George Bayer, little Jerry Barber and Canadian Al Balding.

CO-WATCHERS

LOOMING menacingly as play moves into the third round today is Arnold Palmer, who fired his second successive 69 Saturday to share third place at 138 with Billy Maxwell, Art Wall and Jerry Steelsmith.

In all, there are 43 players within five strokes of the lead in one of the tightest traffic jams in tournament history.

The cutoff score to advance was 145, and 81 pros and one amateur were successful. Notable among failures were three of the top 10 money winners of 1962—Doug Sanders, Dave Ragan and Bob Nichols—as well as such veteran stars as Doug Ford and Cary Middlecoff.

HITTING 145 on the button was U.S. Open champion Jack Nicklaus. PGA champion Gary Player and defending champion Phil Rodgers are in good position at 140.

Only two Long Beach players will be back today. Pinky Stevenson carded an outstanding 69 Saturday for 144 and Larry Bouchee, the lone amateur left, had a 71 for 141.

Despite two birdies, Jack Doss of Virginia CC shot 77 for 146 to miss the cut by one shot. Jim Ferrie ended at 148 and Gerald Zar at 152.

A THROG of 14,600 rambled over the Rancho fairways on a beautiful golfing day that surprisingly was not conducive to lusty scoring. The 67s by Furgol and Harrison,

Baseball Mourns Hornsby's Death

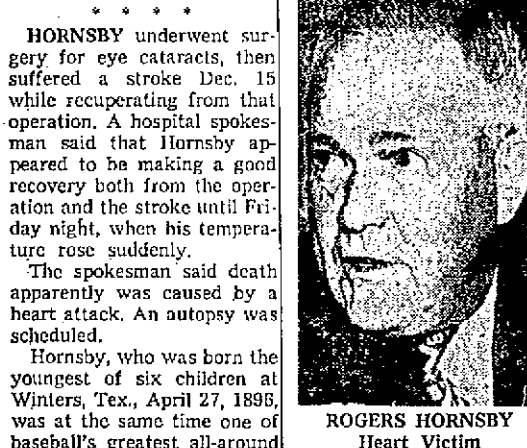

CHICAGO (UPI)—Rogers stars and most baffling enigmas, whose record .424 average for one season and .358 lifetime mark for 23 big league campaigns established him as the greatest right-handed hitter in baseball history, died Saturday at the age of 66.

The tough, uncompromising and outspoken Hornsby, who for almost a half century fought with the great names of baseball from Judge Kene-saw Mountain Landis to Roger Maris, died at 8:15 a.m. PST at Wesley Memorial Hospital, where he had been a patient since Dec. 9. The hard-bitten native of Winters, Tex., had served as a scout for the New York Mets in 1962.

HORNSBY underwent surgery for eye cataracts, then suffered a stroke Dec. 15 while recuperating from that operation. A hospital spokesman said that Hornsby appeared to be making a good recovery both from the operation and the stroke until Friday night, when his temperature rose suddenly.

The spokesman said death apparently was caused by a heart attack. An autopsy was scheduled.

Hornsby, who was born the youngest of six children at Winters, Tex., April 27, 1896, was at the same time one of baseball's greatest all-around

U.S. SENATE INVESTIGATES PRO FOOTBALL

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Senate investigators are conducting a preliminary study into possible point-shaving and fixes in professional football and some other professional sports.

The preliminary staff study has produced no evidence to date of improprieties, however.

The Senate's interest in some professional sports was highlighted by the National Football League's inquiry into the associations of some NFL players with "undesirables."

Celtics' viewpoint it seems just as well that he is going to coach Boston College next year, Bill Russell, the Celtics' all-star center, was held to 12 points by Gene Wiley, Jim Krebs and LeRoy Ellis, but Sweet William had 17 rebounds in the first half to keep the Lakers from pulling away.

The Celtics' best player by far is John Havlicek, the ex-Ohio State star, who was high point man for Boston with 24.

Little Rock Cancer to International

CLEVELAND (UPI)—President Gabe Paul of the Cleveland Indians angrily objected to the inclusion of Little Rock in the International League Saturday night and made a surprising proposal that the disbanded American Association be restored.

"Purely on a matter of principle, I won't give five cents to see Little Rock come into the International League," said Paul. "Little Rock has a history of poor race relations. What it amounts to, is that they have taken the most solid league (International) and contaminated it with cancer."

Bruins, Trojans Bow Again

Huskies Stave Off Late UCLA Comeback, 67-63

SEATTLE (AP)—Washington lost two starters on fouls midway in the second period Saturday night, but fought off a closing challenge by UCLA and whipped the Bruins 67-63 for its second successive basketball victory over the ninth-ranked team.

Playing a slow, pattern game, the Huskies led all the way except for a brief moment four minutes from the final gun.

UCLA, rallying from an eight-point deficit, rolled in a string of 10 to take a 59-57 lead. Substitute Bob Flowers got free for a lay-up to tie the count for Washington and Charlie Hart beat his man for another to make it 61-59 and the Bruins could not catch up again.

Steve Wilson fouled out of the Husky lineup with 11 minutes to play and Dale Easley followed him to the bench two minutes later. The score then was 54-43 for Washington and substitutes

Smith Sparks Cal Splurge to Start 2nd Half

BERKELEY (AP)—California scored its second victory Saturday in two nights over Southern California, 78-69, by putting together an eight-point spree at the start of the second half and building it into an insurmountable margin.

Dick Smith hit for six of the eight points opening the second 20 minutes of play and went on to lead the Bears with 24 points. Gordie Martin scored 24 for Southern California.

The score at the half was 37-31, California. With only two minutes gone in the second half it was 45-31 and the Bears were home free.

Cal is 10-2 on the season. USC is 10-4.

The Bears fired a 48.5 field goal percentage, the Trojans 34.5. The difference was in the Bears' 33 field goals to the Trojans' 19.

USC led for the first seven minutes of the game. The Bears went on top 9-8 and

NEW CRUSADE BOWL HIT BY BAD WEATHER

BALTIMORE (UPI) — An aerial battle which was shaping up to get the first Crusade Bowl off the ground today may be grounded by the weather.

Griffing's Passes, Goal Line Stand Save South, 33-27

MOBILE (UPI) — Quarterbacks Glynn Griffing of Mississippi and Gary Cuozzo of Virginia and a magnificent goal line stand in the final seconds paced the South to a 33-27 victory over the North Saturday in the 14th annual Senior Bowl game before 38,048 fans.

THE SECOND Yankee score came on a razzle-dazzle play — fullback Dave Katterhenrick of Ohio State caught a lateral from Al Snyder of Holy Cross at the four while Snyder was being smothered by Southern defenders after catching a pass from Gross.

GRIFING PASSED for three touchdowns and Cuozzo tossed to South Carolina's halfback Billy Gambrell for the first score of the game. Gambrell later caught a touchdown pass from Griffing.

FROM THE starting team the Trojans lose a fullback (Ben Wilson), a blocking back (Ken Del Conte) and a tackle (Marv Marinovich).

Charge AAU in Scare Campaign

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The executive director of the U.S. Track and Field Federation Saturday attacked suspension of Jim Dupree by the Amateur Athletic Union as part of a "scare campaign" and asserted it was a "flagrant example... of the lengths to which the AAU will go."

THE SHARPLY worded statement by Werner came as the president sought to bring a truce between the warring AAU and Track and Field Federation to assure the United States with the strongest representation in track and field during the 1964 Olympics.

Werner, obviously disturbed by the Dupree incident, said that the action "again shows the AAU contempt for United States athletes and disdain for President Kennedy's attempts to

Nationals Rout Southwest in Challenge Bowl

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (UPI) — Accurate passing by quarterback Charlie Furlow of Mississippi State and the running of backs Bill Thornton and Bobby Santiago Saturday gave the National All-Stars a 33-13 victory over the Southwest in the first Southwest Challenge Bowl.

A HELPING HAND IN TIME OF NEED
North quarterback Jerry Gross pushes his fullback, Dave Katterhenrick, for a few extra yards before the South's Jim Dunaway makes stop. South won, 33-27.

Tab Lions as Runners-up Vie

MIAMI (UPI) — The Detroit Lions, still smarting over their divisional loss to the world champion Green Bay Packers, ruled a rugged eight-point favorite Saturday on the eve of their run-up playoff game with Pittsburgh in the Orange Bowl.

Crozier Nabs San Carlos 'Cap

By ERNIE MASON
Fred W. Hooper's Crozier blazed through the stretch and scored his second Santa Anita stakes victory Saturday in the $61,100 San Carlos Handicap. Crozier's triumph, by nearly a length, came at the expense of Olden Times, also runner-up to Crozier on opening day. The San Carlos drew 10 of the best sprinters in training and Crozier demonstrated

First Sailboat Show Is Unique

The curtain went up Friday night on the first annual International Sailboat and Yacht Show at the Long Beach Arena and, most certainly, it is unique to say the least. It's also a big gamble on the part of producer F. H. (Skip) Cregar, who lives, sleeps, eats and dreams sailboat. The show is scheduled for nine days and it appeals naturally to a specific segment of the boating public.

Everybody likes to watch beautiful sailboats on the water, but a real sailor has to be a man or woman absolutely dedicated to the sea and canvas and sleek hulls. This columnist certainly wishes the best for Cregar. It would be a tremendous boost for sailing in Long Beach if the show were successful enough to go into other years. Cregar is certain that it will.

The setting of colorful sails in the gigantic Arena is a beautiful sight—enough to raise a thump in a real sailing man's throat. Boats range from the tiny Sabots to the large 35-footers that carry four or more persons comfortably.

Numbers of manufacturers have sent their complete lines to the show and all exhibits are arranged on the single level of the Arena.

HERE ARE SOME OF THE EXHIBITS you'll find in the Arena:

Stan Miller's new cur-top catamaran; Pearson's Alhambra 35 and the new cabin packet; Continental's Lapworth L-24; all the O'Day boats of Boston; Tradewinds motor sailer and Choy Lee's Lion Class 35, both from Hong Kong; Carter Pyle's Pacific Catamaran.

DeMora Marine's Flying Dutchman; Sidney Dinghy's 30-footer from Seattle; Glass Laminates' four boats; G-Z Products of Sacramento is showing a new line of fiberglass boats.

Skip Cregar has his own new 26-footer in the show, along with Aquacat's line and Steve Bragg's radical Trimaran.

Because of the tremendous height off the Arena, manufacturers have the opportunity of rigging their boats with full sail to show how much canvas can be carried.

Also, it gives a chance to show the deep hulls, which an average person never sees when a boat is sailing off-shore.

There also is a complete line of accessories and equipment that go with sailing. There will be daily lectures touching on such subjects as navigation, boat handling, fundamentals of sailing, equipment, boat care and maintenance and racing.

Buffum's Marina store is conducting a daily fashion show of yachting and leisure clothing.

IT'S LATER THAN YOU THINK! January is here and that means a 1963 fishing license is required of all persons 16 year of age and older who fish in the ocean, except public piers connected to land. Breakwaters, although connected with land in most instances, are not in the pier category.

A fishing license, unlike a hunting permit, is good from Jan. 1 to Dec. 31. The basic $3 license entitles the holder to fish in the ocean for any type of fish or to take frogs, but he must adhere to limit regulations.

To fish in inland waters for warm-water fish (catfish, bass, crappie and bluegill), the license holder must add a stamp that costs one dollar. If he intends to fish also for trout, he must add another dollar stamp.

And even with that assortment of license and stamps costing a total of five dollars, he still must spend another two dollars for an Arizona stamp if he intends to fish in the Colorado River.

Nonresidents must pay a basic $10, plus the stamps, but there is a special provision for them—a special 10-day stamp for three dollars to fish in the ocean. Any resident of California wishing to fish only three days (in a year) in the ocean can buy a special license for one dollar.

THIS WEEKEND MARKS THE END of California's migratory waterfowl shooting season and that means that, should you want to shoot ducks, it's either Mexico or the flighted mallard ducks. The clubs will be open through February and March.

Incidentally, the state's Imperial Waterfowl Management Area is sold for today so there is little need in trying for the first-come, first-served basis. Geese hunting there has attracted an unusually large number of hunters this weekend.

Al Zapanta, the sportsman's travel agent in Los Angeles, calls attention to the sudden death of Al Pfeiffer, the noted taxidermist of Miami, late in December. There probably are numbers of fish mounts in Long Beach which Pfeiffer did.

Bill Bucknam, of Bigfoot Ranch Lodge, Klamath River, sends word that steelhead fishing is at a peak now with anglers taking fish from 8 to 12 pounds along the entire river between Happy Camp and Iron Gate Dam.

Seiad, the mouth of the Scott River and the mouth of Beaver Creek are especially productive. Water is clear enough that lures are attracting fish and fishermen are not having to resort to egg clusters. It must be remembered, however, that a big storm could change the situation in just a matter of hours. So watch the weather.

that he may emerge as the winter's top handicap star. The 5-year-old son of My Babu was held off the fast early pace set by favored Native Diver, moved fast coming into the stretch and then caught Olden Times and held his margin. Native Diver was up to Crozier on opening day, third and Crimson Satan was fourth.

The winning time for seven furlongs was 1:21 1/5, a fifth of a second off the stakes record set in 1961 by Bolero. Crozier was coupled with Winonly and the Hooper entry returned $12.60, $4.20 and $2.80. Olden Times paid $3.80 and $2.60 and Native Diver returned $3.20.

Jockey Braulio Baeza, who on opening day took himself off Crozier, because he had just returned from a vacation and did not feel he could do the horse justice, gave the winner a well-rated ride.

As expected, the fast-breaking Native Diver shot out of the starting gate on top and by the time the field had crossed into the main track he had a lead of nearly two lengths.

Tony Lee was in close pursuit with Olden Times three lengths back of him and Crozier in the middle of the pack.

GOING INTO THE turn, Native Diver held his lead and Tony Lee clung to second place with Olden Times still third. But by then Crozier was moving between horses and closing ground rapidly.

Olden Times caught Native Diver at the eighth pole but Crozier moved fast on the outside, got to the front at the sixteenth pole and then took a lead of about a length and held it to the finish.

Native Diver cut out a blazing early pace, passing the half mile in 44 2/5 seconds and the five furlong marker in 1:08 4/5.

Crozier's victory was worth $38,000 and boosted his earnings to almost $500,000.

Crimson Satan was closing fast to get up for fourth and indicated he might be a serious contender in longer races.

The largest daily double payoff of the meeting, $622.40, resulted when Proud Lime-light, a 30-1 shot, won the second race after Would Reward, a mild favorite, took the first.

Hornsby Great Hitter, Man Eulogizes Baseball Brass

(Continued From Page D-1) He was a failure in five managerial jobs. BASEBALL commissioner Ford Frick, who as a sports writer saw Hornsby play in his heyday, said Hornsby was "a great example to ball players because of his attitude toward the game. He was frank and outspoken in everything he did. His records speak for him as a player."

Warren Giles, president of the National League, said, "Rogers was a rugged individualist, a great competitor fully dedicated to baseball." Joe Cronin, president of the American League, added, "He was truly one of the great hitters of all time. The fans of his generation will never forget him."

Hornsby's later years were spent as a TV and radio announcer... running a baseball school in Chicago... and serving as coach or scout for various teams. He remained as always baseball's lone wolf, its angry man, the master craftsman who could not get along with people.

Queen Wilma in Invitational

'Wonderful Wilma' Rudolph, a three-gold medal winner in the Rome Olympic Games, has accepted an invitation to compete in the 60-yard dash at the Invitational track and field meet in the L.A. Sports Arena Jan. 19.

The Tennessee State coach will be joined by teammate Edith McGuire, one of the nation's outstanding sprinters. Wilma holds the 60 indoor record.

Reserved seat tickets are now available at the L.A. Sports Arena and the Invitational meet office, NE 6-2111.

'62 Not as Good a Year as Hoped for at Start

By JACK LEFLER
NEW YORK (AP)—Evidence mounted in this first week of 1963 that 1962 was a good year for business, but not as good as hoped for at the beginning.
Good year end reports came out about automobile production and sales, steel output, the level of new construction and the payment of corporate dividends.
On the darker side, losses piled up from a longshoremen's strike that has shut down ports on the East and Gulf Coasts, and newspaper strikes which have closed nine dailies in New York City and two in Cleveland.
The brightest results were posted by the automobile industry, which turned out 6,935,380 passenger cars last year, second only to 1955, when 7,942,125 were assembled. The total was 25.7 per cent above 1961.
ALL FIVE manufacturers exceeded their 1961 output. The increases ranged from 10 per cent for Chrysler to 37 per cent for General Motors.
Sales of U.S.-produced cars were estimated at 6.75 million, against 5,556,167 in 1961.
With many plants operating only 3 1/2 days or less because of the New Year's holiday, production last week was held to an estimated 112,000 cars, compared with 109,990 last week and 121,953 a year ago.
The outlook for the first quarter of this year is for production of 1.9 million autos, which would make it one of the best first quarters in the industry's history.
While the steel industry's performance wasn't impressive, it managed to top 1961 production. With only one working day, Dec. 31, not included, 1962 output totaled 98,144,000 tons, about 500,000 tons above the previous year.
MANY STEEL producers expect January to be their best month since last May. Some have their sights set on an output of around 6 million tons. One steel executive said: "I suspect that the improvement in January will be based on better business than customers may have thought they were going to have at this time, as of a couple of months ago."
The Commerce Department reported that new construction reached a record $81.1 billion last year, up 7 per cent from 1961. Investment in private construction amounted to $43.4 billion, and in public construction $17.8 billion.
It was a good year for many stockholders as far as dividends were concerned. There were 1,086 dividend increases against 902 in 1961 and 1,261 extra dividend declarations against 1,169. Resumptions of suspended dividends numbered 168, compared with 146 the previous year.
THE COMMERCE department came out with two sets of statistics for November which were important in drawing a clearer picture of the state of the economy.
Private housing starts were at an annual rate of 1,544,000 units, little changed from October but 13 per cent above a year earlier.
Manufacturers' new orders attained another record, rising 0.6 per cent from October, to $34 billion. Manufacturers' sales rose 1.5 per cent to $34 billion.
President Kennedy was reported willing to settle for a step-by-step reduction of personal and corporate income taxes by between $5 billion and $10 billion. This concession for a gradual cut was said to be aimed at gaining support of Congressmen who are apprehensive of a bigger federal budget deficit.

KENNEDY envisions a recession-level unemployment rate if Congress fails to cut taxes promptly. His proposal is expected to be submitted later this month.
Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., said "a whole network of links" exists in the ownership of some of the nation's biggest banks. He promised that the House Banking Committee, which he will head in the new Congress, will consider legislation to "correct any abuses that may be shown."
In initial comment, some bankers disputed Patman's charges.
The merger-minded railroad industry was encouraged by the Interstate Commerce Commission's authorization for the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad to control the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

WHILE THE ICC did not commit itself as to future action, some industry sources felt its action improved the chances of approval of other mergers, including the New York Central Railroad with the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Remarkable food helps people over 40 enjoy vibrant living

AFTER 40 your body begins to feel the years and, chances are, you lack the pep and energy you had when you were younger.

- You can't roll back the calendar, but you can help build up your energy and endurance by fortifying your diet with the vital nutrients found in Kretschmer Wheat Germ.
- Nature has stored an abundance of nutritional wealth in wheat germ, which supplies 30 elements essential to health and energy. Wheat germ gives you more natural vitamins, minerals and protein than any other single food.
- Calorie for calorie, Kretschmer Wheat Germ actually offers you more all-around nutrition than meat, eggs, milk, bread, fruits, or vegetables.

- In addition to providing an abundance of natural nutrition, Kretschmer Wheat Germ boosts your energy and endurance by acting like a spark plug to help your body use other high-energy foods more fully.
- Kretschmer Wheat Germ is the "growth" part, or germinating heart, of the wheat made into tiny toasted flakes. It can be added to cereal or fruit, used in baking and breadings, served in many interesting ways.
- Why not help build up your pep and energy by adding Kretschmer Wheat Germ to your meals? It's economical, costing only about 3¢ a day. You'll find Kretschmer Wheat Germ, plain or with Sugar 'n Honey, in vacuum-sealed jars in the cereal section of your food store.

CITIES UNDER THE SEA Diving Vessel May Show Way

By JOSEPH L. MYLER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Men some day may build cities under the sea.

Already they are designing atomic plants which could supply such submarine communities with power and heat.

Deep-diving vessels built for oceanic research may be the precursors, it has been speculated, of transports linking sea bottom cities with the surface world.

The most immediate economic incentive for considering the feasibility of underwater communities appears to lie in the well-established fact that billions of tons of valuable metals litter the ocean floor.

IN THE LONG future, it conceivably could turn out that the pressure of growing populations on the continents might drive mankind to seek living space in the sea. That notion appears at least to be no more fanciful than the idea of colonizing the moon and mars.

According to the Westinghouse Electric Corp., a recent study financed by the company and the power branch of the Office of Naval Research established the practicability of atomic power plants under the sea.

A large undersea reactor is now in the preliminary design stage at the company's Astronuclear Laboratory in Pittsburgh. It would be capable of producing 3,000 kilowatts of electricity, enough for a community of 6,000 persons. The plant would be the kind that converts heat directly into electricity and thus would need no moving parts.

RICHARD C. CUNNINGHAM of Westinghouse, noting that 70 per cent of the earth is covered with water, said that "if man could establish an undersea community as a base for geological studies or mining operations, it would be comparable to discovering a new world."

"But like outer space exploration," Cunningham said, "undersea work would require that man bring his environment with him. And, like space flight, this would require large amounts of power to sustain life in such an environment."

The undersea atomic plant would be 46 feet high and 20 feet in diameter. The Navy-Westinghouse study indicates it could operate unattended at full power for 18 months.

Spring Begins to Take Shape

...I, P-T Brings on-the-Spot Coverage of N.Y. Showings

By MARY ELLIS
I, P-T Fashion Editor

NEW YORK CITY—Fashionable midtown New York is many things to many people.

It is, of course, the world's largest building (102 stories); it is the melting pot of nationalities and cultures; it is the more than 200 fashionable shops where elegance is a product and customers part with countless dollars.

But to 250 fashion editors from over the nation, here attending the unveiling of spring-summer collections by the nation's leading designers, it is the ivory tower of haute couture.

HERE, where fashion is big business, designers have the busiest drawing boards in all the world.

From them have come more head-turning looks than a whole season of world tennis matches at Wimbledon. . . looks that make headlines and by-lines from hither to yonville, from Hong Kong to Yonkers.

The coming season promises to be no exception.

As chill winds blow outside, the nation's trend-setting designers are set to show their first breath of spring fashions to the nation's press at swank Hotel Pierre across from Central Park.

THE UNVEILING starts Monday in an event-packed week which will end with a chartered flight to Nassau, where more styles will be previewed by the week-sponsoring New York Couture Group.

Today we're giving you a glimpse of some of the newest trends for spring, along with the designers who created them.

For more detailed, on-the-spot reports of what Miss and Mrs. America will be wearing come spring, watch the women's pages for daily wire stories this week.

LONG BEACH 12, CALIF., SUNDAY, JAN. 6, 1963 SECTION W

GLAMOUR GOES FULL-LENGTH in this simple ball gown presented by Toni Carnegie, president of house of Hattie Carnegie. Fashioned in shades of pink-on-pink Velours de Coupe, skirt is gently shaped, molded to small waistline. Brief jacket is lined with emerald satin.

NEW FOR SPRING . . . wrist length overblouse dress by Hannah Troy, attractive head of her own successful New York house. Also newsworthy: tiny sleeves that puff; neckline that scoops.

FROM THE DRAWING BOARD of talented Alice Berman, stylist for House of Branel, comes another costume (her trademark) fashioned of silk chiffon and wool . . . here in glowing coral. Jeweled embroidery on lacy wool jacket matches sparkle of dress bodice.

The Wild Waves Say . . .

By Iola Masterson • I. P.T. Women's Editor

NOW IS the season for early to bed and early to rise nights once again, at long last. But wasn't it a dippy-doodle time while it lasted. Have a grand potpourri of year's end notes — all shapes and sizes of parties and events, so awaaway we go.

Two big, bouncy, beautiful parties — the guest lists richly interlaced — sparked the weekend and both were largely Long Beach Yacht Club inspired. Outgoing Commodore Bill Hardcastle and wife, Caroline, said thanks to board, committee chairmen and workers-at-large, who expended plenty of elbow grease during Bill's term, at a cocktail open house in their home.

About an even 100 were present including Helen and Jonah Jones, Sally and Kosta George, Helen and Harold Teeple, Dee and Don Horton, Marion and Stan Mashburn, Madge and Hal Halvorsen, Blanche and Phil Wiedrick, Jean and Keith Brockett, Eve and "Sal" Mope, Debbie and Bud Weinheimer, Conrad Lucke and Elizabeth Stewart.

SECOND OF the sparkle plenty dates was incoming IBYC Commodore Frank Mansuy and Margaret's cocktail party Sunday. Gay and chatter-filled, it swept merrily through the hours from 3 until 8 p.m.—and then some.

In addition to many of those at the Hardcastles', also spotted were "Willie" and Ed Bourne ("Willie" sporting a leg cast to heal a broken ankle which she expects to have to continue to "sport" until May), Rhea Pigott and Red Montgomery, Audrey and Don Helmer, June and Bob Dilday and Pauline Dilday plus the Burr Dildays, Joan and John Knight, Juanita and George Heineich, Ann and Lloyd Greeno and La Nelle and Ray Fosholdt.

Well, old '62, you can't say you didn't have some rich moments in your waning hours!

NOTHING IN town topped the Junior League's Debutante Ball last Saturday for elegance and glamor—for pre-ball and post-ball festivities. The ball and the debs have been previously re-counted in print, but did you know about the grand wind-up—an after the ball is over gala at Dorothy and Lee Wiltse's home co-hosted by Virginia and Jerry Desmond and Marge and Edison Demler?

This tres gal affair couldn't start, of course, until about 1:30 a.m. and continued, Manhattan style, until about 5:30 in the morning when the last of the handsome, happy young people made their departure. A night to remember forever.

The post-ball party also honored members of the ball committee. The Wiltse's generous Park Estates home was "expanded" to even larger proportions by huge canopied section which extended into their garden.

A spattering of the adults present, having as much fun as the youngsters, were Betty and "Bix" Bixby, Jane and Jim Kresl, B.J. and Russ Green, Helene and Jack Drown, Vivian and Monty Yunker, Joan and Ed Losche, Liz and Don Wallace (Liz was ball chairman), Jean and Morris Samuel and Jean and Jim Burdge.

TOPPING OFF THE hollays with a real splash were those couples who flew to Las Vegas Sunday morning — returned mid-day New Year's. And with the preceding item in mind, consider this — one of the couples consisted of Marge and Ed Demler who managed just two hours sleep before taking off!

With them were Georgia and Frende Combs, Mary and Fred Yeager and their daughter and son-in-law, Phyllis and Bob Prather and Fred's sister and brother-in-law from Philadelphia.

All had a wonderful time. Bumped into other Las Vegasers-at-New-Year's-having-a-when — Dorothy and Joe Mullarky and Jane and Larry Houts.

ONE MORE dab of deb data: Eleanor and George Kading, with their three sons, returned to the old home town from Chico for the night. They attended the ball (with their eldest son, Don) especially to be with old friends, Dolores and Herman Weissker, whose daughter, Sandra, was presented.

LEAST OF Cecile and Lloyd Perry's worries New Year's Eve was driving to their party. They were far out on the open seas aboard the S.S. President Wilson — and still are.

The Perrys sailed from San Francisco Saturday on that popular 42-day cruise of the Orient which will find them visiting such storied cities as Hong Kong, Yokohama, Tokyo, etc.

AT A PARTY that was mucho gusto, Frances and Len Crowley ushered in the New Year. Neighbors and close friends joined in the sprightly fun as did daughter, Judy's, younger set crowd.

There was dancing and talking and a midnight buffet for such as Lucy and Wilbur Thompson, Virginia and Franklin Waters, Helen and Joe Young, Annabelle and Lyle Wyatt to name a few.

THE SWING-ALONG New Year's round-up continues—Mildred and John Dorsey and Marge and Harry Jacobs co-hosted an especially warm and happy Eve family dinner party at the Dorsey's. Among friends joining the circle were Millic and John Magill, Mary Jane and Bill Durnin and Eleanor and Herb Carlson, with Eleanor providing just the right musical accompaniment for the night at the organ.

IT'S A small world department—or, you can so, TOO, find a needle in a haystack! These localities bumped into each other finding their way to Rose Bowl seats Tuesday . . . Jean and Tenny Moore, Ruth and Harrison Moore, Dorothy and Jim Nagle and Juanita and Ed Stubbs (attending from current home in San Diego).

Other localities who sat in the dark to watch the finish of that spectacular game were Louise and Paul McKenzie Jr., Madelyn and John Christopher and families, and Marian and Bob Ritner, with Skip and wife, Jeanette, (her first visit to either parade or game) as well as Judy.

DELIGHTFUL holiday open house, I am told, was Posie and Bill Boyd's egg nog and champagne punch affair. A few of those present were Bonnie and Hank Ridder (he just back from Mexico and she just back from New York—where he had also been prior to the Mexican fishing trip), Jackie and Harvey Waggoner, Evelyn and Kea Hemphill, Wally and Betty Arntzen and Laura and Ed Killingsworth, Sue and John McDonald and ever so many more.

THE SMITH clan plus friends were invited by Hazel and Gerald Smith to view the Rose Parade in color at their home. Good cook Hazel thought nothing of whipping up breakfast, including pancakes, for 20! Also entertaining at a Rose Parade brunch were Elsie and Reese Hansen.

Organist to Play at St. Luke's

Long Beach Chapter of American Guild of Organists will present I. Albert Russell in an organ recital Tuesday at 8:15 p.m. in St. Luke's Episcopal Church, Seventh Street and Atlantic Avenue. The public is invited.

Russell, a native of Texas, studied at Baylor University, the University of Texas, Washington Musical Institute in Washington, D.C., and was awarded the degree of master of sacred music at Union Theological Seminary in New York City in 1956. He studied under Virgil Fox, Searle Wright and the late Hugh Porter.

AT THE PRESENT TIME, Russell is organist and choir master at Asylum Hill Congregational Church, Hartford, Conn.; chairman of the department of organ and church music at the University of Hartford; and university organist and organ instructor at Wesleyan University in Middletown, Conn.

The concert is a memorial to Eleanor A. Rice (1858-1962), a longtime friend and supporter of the Long Beach chapter.

'Hiroshima' Shown Free at Museum

"Hiroshima, Mon Amour" will be shown Thursday at 3 and 8 p.m. at Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd.

The 88-minute production, offered free on the museum's film series, has been acclaimed as a masterpiece of the New Wave of Gallic filmmakers.

In France it has been called a thousand films in one: an atomic horror movie, a pacifist tract, a Proustian exercise in recollection, a radioactive Romeo and Juliet.

The film is presented under sponsorship of the City of Long Beach. No tickets or reservations are necessary. Doors open at 7:30 p.m. for the evening showing.

Portrait of a Portrait

William E. Heron calls this oil "The Last Sitting" because, he says, the "Mona Lisa" was the last painting for which model sat before her death. It also depicts Leonardo da Vinci putting last touches on his famed portrait.

'Mona Lisa' Inspires Painter

In a formal ceremony, attended by President Kennedy, "Mona Lisa" by Leonardo da Vinci will be unveiled to Americans Tuesday evening at the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C.

Even before then, Long Beach viewers, beginning Monday, may see "The Last Sitting" by William E. Heron at the B-Q Gallery, 3920 E. Fourth St. The work is valued at $1,500.

Inspired by the famous portrait, Heron's large canvas — 32 by 44 inches — shows da Vinci putting finishing touches on his painting as the model for Mona Lisa poses in his studio. In the background are other da Vinci studies: St. John the Baptist and the angel of the Madonna of the Rocks.

Heron, 5 feet 4, with thick silver hair and twinkling hazel eyes, looks like a merry Santa Claus who has just slipped out of his red costume and donned a business suit.

BORN IN Newcastle-on-Tyne, England, at the edge of the border of Scotland, he speaks with a rich Scottish burr that has earned him the nickname "Scotty." "I've never lost me tongue," he says proudly. "You need a 'Scotty' dictionary to understand him."

adds his wife, Geneva, an artist in her own right and art teacher in Long Beach City College's General Adult Division.

"For instance, he'll combine enchanting and enhancing into a lovely new word, enchanching."

Heron studied art at Armstrong College in his native city and at Glasgow School of Art in Scotland.

AS A YOUNG man he "took a chance" and came to this country, where he worked for 25 years as a tool designer for General Motors in Detroit before coming to Long Beach in 1959.

Art has been a lifelong interest. He has exhibited at Detroit Institute of Art, Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, the National Art Festival in Provincetown, Mass., at the Arts and Letters Exhibition at the University of Michigan, the Scarab Club of Detroit and many places in England.

His "Samson in Chains" was awarded first prize in Michigan by Paramount Pictures in a contest in connection with the movie, "Samson and Delilah."

AMONG HIS other paintings are The Deluge, Jonah, Resurrection, Third Day of Creation, The Foundry, Gates of Gaza and numerous landscapes, seascapes and many portraits.

Heron also has turned his creative mind to inventions. Among his most successful are a pipe, a pipe bit and a self-expanding pipe reamer. He does not smoke.

His custom-made Heron lures have enticed fish in this country and Canada and he is working out another idea which he is not ready to discuss.

Why did he come to this city?

"Well, now," he explains, "Long Beach is the art center of the future!"

CC Program to Feature Opera Star

Community Concert Association will present opera star Dorothy Kirsten in a concert Saturday at 8:15 p.m. in Municipal Auditorium.

The Metropolitan soprano, who sings at the Bolshoi and Stockholm operas, is also a television favorite and recording artist.

Singing with the Metropolitan Opera this October, Miss Kirsten gave her 100th performance of "Madame Butterfly." She performed "Tosca" for Los Angeles audiences this season with the San Francisco Opera Company and staged her own production of "La Boheme" at Hollywood Bowl.

HER LONG BEACH program will include:

Prints on View at Library

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Page Editor

Fanciers of prints, and art bargain hunters will find much to their liking at the California Printmakers Society show which will be on view at the Long Beach Public Library through Jan. 26.

This is the 17th annual exhibit by top-flight artists' members who make up the society.

Prints—signed, numbered and of limited issue—may be purchased from the exhibit at prices ranging from $5 to $50.

Membership in the society is open, enabling interested persons to support the group and to receive an annual membership gift print.

This year's membership print is "Suwanee River," by Polly Knapp Hill. The library's membership print will become part of its circulating art collection.

Although new names are added each year, many persons look forward to familiar exhibitors as old friends, notes Mrs. Chizuru Boyea, who arranged the show.

LONG BEACH MUSEUM of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd., opens two exhibits today with a public reception from 2 to 4 p.m.

The shows are an expanded Art Rental display and selections from the Museum Collection featuring acquisitions from Dr. Ludwig Uri.

The 20 works from the Uri collection include serigraphs, lithographs, drawings, woodcuts and oil paintings by Howard Bradford, Hans Erni, Keith Finch, Ernest Freed, Robert Hansen, Marvin Jules, Roger Kuntz, Jan Lutz, Douglas McClellan, John McLaughlin, Arnold Mesches, Hadaka Yoshida and Jack Zajac.

This display will continue through Jan. 20.

Among artists represented in the Art Rental exhibit are Bettina Brendel, Orval Dillingham, Grace Dimmick, Milton Gershgoren, Frederick Hammersley, Jack Hooper, Ernest Lacy, Nels Nelson and Fran Soldini. The show will run through Jan. 27.

MOSAICIST and painter Dale Owens will judge the fourth annual Cash Award Mosiac Show at Seal Beach Art Center, Ocean and Main, which opens Saturday at 1 p.m.

Presentation of awards will be made at 2 p.m., with Owens explaining the selections in his conversational lecture.

The Artists League of Seal Beach sponsors this exhibit, largest of its kind in the United States. There is a nominal admission fee.

Mrs. Pat Jones, 632 Sea Breeze Drive, Seal Beach, will supply additional information.

LONG BEACH ART Association's first exhibit of 1963 opens today with a reception from 2 to 5 p.m. at the gallery, 800 E. Ocean Blvd.

In addition to oil paintings, the show will feature water colors and pottery by Jo Ann Loper, young art scholarship winner and student at Long Beach State College.

Norman Haskell, Lakewood High School art teacher, selected paintings for the exhibit and named as most outstanding a small oil by Mary Lehman, "Quilt Harbor" in cool blues. Second outstanding is a grayed study by Julie Polousky, "Cancion Triste."

PAINTINGS by Geoffrey Holt are being exhibited through February at the YWCA, Sixth Street and Pacific Avenue.

His subjects include seascapes, European and Western scenes.

MAJOR & MINOR NOTES

Musical Artists Face Dilemma

By RACHEL MORTON
L. P. T. Music Critic

I talked with a man the other day and learned some astonishing things. John Ayre is an Englishman although he has lived in Southern California for the past 14 years. His two children go to the Long Beach elementary schools and both play in the school orchestras. The 12-year-old girl is a cellist and the 8-year-old girl a violinist.

These are some of the astonishing facts I learned. Ayre was born near Manchester, England, and at 9 years of age he played his first piano recital. When he was 16 he received a scholarship to the Manchester College of Music. After he graduated at 18 as a pianist he won a gold medal as a French horn player, as well. Good French horn players are very rare, as it is the most difficult of all the instruments to play, so he settled on the French horn as his future instrument.

At the Eastbourne Music Festival in 1937 he played principal horn with the orchestra under Felix Weingartner. Then came the war. He spent seven years in the Signal Corps and although he was in the front line during the invasion, he managed to squeeze in eight months of study at the Brussels Conservatory in Belgium. During this time he played French horn with the Signal Corps Orchestra which boasted some of the finest instrumentalists in England and on one program he not only played a French horn solo, but Beethoven's Concerto No. 3 for piano and orchestra.

Ayre's reputation as a French horn player was well-known in England so that when the armistice came, he was discharged from the army on a Friday and on Saturday night he was in the first chair of the Halle Orchestra as a French horn player. For three years he played under Beecham and Sir John Barbirolli with the Halle Orchestra and later with the London Symphony Orchestra in the same capacity.

ANOTHER astonishing surprise came when he played for me, on a tape recorder, a recording of a French horn trio, all parts being played by himself and re-recorded. The selection was written by Bach for piano, but Ayre had arranged it for French horn.

But this is the most astonishing fact of all: There seems to be no place in this area for him in our orchestras despite his distinguished background. What can be the reason for this? This expert musician has played under such conductors as Eric Coates, Joseph Krips, Kostalnetz, Charles Munch, Vaughn Williams, Sir Malcolm Sargent and many others. And yet, his French horn remains locked in its case!

JOHN AYRE maintains that an orchestra should be made up of professional players only, not only for excellence in performance, but as a goal to set for young, talented musicians who want to earn a living in their profession. There are no amateur players in the large orchestras in England, Ayre informed me, and no one in such orchestras plays for nothing. Amateurs get their experience in smaller groups, and when they are ready, they are accepted in a professional, capacity with a stipulated salary and a contract. Of course, in our own large city orchestras there are only professional, paid players.

In England, as in Europe, symphony orchestras and opera are subsidized by the government. That is the real solution.

Thank You for a 'Gift of Song!'

When Long Beach Symphony Association presented the opera, "The Gift of Song," Dec. 15 at Long Beach City College auditorium, its purpose was to give the community—and especially young people—a holiday musical present.

How well it succeeded was shown by a sheaf of letters, carefully and neatly written, sent to the symphony manager, Mrs. John O. MacDonald, to be forwarded to the composer, Mary Elizabeth Caldwell.

Writers were members of Miss Patti Halpers fifth grade class at Kettering Elementary School.

Wrote Jane Loomis: "We enjoyed your opera very much. 33 people in our class went to your opera. They all thought it was just wonderful. Our teacher, Miss Halper enjoyed it the most to me. We would like to see it next year too if it is showing. I don't know how we can show our gratitude for showing all of us the wonderful opera."

THE YOUNGSTERS were unanimous in wishing to see the production again. Many spoke appreciatively of the costumes, sets and music.

Said Gary Spence: "I have seen your opera. It was very well done also. I enjoyed it because of the singing, the costumes and the music. The background was also beautiful."

"A Gift of Song is the best opera I have ever seen or heard. It was my first also."

A number of other students noted that this was their first opera, but Robin Gasper wrote with more experience: "Your opera was the fourth opera I have seen this year. I think it is the best of all. The opera had a standing ovation."

ELLYN KIEB also was impressed with the opera's reception:

"I am writing you this letter to tell you how much I enjoyed the opera that you wrote, 'The Gift of Song.' It was excellent. It may interest you to know it got a standing ovation and 4 curtain calls."

Wrote Mark Zippert: "Most all of our class went to your opera. It was the first opera I have ever seen. I liked it very much and know everybody else liked it very much to. Our teacher came with us. A lot of people stood up and gave a standing ovation. I would have stood up if I knew what it was before."

MARK STUART may be a future member of Long Beach Symphony Orchestra, if wishes come true: "The music you were playing was beautiful. The song 'Silent Night' sounded real good. I wish I was in the Symphony."

Wrote Thomas Pickett: "As I have just come to this country from Germany, I especially enjoyed your opera."

"Almost everybody in our class was watching the opera. Thank you again, we all appreciated this opportunity."

JIMMY PATTON graciously expressed his appreciation and added a personal note about a problem that has beset many an opera-goer:

"My mother drove some of my classmates in our car. When we got there, we were parked on the wrong side of the college. It took a little time, but we got there in time."

Mark Murufas wanted to know more about the production: "It was the first opera I have ever seen. The characters were the best group of singers I have heard. My teacher and classmates were wondering who these singers were. Could you tell us?"

Karen Sargent asked: "Where did you get the costumes? I would like to know. I hope you will show it next year."

A PARAGRAPH in Sherrie Mann's letter read: "I wish more people wrote operas for children, but since they don't maybe you'll put yours on in Long Beach next year again."

In her covering letter, Miss Halper summed it up:

"Despite the grammatical errors and oft amusing phraseology, I felt that these letters are proof of the effect that music has upon younger children. Exposing the children to such a marvelous piece of work, I know, will enhance their understanding and appreciation for other classical works of art. I only wish you could know how sincere the children really are and how truly they enjoyed the performance."

STAR AT MAGNOLIA

Lyle and Paula Talbot, real life husband and wife, take opposite political sides in "The Best Man" playing weekends at Magnolia Theater, 2400 Magnolia Ave. Show runs through Jan. 13.

Anouilh's 'The Lark' at LBCC

Jean Anouilh's "The Lark" will be presented by Long Beach City College Liberal Arts Division drama students at 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday in the college auditorium, Harvey Way near Clark Ave. Tickets will be available at the box office both nights.

Marlene Silverstein has the leading role of Joan of Arc, named "the lark" because of the soaring spirit she inspired in her countrymen. Anouilh's two-act drama focuses upon the trial of Joan for treason and witchcraft after she had led the nation to victory.

Other major parts are taken by Fred Stokes as the Inquisitor, Gary Austin as the ineffectual Dauphin, Tim Felix as Baudricourt and Joseph Matarazzo as Bishop Gauchon, one of the few church authorities sympathetic to Joan. In important supporting roles are Helene Jones, Randi Cohen, Lura Gordon and Donna Needle.

Director is David M. Emmes, who made his debut at City College this fall with the highly successful production of Moliere's "The Miser." Technical director J. L. White has designed the non-conventional sets and lighting effects appropriate to Anouilh's fluid use of both time and space.

Limelitters Back

The Limelitters December appearance in the Southland, cancelled because of the trio's near-fatal plane crash in Provo, Utah, has been rescheduled for Jan. 19 at Santa Monica Civic Auditorium.

Women Painters in Palos Verdes Exhibit

By VIRGINIA TADDEY

"24 Women Painters of the Southland," an invitational show, opens today at the Palos Verdes Community Arts Association. The gallery at 2400 Via Campesina, open 2 to 5 p.m. daily and to 5 p.m. Sunday, will have this exhibit until Jan. 31.

While this is not an entirely brilliant show, there are proportionately more instances of excellence here than, say, women represented in a large juried show, women in any medical group, or women holding public office.

THE GENERAL character of the show is that of tremendous sensitivity to color and rhythmic relationships. The works are largely decorative and "easy-to-live-with." There is no dearth of craftsmanship, an element not requiring total commitment.

Among those works which I feel would stand up to the best being produced now in the Southland, regardless of the sex of the artist, is Mignon Gallup's "San Capland," a highly complex collage. The basic cruciform structure done in gold, grays, and blue profits from a bold use of black line.

SHIMMERING COLOR and a knowing suggestion of forms and figures contribute to the joy of Almee Bourdieu's "Sunny Beach." Mabel Alvarez's "The Village" is another personal and highly original statement. A scheme of hot yellows and pinks flow through abstracted geometric units nestled against a stark Latin hillside.

"Totem" by Louise Freeman is a strange powerful figure, mysterious and threatening. Florence Cunningham's "Vigil" expresses a timeless and placeless feminine occupation.

BLACK, WHITE, and shades of gray in Arla Corrigan's "Procession" in textures of lace, along with conventional graphic techniques, individualize the shapes of seven women. Ruth Elliot's mixed media in "Voice of the Storm" match the astonishing and fine detail of Dubuffet's resist techniques.

Film Series Is Scheduled

On Saturday evening, Jewish Community Center will initiate its International Film Festival, offering a series of outstanding foreign films.

Planned for the second Saturday of each month, the series will consist of one award-winning feature picture and one or more unusual experimental shorts on each program.

HEADLINING the first program will be the French film, "Game of Love," an adaptation of Colette's novel of awakening adolescent love. Set against the beauty of the Brittany seacoast, the wistful drama poignantly reveals the pleasure and pain of coming of age.

Larry Jordan's unique short, "3", employs exceptional photography which blends images together in an unusual psycho-drama.

All films will start at 8:30; doors will open at 8:15. Seats will not be reserved. Further information may be obtained at the center, 2601 Grand Ave.

Roberts, and Mr. and Mrs. Virginia Roberts and Orville Maynard Carver, all of Long Beach.

Both young persons were graduated from Millikan High School, attended Long Beach City College and currently attend Long Beach State from which the bride-to-be will be graduated in June. She was recipient of a "Jeweled M" at Millikan. Her fiancé is district director of water safety and first aid for the Red Cross.

Wilson-Akers

Mr. and Mrs. Frank R. Wilson announce engagement of their daughter, Wynne W., to Robert Dean Akers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Akers, Long Beach. The pair plans a June wedding.

Miss Wilson was graduated from Wilson High School and attended LBSC where she affiliated with Delta Zeta and Phi Beta, music and speech sorority. Her bridegroom-to-be attended Indiana University and USC prior to earning bachelor's and master's degrees in industrial management at LBSC. He is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha and Alpha Kappa Psi.

Davis-Addleman

An August wedding will unite Betty Davis and Frank Addleman, according to an announcement from her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Davis of Lakewood.

Miss Davis was graduated from Polytechnic High School where she was named homecoming queen in 1959, and later completed schooling in dental assisting at LBCC. She is a member of American Dental Assistants Association.

Her fiancé, son of former Southland residents, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Addleman, Honolulu, Hawaii, attended El Camino Junior College and is working on a master's degree at LBSC where he was named "outstanding athlete of the year."

Felts-Hawthorne

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel R. Felts announced engagement of their daughter, Danette, to Bill J. Hawthorne, son of Mrs. Ann Hawthorne, Long Beach, at a recent party.

Shift in Affection

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

My girl came up with some sort of an arrangement that she wants to date other boys and me, too. She started working about three weeks ago and she's acted funny ever since.

We call each other two or three times a day. She told me today we have been neglecting our friends and ourselves, too. She wants me to call the same as usual, but I'm about to go crazy. We can only see each other on week ends and then she says she's too tired.

I've asked her to marry me and she keeps saying, "Yes, someday." I worship the ground she walks on, but I don't know if I can believe her. RAYMOND

DEAR RAYMOND:

I don't know if she can believe herself, right now. She's under a strain on the new job and you're not quite as welcome as before. She doesn't want to hurt you. But she hasn't cut you out.

Give her time, Raymond, to adjust to a working day and the working men, and in time I think she'll want more than rest on week ends. —M. M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

What do you do with a man who curses you in front of your three daughters? He goes wild when he drinks. But when he isn't drinking he is a good person.

Our girls are afraid of him. He has ruined my life and now he's ruining the girls' lives, too. I have put up with him for 12 years because I love him. But I could write a book on how he is turning love into fear. I am as afraid of him as of a cobra. —THE SLAVE

DEAR SLAVE:

His trouble comes bottled. Instead of writing that book, tell him he can't have you both. Either he takes the help available today to get rid of the bottle or you'll take the help available today to get rid of him.

It won't be easy. It will take all the sympathetic and realistic love you can manage, from A.A. to E.Z. But manage it you must.

Dear Molly Mayfield

Help him master the thirst. —M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

"Hidden's" letter (which appeared recently) describing her life as the "other woman" is something every man should read. It should open their eyes to why single girls can't see themselves in the "other woman's" shoes.

It is not unusual to hear that the "wife gets all the little knickknacks" while the "other woman" gets the promises (never kept).

Almost every day every single girl is subjected to the poor, misunderstood husband who simply can't fathom why the girl wants him to be proud to introduce her.

As she sits alone on all the important days of the year, she should be content knowing she has received the least he has to give—himself. —ENLIGHTENED

Ira Has His Slam

to make his slam. Four heart tricks would be a cinch if West held the queen and if Ira played him for it.

East actually held four hearts to the queen, but Ira worked out a winning play against that annoyance.

He played the deuce of diamonds on the opening lead. When East played the lead, West had probably opened fourth best of a five card suit. Then Ira cashed four spades. East discarded two clubs and Ira one club. Now West had shown up with four spades so he was likely to be short in hearts.

IRA'S NEXT assumption was that East held five or six clubs. In that case a submarine play was indicated. Ira started by leading the jack of hearts from dummy and letting it ride. His next play from dummy was the ten of clubs. East put up the queen and led a second diamond. Ira won that trick, led a club to dummy's ace and continued with a third diamond. East had to hang on to the king of clubs and the only way to do that was to throw away a heart, whereupon Ira had his four heart tricks and slam.

SEND ART TO VALPARAISO

C of C Women's Group Does Sister Act

WOMEN'S DIVISION, Long Beach Chamber of Commerce, art committee members Athena Hall (left), chairman, and Maria Louisa Evans show some of artwork by local public school students being sent to Long Beach's sister city, Valparaiso, Chile, for exchange exhibit. Below, closeups of drawings.

Anybody knows it takes a miss (or Mrs.) to be a good sis. That's why art committee members of the Women's Division, Long Beach Chamber of Commerce, feel they can be influential in helping cement family relations with Long Beach's sister city, Valparaiso, Chile.

Their first project: an exchange of children's art.

The exhibit, made up of 30-some works of art by Long Beach school children, is now packaged and ready for shipment, according to Mrs. Athena Hall, art committee chairman.

SELECTIONS include water colors, collages, crayons and a couple of oils, screened from last spring's all-city school exhibit at Long Beach State College.

With an assist from Ruth Burdick, retired art teacher who taught at Wilson High School, Mrs. Hall selected the exhibit numbers.

They represent artistic efforts from grades five through twelve, she said.

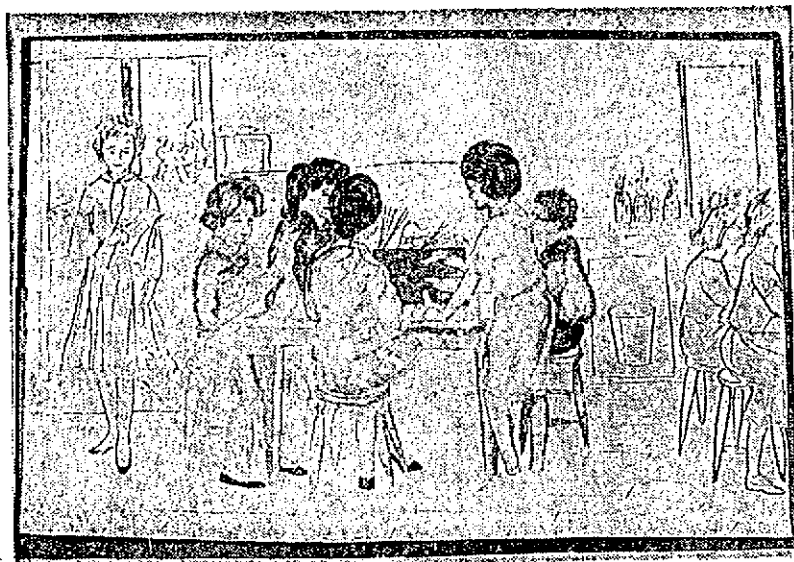

Isobel Connor, art director for the Long Beach Unified School District, had charge of packaging the classroom-originated art.

Robert H. Metzger, Harbor Department public relations director, is handling shipping. "The crated art will go out on the first Westfall-Larsen ship going to South America," he said.

No word has been received from the Chilean seaport, local officials said, about when reciprocal exhibits will be sent for display here.

A Budding Cook Is 'Bud' Noted Lecturer Is Scheduled to Talk

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
L.P.T. Food Editor

His profession certainly hasn't gotten him down. In fact, one of his most outstanding characteristics is his waggish wit. He has been the recipient of the Kiwanis El Toro award (for throwing the bull.)

Today's Chef of the Week, Jesse S. (Bud) Holton, Jr. is the "son" in Holton & Son

Chef of the Week

Jesse S. (Bud) Holton

San Francisco.

Somewhere among the above paragraphs, the former Joyce Horton of Long Beach, had, by the change of one letter in her name, become Mrs. Holton. They have three children, daughters Verdee and Sharon, 14 and 12 respectively, and son, David, six.

A Kiwanian, Holton was president of the club in 1959, and a member of its bowling team. He's on the board of directors of the CVO, and serves on the committee on management for the Armed Services YMCA. A Mason, he belongs to the Searchlight Lodge.

THE ENTIRE family is active in the East Side Christian Church, and he presently is superintendent of the Sunday School.

Real great at organizing, the recent Kiwanian Tri-State District Conference held here, and which he planned and executed, was a topper of a success.

But probably Holton's most outstanding feat is the ground work he has laid for a really worthwhile organization, The Long Beach Historical Society. He was its first president.

Our "chef" admits to having a yen for short-order cooking, but also admits to resorting to a package mix every now and then. He enjoys playing the gracious host—and in that realm, he's never been known to let a guest arrive without having to maneuver a freshly hosed side walk. It's a felish with him.

His recipe today is for Pork Chops and Rice Mexicana which he prepares from scratch.

PORK CHOPS AND RICE MEXICANA

Says Bud—"If you like Spanish rice and pork chops, you'll enjoy this two-in-one casserole." We agree!

- 4 pork chops
- 1 large onion, chopped
- 1 green pepper, chopped
- 1 clove garlic, chopped
- $\frac{2}{3}$  cups raw rice
- 1 cup canned or stewed fresh tomatoes
- 1 cup boiling water or beef stock
- 2 tblsp. cooking oil
- 1 tblsp. chili powder
- 1 bay leaf
- Salt and pepper to taste

Brown chops on both sides in the oil in a hot skillet; remove chops to a casserole. Sauté onion, green pepper and garlic in the drippings until lightly browned. (If you like less garlic, use garlic salt.) Add rice and saute until golden brown, then add remaining ingredients and simmer for a minute. Pour mixture over the chops, cover and bake in a moderately hot oven (375) for 50 minutes to 1 hour. Remove cover during last five minutes. Serves 4.

P.S. to Bud. Have you forgotten about the Coleman Lantern you loaned to a certain newspaper man who combs the beaches?

Mrs. Lorita Baker Vallely, no stranger to the lecture platforms of Long Beach, will return here Jan. 16 to discuss world affairs and current literature.

This appearance will be one of her first in the Southland after spending December in Washington covering the political scene with research and interviews, and in New York viewing plays and analyzing literary trends through contact with publishers and authors.

Absent for some time from the Long Beach circuit, she has been appearing regularly in San Francisco, Los Angeles and San Diego.

MRS. VALLELY will be presented under sponsorship of St. Anne's Guild of St. Luke's Episcopal Church, Seventh Street and Atlantic Avenue. The guild will be hostess at a coffee hour from 1 to 2 p.m. with the lecture slated to begin at 2 p.m.

The public is invited to attend. Information regarding ticket reservations may be obtained at the church office.

Stay As Square As You Are

DEAR ABBY: I am writing this on my 17th birthday. My date just brought me home in a huff, telling me how "immature" I am because I wouldn't make out with him. This was our first date and I thought a lot of him. I have the reputation for being cold, stuck-up and even square. But I won't lower my standards just to get dates. I have no trouble getting the first date, but when I don't make out right away they don't call me again. Am I wrong? Maybe I am immature.—SEVENTEEN AND SAD.

DEAR SEVENTEEN: You are mature—the BOYS are immature! Keep your standards high, honey. You might be sad at the moment, but you'll be happier in the long run. And mature young men still appreciate quality.

DEAR ABBY: For six years I went with a girl we will call DOLL. I wanted to marry her but she kept putting me off. I had been drinking all this time but with the help of the Lord I quit drinking. I started going with another girl we will call BABY. She loves me and I love her, but not like DOLL. In the meantime, DOLL got herself a new boy friend who drinks more than I did. She keeps saying she is going to break up with him and go back with me but she is sure taking her sweet time. I told DOLL I would give her 30 days to make up her mind and if she didn't marry me I'd marry BABY. Is 30 days long enough?—JERRY.

DEAR JERRY: A man who would just as soon marry one girl as another is not ready for marriage.

ABBY

There are lots of DOLLS and BABYS around. Stay single until you are sure which one you want. You might run into a SWEETIE.

DEAR ABBY: When we eat out my husband gobbles down his food and starts in on the person's plate nearest to him. This is very embarrassing to me. We frequently entertain in restaurants. Most always it is my plate he eats off of. But he thinks nothing of putting his fork into someone else's food if he sees something they haven't gotten around to eating yet. My husband is usually the host, but it embarrasses me to death. How can I get him to stop it without making him feel like a little boy?—RED-FACED.

DEAR RED-FACED: A man who behaves like a little boy has to be handled like one occasionally. Get him alone and TELL him how childish his ill-mannered habit makes him appear. There's no reason to sit in red-faced silence over a matter so easily remedied as this.

DEAR ABBY: Can any of your Italian readers help me? I went to an Italian movie and the word "chow" was used quite a bit at the end of telephone conversations and when people were departing from each other. Several Italian girls have told me it meant "good-bye," but one of my Italian co-workers said it was a low-brow slang expression which was not considered "nice" in Italian. Just what does "chow" mean? And is it Italian?—BOSTON BELLE.

DEAR BELLE: "Chow" is the familiar "good-bye" in Italian. And although it is a slang expression it is used by Italians—high-born and low!

FOR SWIM TIME, INDOOR POOL COVER HOISTS TO CEILING

Dance, Swim? Raise, Lower Cover of Pool

By VERN ANTHONY
Southland Progress Editor

First, they built a large oval swimming pool, then an ingenious movable cover—believed to be the first of its type; then they built a luxurious house around the pool.

That was the sequence for an unusual residence atop Rolling Hills, overlooking both the Catalina Channel on the south and sprawling Los Angeles to the north.

Dominating feature of this home is the fact that the pool cover can be raised to the ceiling while the 34x17-foot plunge is in use, or lowered to blend in with the flooring of the 75x30-foot family room.

AVID SWIMMERS, the owners wanted an indoor pool with their new home, designed by the firm of Paul L. Williamson and Merritt E. Morris Jr., AIA, of Long Beach.

The pool cover weighs two tons and is eight inches thick.

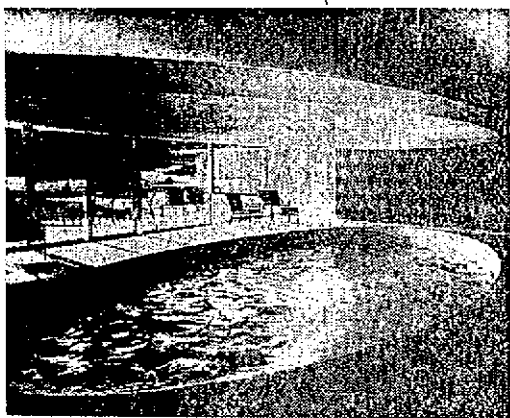

It is made of lumber ribs with marine plywood on the top and bottom, covered with a thousand pounds of fiberglass. It was built by the Harbor Boat Co., and was hauled up the hills to home-site at night under police escort.

THE COVER is raised and lowered by four electric motor-driven chain hoists and has special safety devices.

Lowered, it transforms the large room into space for dancing, other entertainment of family use.

Big Expansion Begun by Los Alamitos Plant

By BOB GEIVET

LOS ALAMITOS—A space-age plant which began operations here a year ago, after outgrowing a Long Beach facility, outgrew its plant here and so will double its size.

Arrowhead Products, which makes pressurized suits for astronauts, aviators, missile fuel handlers, and chemical workers, along with assorted extruded parts and tubings for the aviation and space industries, broke ground Friday for its addition at 4411 Katella Ave.

THE CONCERN, one of nine divisions of Federal-Mogul-Bower Bearings, Inc., and the only one in the space industry, will spend $1.27 million to keep up with its growth.

General Manager Walter T. Camp, who welcomed a long list of dignitaries to the ceremony, recalled that the plant started here with 68,000 square feet of floor space, then went to 120,000 square feet within six months.

The new addition, to be ready next April, will more than double the capacity of the plant, Camp said.

Camp, general sales manager Arnold Dovey, Mayor James V. Bell, president Doss Jones of the Los Alamitos Chamber of Commerce, and various civic, fraternal and church leaders made up the earth-turning party.

Arrowhead's venture into space will be on an even broader scale in the near future, Camp disclosed.

PRIME CONTRACTOR for the U.S. Navy for fully-pressurized high-altitude suits, the company also supplies to National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

DREDGING NEARLY DONE

Work on Small Craft Harbor at Oceanside

OCEANSIDE — With less than 30 days of dredging operation remaining, officials of the Oceanside Small Craft Harbor District are rushing final plans for dedication of the $7.5 million project.

Harold Snyder, director of the Harbor District, announced that slips in the north basin of the pleasure marina will be ready by April. The official opening of the harbor, however, is scheduled for June, Snyder said.

About one-fourth of the 600 individual slips available for private rental, already have been leased, according to Snyder, and it is anticipated they will be sold out entirely by July.

IN KEEPING with the demand for slip accommodations at the only pleasure marina between San Diego and Newport Beach, Snyder indicated that there has been considerable interest by private operators to lease shops, stores, a restaurant, yacht

Orange Co. Building Increases

Construction in Orange County maintained a high level in 1962, showing a gain of more than a million dollars and increase in number of permits issued, according to the Department of Building and Safety at Santa Ana.

Department figures do not include incorporated areas, which were many millions more.

Huntington Beach, for example, tallied a 1962 total of $66,661,327, according to Jack Cleveland, building director.

For 1962, the department issued 6,649 permits valued at $76,486,448, compared to 5,341 and $75,054,342, respectively, for the preceding year.

December '62 permits totaled 439 and valuation was $5,463,755. Single family dwellings led the list with 196 permits valued at $4,288,620. Twenty-four permits were issued for swimming pools; one for a fallout shelter; and 51 for home alterations.

LOOKING INTO FUTURE

"And that's where we'll play," 5-year-old Dale Cain tells his little sailmate, Lari Lee Long. Chosen as "Little Mr. and Miss Oceanside of 1962," the two are dwarfed by huge nine-foot oil mural of the $7.5 million Oceanside harbor, scheduled for opening in June 1963.

April Opening Seen for La Mirada Clubhouse

LA MIRADA—The new La Mirada Golf Course Clubhouse built by the County Department of Parks and Recreation probably will open around April 1, it has been revealed by the office of Supervisor Frank Bonelli.

The facility is in the area of Luitwieler Avenue and Alicante Road.

Designed by Merritt E. Morris Jr., A.I.A., of Long Beach, the clubhouse was built in two phases.

THE MAJOR work, let last May 31 to William P. Neil Co., Limited, of Los Angeles on a bid of $329,100, was accepted by county supervisors Aug. 28.

It was for a two-level clubhouse. The first floor includes the so-called professional area, golf pro shop, locker and shower rooms, coffee shop and golfmobile maintenance and storage room.

THE SECOND LEVEL includes the concession area, dining room, banquet hall, main lobby and lounge.

There is 16,400 square feet of floor space.

Contract was let Aug. 8 to Ray Wilson Co. of Los Angeles on a bid of $120,700 for the second phase to provide interior fixtures, alterations to meet needs of the concessionaire, and equipment for kitchen and dining areas. This work has been completed and is due for acceptance by the county supervisors in a week or two.

The county board, on Oct. 2, approved a 15-year lease with Morneth, Inc., of Hollywood for the concession operations. Rental, on a sliding scale, would amount to $201,256 over a 15-year period. Contract for pro shop operations will be let later.

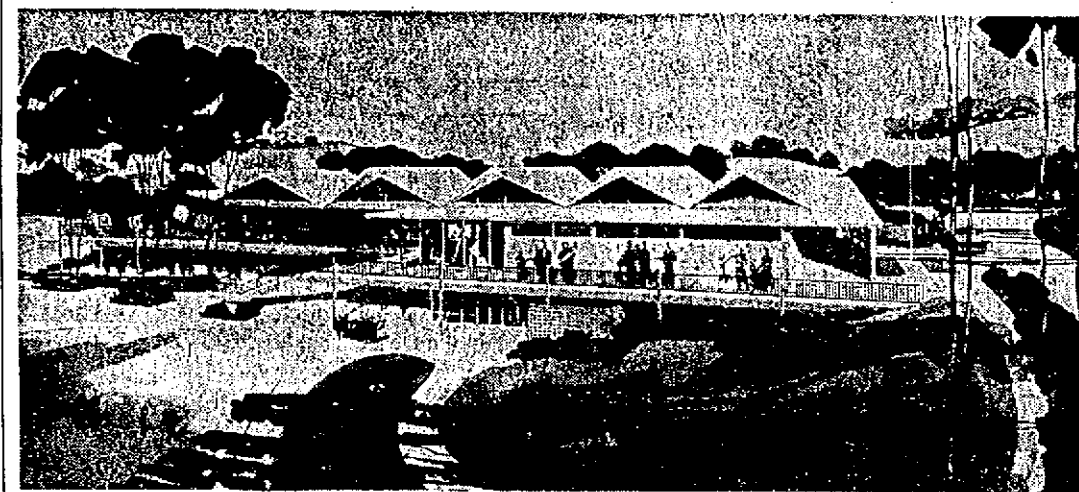

THE GOLF COURSE will be opened around April 1 after turf is established.

County engineers are preparing development of La Mirada County Regional Park, adjacent to the golf course. This will be up for bid in February, and work is due.

NEW CLUBHOUSE READY SOON FOR LA MIRADA AREA

9 Tract Houses Will Be Used as Classrooms

HUNTINGTON BEACH—Acting to help ease school space problems in this growing area, K. W. Koll, developer at South Shores, Friday turned over nine houses for use as classrooms.

Ten acres of the tract at Garfield Avenue and Brookhurst Street also have been dedicated for school buildings.

Those invited to the Friday ceremony included: Dr. Edward Beaubier, superintendent of the Fountain Valley School District; school board members Dale Stuard, Alvin Krukenberg, Mrs. Naomi Yonkman and William D. Land; Principals Jack Mahuken; developers Charles H. Gorham and T. C. Crosson; and the mayors of Huntington Beach and Fountain Valley.

THE new development will be located at the northwest corner of Brookhurst and Adams and will encompass over 400 homes. Palmer said that construction will begin immediately.

THIS IS Kaufman and Broad's first entry into the Southern California market. A nationally known firm with far-flung construction interests, Kaufman and Broad first began building in Detroit in 1957. They soon expanded to surrounding areas, subsequently contracting to build several large government housing projects. In 1960, they began an extensive home building program in Phoenix.

Building Firm, New in Area, Plans Huntington Beach Homes

Kaufman and Broad is a publicly owned stock company, with current outstanding stock evaluated at approximately $8 1/4 million dollars. Its stock was officially admitted to the American Stock Exchange Board April 3, 1962. Estimated sales volume for 1962 is in excess of $20 million dollars.

components for the Atlas, such equipment with silicone Regulus II, Titan, Polaris, and synthetic rubber materials, and fabrics and forms exotic metals.

The company entered the aircraft industry in 1942 by making light-weight flexible ducting. It lately has made its present plant.

Pool Cover Goes Down for Dancing

The pool is heated by radiant pipes running beneath it. A major construction achievement is control of moisture from the indoor body of water. This, Morris said, is done by a series of vents and blowers operated automatically by humidistats.

ONE LONG WALL of the room is of walnut treated to withstand dampness; the other is of glass. Upholstery of furniture is moisture proof.

A divider separates the more formal living and dining areas from the pool.

Sea breezes make airconditioning of the home unnecessary.

The ranch type house, built by Drews Construction Co. of Lomita, contains 5,702 square feet of living space, has three garages and a large porte cochere for shaded parking and protected unloading in inclement weather.

THE FOUR-BEDROOM house has other unusual characteristics:

There is no carpeting . . . floors are of terrazzo and marble, except for vinyl in the service quarters;

There are no drapes;

In case of fire, water would be pumped from the pool and sprayed on the shake roof.

There are numerous double-duty areas, such as:

Use of family room for either swimming or dancing;

Cocktail bar doubles for ice cream soda bar;

Children's bedrooms can be used for study rooms;

PLAY ROOM can double as sleeping room for guests;

Den can be used for home office;

Family kitchen is equipped for catering of large parties;

Dressing rooms for swimmers can be used for Mr. and Mrs. powder rooms at social events.

Designed for family enjoyment and year-round swimming, this home affords facilities for entertainment of several hundred guests at a time and blends into the comfortable atmosphere of the picturesque Palos Verdes Peninsula.

Area Officials Laud Home Fair Project at Westminster

WESTMINSTER — Civic leaders and business dignitaries, throughout Orange County are voicing approval of Alco-Pacific Construction Company's new International Home Fair community at Bolsa Chica Road and Westminster Avenue.

Among those lauding the project are the following:

Westminster Mayor Calvin G. Brack: "The character and strength of any city is dependent upon the type of residences constructed within it. For only in these can the educational, cultural and aesthetic value of any community be elevated. The citizens of Westminster are indeed fortunate that Alco-Pacific chose to locate its International Home Fair here."

GARDEN GROVE Mayor George P. Honold: "I wish to congratulate the Solomon family and Alco-Pacific for their foresight in locating the International Home Fair in West Orange County. We, the residents of the county, know we have the finest climate and business area in the entire United States. Even though this development is in one of our fine neighboring cities, the whole area will be improved both financially and culturally by its presence."

Huntington Beach Chamber of Commerce Manager William Gallienne: "The new Sol Vista International Home Fair subdivision will be ideally located to serve the great population now moving into Huntington Beach. This beautiful complex is adjacent to the $80 million Douglas Aircraft Missile and Space Center and joins Huntington Beach to the north. Living is ideal in this area because of its proximity to the Pacific Ocean."

HUNTINGTON BEACH Chamber of Commerce President Howard G. Stephens: "The International Home Fair is a welcome addition to Orange County. The City of Westminster is fortunate to have this exclusive community located within its boundaries. The many fine homes built within the city limits of Huntington Beach by Alco-Pacific are indicative, I am sure, of the type of dwelling that we will see in this new subdivision."

Fountain Valley Mayor Jim Kanno: "The dynamic growth of Orange County has been augmented by this new development. This has been accompanied not only in numbers, but in quality. The finest well planned project is always welcome to the community because it enhances the total value of the surrounding area."

WESTMINSTER Chamber of Commerce President Aubrey F. Holder: "It is indeed a great pleasure to have the International Home Fair as a part of the City of Westminster. A development of fine dwellings such as these is the culmination of faith in the growth, economy and future of one of the fastest growing cities in Southern California."

Huntington Beach Mayor Robert Lambert: "I'm sure that the International Home Fair will be subtly interwoven with an established residential community to give an air of custom permanence that offers the best social environment in which to raise a family. The public's love affair with quality merchandise will undoubtedly be a major factor in boosting sales of these exclusive homes."

FIVE MODEL HOMES are being built in the International Home Fair pavilion area, each reflecting a theme.

There will be The Americas, The Scandia, The Oriental Garden, The South Seas and The Continental. Each model home will be lavishly furnished and decorated in the theme of the section of the world it depicts.

This exclusive Sol Vista residential community will have a school and park site. There will be 569 homes and they will be one and two story, contain three, four and five bedrooms, family rooms, two and three bathrooms.

The pavilion and model homes will be ready for viewing in a few weeks.

Sun Ray Harbor Estates Offer Low Priced 'Heartland Homes'

The normal human desire to be "right in the middle of things" has been fulfilled in the carefully planned Sun Ray Harbor Estates development. Featuring three-bedroom, two-bath homes from $18,950, Sun Ray Estates are billed as the "Heartland Homes" because of their central location to all civic, commercial and recreational facilities of the Los Angeles area.

Beach Freeway and 2½ miles to the new San Diego Freeway, Sun Ray Harbor Estates residents are just minutes away from any facility they desire.

REED CLARK, sales director, points out that it is only a short 2 miles to the many ocean beaches, 10 miles to Marineland and just 20 miles to the Los Angeles Civic Center. "You can walk to extensive shopping areas, modern schools and churches of all denominations. This heartland location is in great demand and Sun Ray Harbor Estates is the only area offering quality homes at reasonable prices in this superior locale," Clark says.

R. A. Watt, developer, guarantees immediate occupancy for these completely carpeted and landscaped home sites. Furnished models may be inspected by the public every day in the Sun Ray Harbor area just north of Pacific Coast Highway and Avalon Boulevard.

New Bank Readied in Los Altos

Bank of America soon will open a new branch in Los Altos, at Bellflower Boulevard and Stearns Street, according to Gustav Tams, vice president.

The branch bank will occupy approximately 8,000 square feet and will be part of a shopping center soon to be developed.

The real estate firm of Herman Sims Co. negotiated a long-term lease with Bank of America, which culminated in a sale of the land to Wilshire-Ridgeley Realty, Inc. Sale of the land likewise was handled through the Sims Co. offices from the former owners, Hilp & Rhodes Realty Corporation.

The firm of Maxwell Starkman and Associates was hired to design the building, with construction by Jackson Bros., general contractors.

It is estimated that the bank will start installing fixtures on the premises about Feb. 1. Announcement of the bank's opening date will be made shortly thereafter.

THE BANK building faces Bellflower Boulevard. Directly south of it will be Bob's Big Boy restaurant; and Mobil Oil will occupy the northeast corner of the intersection.

The Sims Co. was the broker in negotiating the lease with the Hilp & Rhodes Realty Corporation to Unimart, which is building on approximately 12 acres of the same property.

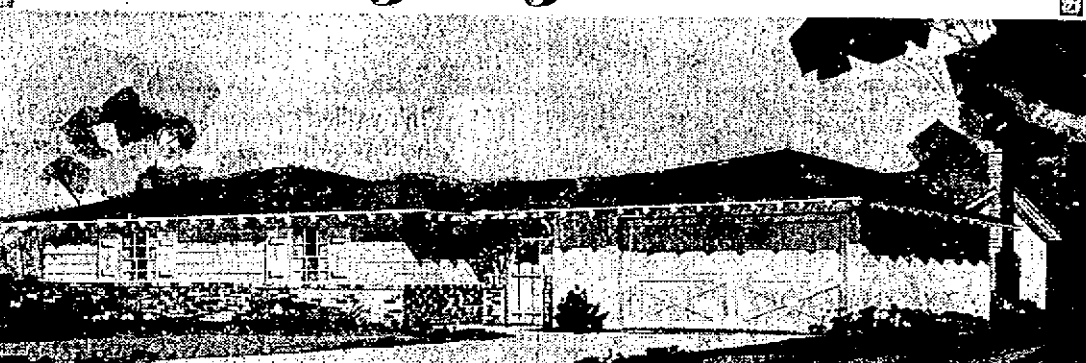

Announcements soon will be made by the developers of the remaining seven acres, to be improved with two buildings.

Garden Park Estates Opening Another Unit

A GARDEN PARK ESTATE

Indicative of the continuing growth of Garden Park Estates, a walled "city-within-a-city," is the newly opened unit of architect-designed one and two-story luxury homes in this popular community at Knott Avenue and Garden Grove Boulevard. Here is a view in one model.

Underscoring the continuing development of Garden Park Estates as a completely planned "city-within-a-city" is the opening of another new unit of one and two-story executive-type residences in this walled community at Knott Ave. and Garden Grove Blvd., officials of the community pointed out.

1962 was marked by a great deal of progress, the spokesman said. The population shot "way past the 3500 mark and new families are moving in each day. October saw the opening of the Garden Park Elementary School at Stanford and Holder, and shortly after, construction was begun on a new high school within the community's walls. New signal lights were, officially "oked" for Knott Ave. and Garden Grove Blvd., and they will soon be in operation.

ANOTHER "high spot" of the year came when the handsome two-story luxury homes won a highly coveted, competitive award.

Rapid expansion of the Garden Grove and San Diego Freeways and the increasing efficiency of the interlocking connections with all of the vast Freeway complex is bringing this community closer to "everywhere" in the Southland. Major business and industrial centers as well as recreational areas are within a commuting time from Garden Park Estates.

NOTES OF BUSINESS

L.B. Leaders Feel Good Year Is Ahead

By KEN CHILCOTE

A strong note of confidence is voiced by Long Beach business leaders as they enter the new year.

While there is some note of caution in their predictions, all agree that gains of from 4 to 10 per cent should be made in 1963 business.

In brief, they agree that business will be good for the good businessman. They realize that on the vast competitive market the alert businessman can capture his share of gains through strong promotions and good advertising.

A GOOD YEAR for downtown Long Beach retail stores is seen by Joe Shuff, manager of Walker's Department Store and president of the Downtown Long Beach Associates. "Competition from the outlying areas has stabilized," says Shuff. "This, along with the new downtown parking facilities and current building, give downtown merchants every reason to look for a good year in 1963."

From Lakewood Center, Dan Campbell, manager of Bond's, reported an increase of 7.4 per cent over the previous year and expressed high enthusiasm over sales for this year. He attributes the upward trend to good promotion and advertising.

Ray Carl of Carl's Furniture predicts a 5 to 10 per cent gain for the new year. "Stronger promotional activity on our part" was credited for the good increase in business for the year just ended.

"WITH ALL THIS new construction under way or planned here, I'm more optimistic about Long Beach's future than I have been in 10 years," said Roland E. Robins, manager of the Long Beach main office of the Bank of America.

Cole's Markets thinks 1963 will be a highly competitive year in the food store business. "But by staying on our toes and meeting the rapidly changing merchandising techniques, we expect to have another good year."

"Aggressive sales methods for a consistently fine product" will see good business in 1963, predicts Mike Salta, youthful owner of Salta Pontiac.

WESTERN home builders predict a 4 per cent increase in housing starts this year with an even greater increase in the Long Beach area.

The continued influx of new families makes the housing market stronger here.

WESTERN AIR LINES reported a net profit, after taxes, of $4,587,000 or $3.21 per share for the 11 months ended Nov. 30.

This compares with a profit of $448,000 or 31 cents per share for the same period in 1961.

CHARLES S. CAMP of Long Beach has been promoted to assistant vice president of the Bank of America in the Los Angeles headquarters Timeplan administration for the automobile division. James W. Kinnear, sales manager for Texaco in Huntington Beach, has been named Los Angeles division sales head. He succeeds W. H. Peterson who was named special representative for Texaco's nine-state western area.

Tiara Estates in Orange Grand Opening Is Today

Grand opening of Tiara Estates in Orange is underway with three furnished models available for viewing. Outstanding quality features will greet homebuyers as they inspect the 47 planned-home development.

"Tiara Estates are superbly constructed three, four and five-bedroom homes offering quality features at reasonable prices," said Dick Murray, sales director for Farrow Realty. "The fine customized homes are in an area you will be proud to live in," Murray continued. "No down VA, and low down FHA and conventional terms are available."

STARTING AT $21,950 the new location of Tiara Estates is just a few blocks from the center of Orange and is within walking distance to schools, churches, and major shopping facilities.

"The kitchens of Tiara Estates have been planned with convenience in mind for the lady of the house," Murray said. "The General Electric, all-electric kitchen has been built into the homes and have been presented the Mcdallion award signifying the many electric features."

Other features include, two baths, family rooms and dining rooms, patios with decorator colors, pool size lots, cedar shake roofs, fireplaces. Rear yard fencing and front yard landscaping are also included in the sales price.

"THE OVERWHELMING acceptance of Tiara Estates is responsible for our being 25 per cent sold out prior to our grand opening," Murray said.

"The welcome mat is out to homeseekers and their friends," continued Murray.

"to visit the development this weekend. Refreshments will be served and courteous salesmen will be ready to answer all questions pertaining to Tiara Estates."

Huge Gain by Harvill

After a record-breaking year in which sales more than doubled any previous year, Harvill Corp. of Long Beach is expecting continued gains in 1963.

James W. Tuthill, president of the die casting concern, predicted 15 months ago that sales for the fiscal year ending Oct. 31, 1962, would reach $6,000,000. The firm's sales in 10 years had never exceeded $3,000,000 annually.

His expectations were exceeded with sales reaching $6,200,000. "Now," says Tuthill, "we are forecasting another big year with sales reaching $8,000,000." Most of the increase is expected to come from military subcontracts.

The company now occupies a new plant at 19201 Susan Road.

More than $18,000 in gifts and bonuses were given to the staff and sales associates of the Rex L. Hodges Realty Co. at their annual award banquet held at the Petroleum Club. The affair was in recognition of having achieved the 1962 goal of $20,000,000 in sales of used residential homes.

More than 200 associates and their guests attended the dinner dance party. One of the highlights was the award of silver plaques to the top nine sales associates whose sales volume for the first 11 months of 1962 exceeded one-half million dollars. Those receiving awards were: Walter Richman, Jack Saxon, Madalyn Ursano, Lucille Noonan, M. Ellington, Helen Williams, Bob Hendon, and Marge LaBranch.

The top sales award went to "Ric" Owen, who for the 10th year exceeded the $1,000,000 sales volume.

Bess Hodges, widow of the late Rex L. Hodges, was the honored guest.

INTERIOR SPACIOUSNESS

Handsome fireplace dramatizes this large living room in furnished model at Yorba Linda Park.

Yorba Linda Park Offers Big Variety of Stylings in Homes

Can't make up your mind whether time-honored traditional decor or up-and-coming atrium-patio styling is your meat in the new home you're about to buy? Wish you could study them side by side, the way you do a motor car in the dealer's window? Well, you can.

Yorba Linda Park, picturesque residential community in the countryside town of Yorba Linda, gives buyers a closeup look of the designer's artistry in both types of home styling.

Floor plans are offered in three and four-bedroom stylings. Each home features a family/dining room, two or three baths and two showers.

Set on pool-size lots in a smog-free, countryside location, the homes emphasize spaciousness and stylish decor. Highlights are artistic entry halls, decorative fireplaces with log lighters, and sliding glass doors leading to patios.

MEDALLION all-electric kitchens contain built-in range and double oven, overhead range hoods with blower and light, and automatic dishwasher.

The homes may be purchased at no down payment for veterans, except usual costs and impounds. Non-vets may buy with minimum down payment on 35-year FHA loans, the builders stated. Cal-vet and conventional terms also are provided. Complete purchase price is from $20,950.

IT WAS POINTED out that families needing immediate occupancy can be accommodated in Yorba Linda Park's original unit, in which several models are still available at prices ranging from $19,750.

Three models furnished by Carl's of Long Beach are on display. The development is just three miles from Auto-netics' Anaheim headquarters.

From the Long Beach area, Yorba Linda Park is reached by taking either freeway to Placentia Ave. Go north on Placentia to Palm Drive, right on Palm to Valencia Ave., left on Valencia to Yorba Linda Blvd., then right to McCormack Lane.

from $16,650, vets may purchase one of these quality homes for only $90 down including costs. Lowest FHA down payment financing is available or Cal-Vet and Conventional financing also may be considered.

PARLIAMENT HOMES of three bedrooms with den, family room, and dining room or four bedroom homes with family room and dining room. All homes have two full baths. The rear yard is fenced and the front yard landscaped.

Offering the home buyer a choice of seven floor plans and 13 elevations, the attractive interiors feature a large entry hall, used brick or slumstone fireplace, glass sliding patio door, oversize linen closet, generous closet space, and ceramic tile in kitchens and baths.

The Hotpoint all-electric kitchen has built-in push-button range, wide oven, automatic dishwasher, and garbage disposal.

Appealing Features in Sunshine Homes

The contributing factors to the popularity of Huntington Beach Sunshine Homes, units 2 and 3, are quality construction, immediate occupancy, and desirable location in one of the fastest growing sections of Orange County, according to Richard C. Hunsaker, president of S. V. Hunsaker & Sons, builders and developers. An additional bonus is a free gift of fenced rear yard and front yard landscaped.

Features in these three and four bedroom, two full baths, family room, and large two-car garage homes consistently rating favorable comments from buyers include wall-to-wall carpet, floor to ceiling wardrobe doors, all-copper plumbing, and silent forced air heat.

COMPACT, but comfortably designed kitchens, feature built-in range and oven with hood and exhaust fan, disposal, natural finish cabinets, Formica counter tops, and colorful vinyl tile.

Unit 2 homes may be purchased with no down and unit 3 require only $95 down plus nominal impounds.

Located close to excellent schools, grammar school through junior college, Huntington Beach Sunshine Homes are rapidly accessible to industrial areas via freeways. Shopping centers, churches, beaches, and recreational areas are nearby.

Unit 2 homes are located on Golden West and Smeltzer Ave. Unit 3 homes, located adjacent to a park site, may be seen on Golden West and Edward St. Furnished models open daily.

"GOSH, GRAMPS, ARE YOU EVER LUCKY!"

I'd rather visit you than go any place else in the world!" And you know something? He is lucky! For one thing, he lives a resort life on a modest retirement income. An avid golfer, he has 18 in before 10:30 most mornings, then it's a leisurely trip home via the Town Hall where he can always find somebody to swap stories with about his game. After lunch, he usually heads for the Arts & Crafts Center. Lately, he's been very big on leather-working (Has a beautiful purse almost finished for her birthday that's coming up). But, no matter where he goes, he has a spring in his step and a twinkle in his eye for Life's been really worth living since he came to this happy city. But Gramps is no exception. We don't know if the people who move here are a special kind of people when they arrive, or if the spirit of the place is catching, but one thing's for sure! This is the happiest, friendliest place you ever saw.

If you're lucky enough to be 50 or more (or are the adult partner of someone who is), all this can be yours: the fine facilities for recreational fun and creative activity that cost just $20 per person, each year... the golf course which residents play at greatly reduced rates... the top-quality homes and cooperative apartments priced from just $10,950... the big shopping center and Del Webb's Kings Inn, right in town. You'll love it all, including the dry, warm, sunny climate and the rolling hills and green meadows all about.

This active way-of-life is also waiting for you in Del Webb's Kern City near Bakersfield off Highway 99. If you wish, you may get the full story on either city by writing or visiting Del Webb's Sun City Information Center, Room 216, 900 Wilshire Blvd., Los Angeles 17, Calif. Phone: MAdison 6-5127.

HOW THE BOXER GOT HIS NAME HAS NEVER BEEN DETERMINED

BUT THERE ARE SEVERAL THEORIES ON THE ORIGIN OF THIS POPULAR PET'S MONIKER

SOME AUTHORITIES BELIEVE THE TERM IS A CORRUPTION OF THE WORD 'BEISZER,' WHICH MEANS 'BITER,' SINCE THE BREED WAS ONCE USED IN THE SPORT OF BULL BITING OR BULL BAITING

OTHERS SAY THAT 'BOXER,' THE NAME OF AN OLD FIGHTING DOG, WAS THE BASIS FOR BOXER

STILL ANOTHER IDEA IS THAT SOME OF THESE DOGS SEEM TO SPAR WITH THE FRONT FEET IN FIGHTING AND THUS EARNED THE TITLE

BUT, HOWEVER HE CAME TO BE KNOWN AS BOXER MATTERS LITTLE, FOR HE IS ONE OF THE TOP TEN MOST POPULAR BREEDS IN AMERICA

In the Roman Manner

Oil and hand rubbing give this heirloom chair a patina that comes from time and care. It was never varnished.

By Helen L. Gillum

AMONG the many family heirlooms and lovely pieces of "handed down" furniture in the home of Mrs. George Cottle of 2191 Eucalyptus Avenue, there is an old chair that possibly holds more interest than any of the other items. Copied after a style that originated in early Roman times, it bears carvings of a unique design. And, to give full credit for its intended purpose, it must be added that the chair is also very comfortable, imparting a sense of relaxation and pleasure to anyone sitting in it.

This object was one of several articles of furniture that Mrs. Cottle's father-in-law ordered from a cabinetmaker for his young bride many years ago. Besides the chair, there were two massive china cabinets which now fill an entire wall of Mrs. Cottle's dining room, and a glass-fronted corner cabinet which holds antique chinaware and other treasured possessions from the Cottle family. According to one of three framed family records of the Cottles hanging on a wall of her home, the chair and other pieces were made in 1876.

AN INTERESTING truth about chairs is that they were not in common use until about the 16th century. Heretofore, simple stools and benches were the rule. However, the ancient Egyptians, Greeks and Romans did develop certain types of grand chairs, to be used exclusively by the ruling classes. Thus, for a long time, chairs were a symbol of power and honor. For instance, in ancient Rome, the "Curule Magistrates," the highest dignitaries, were distinguished from other persons by being given the privilege of sitting on ivory chairs of specific design, known as "curule" chairs. These had curved, bench-like seats, the curved lower sections much resembling our modern folding campstools with crossed legs. The curule chair eventually became popular design, and was copied later in the familiar Regency benches and other forms, such as Mrs. Cottle's chair.

A DISTINGUISHING feature of this chair is the expressive carving of old King Neptune in the back. The stern visage of the mythical ruler of the deep is easily recognizable in the center, while the mass of gently undulating, hand-carved waves surrounding him creates an illusion of deep, silently moving waters. Since the Cottle family was a seafaring one for many generations, this is a very appropriate motif. The chair's generous size and elegant carvings on the arms and curule-type legs add further dignity and charm.

Mrs. Cottle says that "The chair has never had one drop of varnish on it. Members of the family have periodically hand-rubbed and polished it with warm linseed oil down through the years."

This treatment has resulted in a deep, rich, mellow patina seen only on the finest of antique furniture.

A Horse, a Horse

His Kingdom's on a Horse

By Jerome Hall

Bill Harmatz, pictured astride Winonly, began his second decade of riding as leading jockey when Santa Anita's racing season opened recently.

"HARMATZ? He's one of the best I've ever seen," said the little old man.

And then the little old man, whose name is Johnny Longden, let a smile creep through the deep lines in his weathered face and he added: "I guess I've seen 'em all, too."

William (Bill) Harmatz at the age of 31 wants to retire from his chosen profession. But he's making too much money to quit right now.

So for a few more years he will continue to ride horses, for which he is paid about $100,000 a year.

Bill Harmatz is one of the nation's best jockeys. Additionally, he is a Long Beach businessman whose real estate holdings are growing almost as fast as his horses are running. Latest acquisition is an 862-acre orange grove ($1.7 million). His Shoemaker-Harmatz Enterprises, Inc., soon begins construction on a shopping center in Canoga Park. Bill Harmatz has it made.

WHEN HARMATZ climbed astride his mounts on opening day at Santa Anita recently, it marked beginning of his second decade of riding. During eight of those 10 years, Harmatz has grossed better than $100,000 annually, which is a feat equaled only by such as Willie Shoemaker, Eddie Arcaro and Johnny Longden.

Sometimes, when Harmatz looks back over his riding career, he concludes that it's been a breeze ever since he rode his first race at Caliente. That first year he rode in 1,700 hundred races—"the most of anybody in the country"—in making a big splash as an apprentice. But then things got lean for a couple of years. And, just as suddenly, fortune turned upward again.

When Harmatz began his climb, he moved from Los Angeles to Lakewood.

The Harmatz family (Bill's parents and brothers) has been in business in Long Beach for years. Bill now resides with wife Connie and their four youngsters—ranging in age from 3 to 10—in Montebello. With his real estate interests in Long Beach now, Bill is considering Long Beach for his settling-down years after retiring from the track.

When? "I'm just now beginning to slow up," he says. He's becoming more choosy about the mounts. This, actually, is the indication to racing folk that a jockey "has it made."

A JOCKEY EARNS a minimum of $25 per race, even if the horse never gets across the finish line. So $25 times eight races adds up to a tidy sum each day even if the rider never gets into the one-two-three finish. A rider of Harmatz' caliber has no trouble getting a mount in each race and it is not until he piles up a sizeable bank account that he can overcome the temptation to pick up $25 or $50 for two minutes of work.

Though Harmatz is only 31, he is looked up to by his co-workers, one and all, whether they be apprentices hardly out of childhood, or old-timers. Even Longden considers Harmatz one of the old-timers.

When Harmatz and Longden begin a conversation, all the other jockeys within earshot gather around. You can learn something just listening in this kind of company.

A recent jockeys' room conversation took up

Harmatz looks forward to day he can retire, but he's doing too well now.

the topic of Manuel Ycaza, the so-called bad boy of the track. His fellow jockeys consider Ycaza a much-harassed rider. Ycaza recently finished a controversial suspension for claiming a foul which the stewards felt was not a foul. Since it was Ycaza, the jockeys feel, he was dealt with intemperately.

JOCKEYS HAVE the same regard for stewards that baseball players have for umpires. The difference is the jockeys are not allowed to voice a protest. "Make your foul claim and keep your mouth shut," said Harmatz to the rookie riders gathered around in the dressing quarters between races.

"Yah," said Longden, "but never forget that you never know what the stewards will do. I remember one time I finished a race and one of 'em asked me if I had any trouble. I told him no and he says what about coming out of the gate? I told him yah, I had a little trouble (interference) coming out of the gate and he says 'Why didn't you claim a foul then?'

"I told this steward that I didn't think it was a foul," continued Longden, "but after he looked at the films, he said it was, and suspended me for not claiming a foul that I didn't think really was a foul. So just remember that, you guys."

The rookie riders solemnly nodded ascent.

WHILE THE BIG names in jockey ranks are in the chips, there still is a struggle to break into the business. There has been a noticeable absence of successful apprentices in the past five years. Since there are enough experienced jockeys to go around, a thoroughbred owner is understandably reluctant to turn over his multi-thousand-dollar property to a young boy.

But once a kid gets a taste of riding, it has to be starved out of him. And not infrequently, it is.

"It's rough on the kids," says Harmatz, "but you can understand the owners' point of view. The owners actually put up quite a battle to get the best jockeys. Harmatz, for instance, has been kept busy on the eastern tracks since Hollywood Park closed last July. He passed up most of the Del Mar meeting because he was offered top mounts in Chicago and around New York's racing plants. He passed up the Los Angeles County Fair meeting at Pomona because 'I've got too much money to ride those turns.' The jockeys call the Pomona strip 'the imperfect circle.' It's only one-half-mile around compared to the mile distance at the larger tracks and the jockeys claim there are no straight-aways at the Fair.

LAST TIME HARMATZ rode on the West Coast was the final day of the Del Mar meeting in September. He flew out from New York to spend a little more than two minutes astride a horse named Top Performance. But, alas, Top Performance was topped by the performance of four others in the race. For riding this horse, the owner paid Harmatz' two-way airplane fare from New York and guaranteed him $250. Since Bill wanted to come home for a short vacation with his wife and children, he was glad to accept.

That's the way it goes when a jockey's got it made.

When asked what he considers the toughest part of being a horse rider, Harmatz doesn't mention the long hours (start before dawn, finish after dark) and he ignores the physical strain and danger of an actual race. He doesn't mention the problem of dieting, either. The worst thing about being a jockey is, to Harmatz, the travel. Being away from his wife and children is what has convinced him to give up the track within the next few years.

Californians grow them from the seed

Oysters on the Half Shell

By Betty Hardesty

TO THOSE whose casual interest in oysters has been confined to an occasional plate of Blue Points on the half shell, it is a surprise to find that eastern species of oysters are grown along the California coast. Planted in shallow bays protected from marauding stingrays by long fences of shakes closely set together in the water, the oyster beds produce a valuable and unusual crop.

At Tomales Bay, the odd position of these fences stimulates a newcomer to investigate. The answer is found in the sign, "Tomales Bay Oyster Company," where friendly, white-haired Oscar Johansen explains his oyster enterprise.

He and his assistant, Victor Sousa, are preparing to bring in the oysters they have just gathered in a flat-bottomed boat, now tied at the end of their long pier. Wire bushel baskets are filled with big gray "clutches" of Japanese oysters which are broken apart with a metal claw-hatchet. The long-handled oyster tongs which is used to collect them—like two long-tined rakes, hinged so as to open and close like shears—lie in the boat.

JOHANSEN SAYS that he gathers large oysters when they are two to three years old and sells them retail by the piece or wholesale by the bushel. A restaurant owner from San Francisco buys a daily supply, carried away in gunny sacks. Before putting them in the truck, Johansen im-merges them for a few minutes in the water of the bay. Wearing hip boots and standing in water almost to their tops, he moves the oysters about within the sack to make sure each is well moistened.

"They don't get this kind of care on their way to us," he complains, "they're merely sprinkled once in a while." Each clutch of oysters is made up of 4 to 15 individuals fastened to one old shell, and Johansen says it is a wonder there are that many because the boxes in which the seed oysters are shipped are stacked on deck and exposed to sun and weather. Many of the little seed oysters die on their journey from Japan where they are spawned, hatched and "set." "We can't set oysters here," he continues, "so we also buy eastern seed-oysters, the smaller, 3 to 4-inch smooth kind which you eat on the half-shell."

THE POPULARITY of raw oysters as a delicacy caused the natural bars and reefs to be depleted so rapidly after colonization of America, that by the mid-1800s oyster cultivation was begun. The eastern oysters of the United States (Ostrea virginiana) were found from the Gulf of St. Lawrence to the Gulf of Mexico at that time. The first oyster farmers followed methods used in Japan for centuries with such success in the United States that today farms on "about 350,000 underwater acres furnish more than two-thirds of 66 million pounds of oysters eaten annually" in the U. S. alone, according to biologist Robert Ingle.

In northeastern oyster beds water conditions are right for the setting of "spat" which become seed oysters. That is where large quantities of empty oyster shells are spread along the mud bottoms to provide a convenient hard surface on which the spat may attach themselves. The oyster-seeded shells can then be collected and transported to nearby or distant growing beds.

An oyster's life is beset with constant hazards beginning with fertilization of the egg. Inasmuch as the eggs and the sperm are released into open water, it is only by chance that they meet at all. Only a small fraction of the 60-million to 500-million eggs laid by one oyster in one season hatch into minute free-swimming spat. After about two weeks of floating, swimming and constant eating, the oysters develop tiny shells about as big as the head of a pin and sink to the bottom in search of a hard-surfaced home.

SATISFIED with the conveniently provided shell, the spat secretes an adhesive substance which hardens and cements it securely for life. Though it has survived thus far without being eaten by a jelly-fish, the seed oyster is still not safe. It may be smothered in mud, parched by the sun or frozen if tides are low, or deprived of its required salt when spring freshets dilute the salt water. Still other troubles might destroy its food supply.

The oyster feeds constantly on minute sea life by pumping water over its gills so that solid particles are directed toward the oyster's mouth through canals of thick-flowing mucus.

The temperature of water governs the rate of growth of an oyster as well as its food supply. In Tomales Bay, oysters reach market-size in two or three years. The slower the growth, the more firm the oyster with some taking five years to attain their adult size. A 23 per cent solid meat content is found in these slow growers. Farmers consider water temperatures of 60 to 70 degrees ideal.

The oyster accommodates its shell to its increasing growth by adding to the edge. The deep half of the shell holds the oyster; the right, flat half, is a movable lid. The Japanese variety grows a 6 to 8-inch shell in Tomales Bay.

STARFISH, rays, fungus and unexplained maladies beset oysters. West Coast experiments to improve oyster farming are under way. Principal California oyster beds are found from Morro Bay northward. One oysterman had some success growing his oysters in baskets in Japanese fashion after stingrays had once wiped out his operation on Catalina Island. Some effort is being made to farm oysters near San Diego.

Southern California's chief source of Blue Points, however, is a trucked importation from the east in frozen form, in which they remain fresh and dormant for a considerable period of time.

Oysters rank fourth in dollar value but 14th in U. S. seafood harvest. They are protein and high in nutritional values.

Food oysters have pearls only rarely, and then not of a commercial value.

Victor Sousa separates oysters from clutches and packs them in gunny sacks for marketing.

A Resume May Land That Job

By Roberta Nichols

"IT WILL BE better tomorrow," the young wife said as her husband pushed aside his dinner, too tired to eat. "You're qualified for many jobs. It's just luck."

"That's what I keep telling myself," he answered. "But job hunting is time consuming—driving from one end of town to another, filling out applications, waiting endlessly only to discover that the job has just been filled; that my education is fine, but I lack experience. Or that experience is unnecessary; I just don't have enough background in science."

The young woman looked up from the help wanted section of the newspaper. "I notice that some companies say 'submit job resume.' Would that save time?"

He shook his head. "I hear that resumes are costly to have prepared and only executives use them anyway. I'm just getting started. Besides," he admitted, "I'm not real sure what a resume is."

"Why not find out?" his wife suggested. "Tomorrow."

SO NEXT day he went to the State Department of Employment for information. As a result, he was able to prepare and mail 12 resumes within the month. Out of these he received four responses from potential employers and had his pick of three jobs.

What the discouraged job seeker discovered was that a resume is an inventory of qualifications for a particular job. It is written concisely and accurately, aimed at getting an interview with an employer who needs someone with your education, experience, abilities, and ambitions. It is a job-hunting tool which can be sent to many more prospective employers than you could possibly visit. And an answer from one of them indicates interest.

Two popular misconceptions about the resume are that only highly professional persons need it, and that it must be prepared by an expert.

According to George Toll, office manager of the California State Department of Employment in Long Beach, anyone in clerical or sales work needs a resume as much as an engineer or scientist. And while it is not generally conceded that unskilled workers are benefited, there are exceptions. Because many large companies do not want job turnover, they like to make every job career-type. Therefore they want to know everything about an employee who will be with them until retirement.

ALTHOUGH A RESUME can be prepared by a professional, it is not necessary. "In fact," says Toll, "it is actually desirable to make up your own. Once it is complete, you have your own accurate record for future reference. Applicants should be cautioned, however, to make the resume concise and factual."

What should the resume include? There are no set rules. The following is only a suggestion.

HEADING. Name, address, telephone number.

JOB OBJECTIVE. Tell the employer what job or jobs you are qualified for and seeking. Don't make him guess.

WORK HISTORY. Start with the last job and work back. Give date of employment, employer's name, address, type of business, position held, and name and title of supervisor. Stating salary is optional. State duties performed, particularly those which pertain to the job you seek. What was your responsibility? What did you achieve?

MILITARY EXPERIENCE OR DRAFT CLASSIFICATION.

EDUCATION. Should also include extracurricular activities and honors.

MISCELLANEOUS. Special skills, membership in organizations, hobbies.

PERSONAL DATA. Date of birth (optional), marital status, physical description.

You will see that the resume is very much like an ordinary application—only one put together under ideal conditions. It is neatly typed. You have worked at home where records and dates of former employment and education are readily available. And you have written a covering letter.

THE VERY FIRST sentence of the letter should interest the prospective employer in reading the resume and

SOUTHLAND HOMES

Has Mobile Home, Doesn't Plan Travel

Handsomely furnished and spacious, the living room leaves nothing to be desired as a part of this home. Draped door in right background gives access to the den-study.

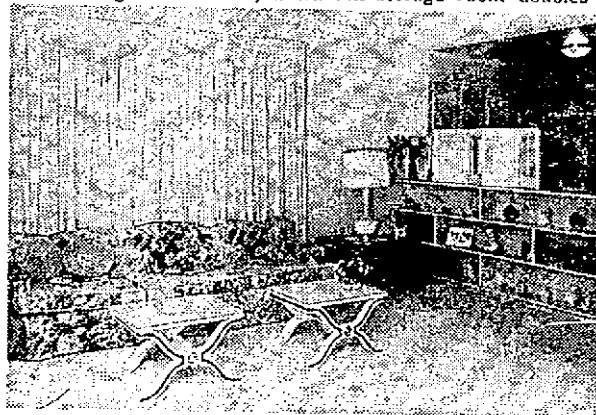

By Stella George

MOBILE HOMES have provided the answer to residential needs of a large and growing sector of the Southland populace and, that luxury in accommodations is provided, needs no further proof than a look into the mobile home of Mrs. Nina Burroughs of Belmont Shores Mobile Homes, located on Pacific Coast Highway east of Bellflower Boulevard.

From an exterior view, the home would normally be judged as fairly large but the view from within reveals an amazing spaciousness. The living room is extended to 21-foot width; the kitchen accommodates a dining table as well as a desk in the alcove; a den-study can also be used as a guest bedroom; a walk-in storage room doubles as a dressing room for the den when need be; a bathroom is so spacious that it has approximately 13 running feet of dressing-table area; and a master bedroom has closets lining both sides.

MRS. BURROUGHS decorated her home with the artistic talent of a professional interior designer. Drapes, walls, and carpeting (which extends down the hall into the bedroom) are antique white. Twin lounge chairs and coffee table on one side of the living room face a quilted, flowered couch done in shades of blue and green. A handsome avocado green Shelves, shown at the right in above view of the living room, serve to divide this area from the kitchen. Folding shutters provide additional screening when desired.

Kitchen and dining area are ample for all normal needs. Full length drapes lend note of luxury (right). Cupboard space exceeds that found in most homes of average size.

Photos by Joe Risner

Den is spacious and can double as a guest bedroom,

occasional chair is nearby.

The separation which divides the living room from the kitchen is expertly designed. On the living room side are wide, open shelves that display knickknacks, books, and pictures. The top of the unit is used as a bar only for buffet dinners. Sink and work area are on the other side, and a folding shutter screen on top of the divider adds a decorative touch.

Kitchen woodwork is finished in antique white with matching floor covering color. Twenty functional cupboards serve the kitchen more than in most average homes. One built-in unit has two glass-front shelves for glassware.

Dining space in the kitchen has floor-to-ceiling drapes, providing a backdrop for a marble-topped dining table and upholstered chairs. A sparkling chandelier hangs over the table. In an alcove on one side a desk faces a window. Appliances are tinted to match the color scheme.

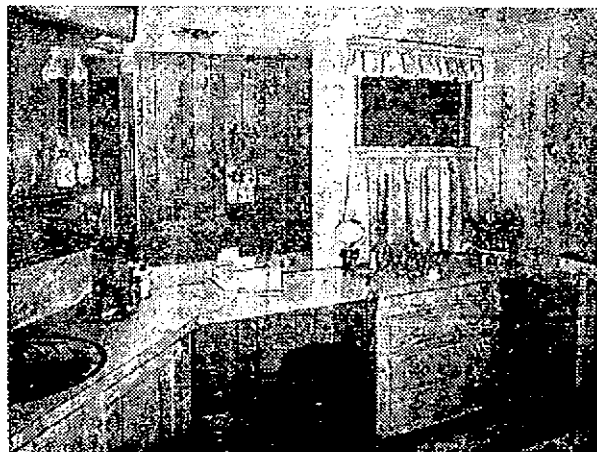

A NEW ADDITION to the mobile home is the cabana, a many-purpose room which can serve as a comfortable and attractive guest bedroom. The decor differs from the rest of the home, but blends in the intended fashion:

woodwork and carpeting are a dark beige or toast color. A couch pulls out to form a bed. Adjoining the room is a walk-in storage room with shelves about two feet deep on one side, closet space on the other with more shelves above, ample for items such as suitcases. A small dressing table with mirror above is in the center rear of the room.

The bathroom in this mobile home can be described in one word: luxurious.

THE MASTER bedroom has more closet space than in the bedroom of an average home. This, of course, provides for hidden chests of drawers, storage shelves and plenty of room for hanging clothes. White carpeting, continuing down the hall from the living room, adds elegance to the room.

A small garden surrounding the home is carefully landscaped. The home is new, so plants, shrubs, and trees are small. It is easy to visualize, however, that as years go on and the shrubs, trees, and plants grow tall the home will maintain and improve its attractive (and substantial) qualities. While it is a mobile home, it now rests on a hill, has a view, and it is unlikely ever to have a new address. According to Mrs. Burroughs, it is a dream home come true.

Bathroom has 13 lineal feet of dressing table area.

Designed especially for a corner, this house is pleasing from both exposed sides. Also suitable for a mid-block narrow lot, it is only 37 feet wide.

HOUSE OF THE WEEK

Design Solves a Corner Problem

By Jules Loh

ABOUT A YEAR ago, architect Lester Cohen designed a house specifically for a narrow lot, solving the problem of many House of the Week readers who were literally being squeezed out of most of today's home designs.

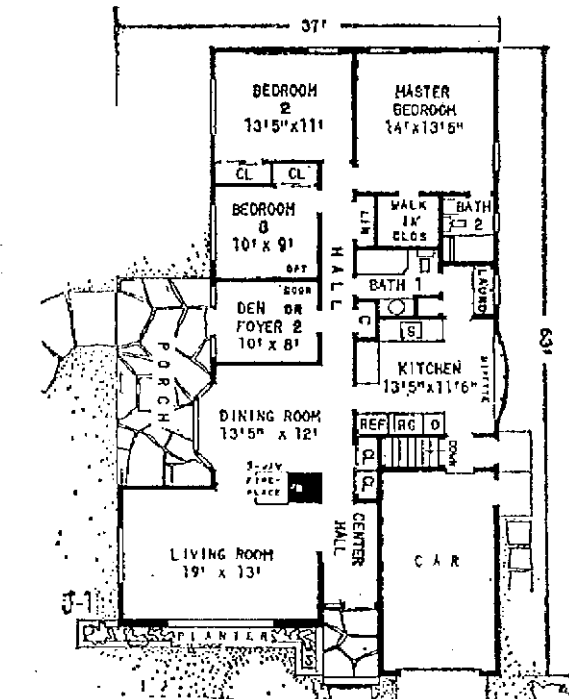

"Since then," said Cohen, "I've been getting requests from persons who own corner lots, especially narrow corner lots. Their problem is more complicated—but not insoluble."

Cohen's newest design, House of the Week J-1, solves it effectively, attractively and economically. It is a three (or four) bedroom ranch with some optional features so the owner can accommodate it to his own needs.

THE HOUSE is only 37 feet wide including the garage, which means it could fit on a 50-foot lot in many areas. Its depth is 63 feet, and it contains a modest 1,522 square feet of living space not counting basement or garage.

On a corner lot, both exposed sides present an equally pleasing appearance, so that actually the front door could be placed on either side. On the other hand, if the house were placed on a mid-block narrow lot it retains an area for outdoor living—a feature often sacrificed in "elongated" houses.

All this merely accommodates the house to the problem lot; there's plenty to recommend this house, moreover, no matter what lot it's built on.

Den offers optional location for front entry, and optional door between the den and bedroom No. 3.

THE FLOOR PLAN is exceptionally well ordered for a medium-sized house, with the sleeping area placed well away from the housekeeping and entertaining areas, convenient bathroom facilities, direct entry from the garage to the kitchen, efficient use of floor space, plus a number of luxury touches seldom found in homes this size.

If the main entry were placed on the narrow side of this house, next to the garage, the room adjoining the dining room could be used as a den or, in a pinch, a fourth bedroom. An optional door between it and bedroom No. 3 also would convert it into a two-room apartment for in-laws. As a den, library, music room or other relaxing spot, however, it is ideal. A door leads to the flagstone porch, and windows on both sides provide plenty of sunlight.

If the main entry were placed on the long side, this den would become the main foyer—and a spacious one at 10x8 feet.

AN EYE-CATCHING three-way fireplace divides the living and dining rooms, complementing the broad window overlooking the planter on the front wall of the living room. The dining room also has a dramatic bay window, looking out over the porch and side yard.

A pleasant bow window also enhances the kitchen and provides an obvious spot for the breakfast table, out of the way of the work area. There is abundant counter space in the kitchen, and no less than 32 linear feet of hanging and counter cabinets.

Laundry facilities are located unobtrusively near the kitchen and adjacent to the bedroom wing and the main bathroom; and the supply cabinet is extra large.

A second entrance to the main bathroom makes it do the work of two, serving both the kitchen and the bedrooms. The master bedroom, of course, has its own bath with stall shower.

Note that every bit of the plumbing in this house — kitchen, laundry and both bathrooms—is grouped in this location, a real money-saving feature.

Large and well-placed closets are another feature of this house. There are two closets near the center hall, another opposite the den, a linen closet convenient to all the bedrooms and a large walk-in closet in the master bedroom.

BACK-ACHE

If you suffer pains of an aching back due to over-exercise or nervous tension, begin at once to enjoy the benefits of deep penetrating heat and gentle massage in your own bathtub with a

Jacuzzi
WHIRLPOOL BATH

Many common aching backs are the result of too much physical activity or unusual exercise... or the everyday tension that tightens back and neck muscles. Muscle spasm causes pain until nature slowly repairs the damage and relaxes the sore, tight muscle.

Tension headaches and aching backs often respond quickly to hydromassage. The forceful, moving water filled with bursting air bubbles is the kind of massage that relaxes muscles spasm and stimulates local blood circulation where applied. The Jacuzzi Whirlpool Bath provides the warm water massage doctors and therapists recommend to speed up the relaxation process and help nature do her job.

If you suffer pains of an aching back, muscular soreness, headaches -- you should try a Jacuzzi Whirlpool Bath in your own home bathtub. This pleasure can be yours immediately -- perhaps tonight.

FOOD

A Return to Diet Normalcy

By Mildred K. Flanary
Southland Magazine Home
Economics Editor

AFTER THE TURKEY, ham and festive desserts, perhaps you're in the mood for that budget-compatible, all-occasion food--beans. They'll be a welcome diet change, we assure you.

Did you ever try a "Rabbit" with beans added? "Rinktum Ditty" (no one seems to know how it got its name or how old it may be) is a distant cousin to the supper party favorite, "Welsh Rabbit." Easy to make and inexpensive, this tomato-cheese dish gains distinction and becomes more substantial eating by the addition of white beans.

The mixture may be cooked in a double boiler, and transferred to a casserole, to be kept hot over a food warmer of some sort, as it is ladled over crisp hot buttered toast triangles. Cooked bacon strips or curls make a good topping; pickled watermelon is right as a flavor accent. Finish off with coffee and a light but festive dessert. Good the year around but especially now!

This recipe makes 6 to 8 servings, using 2 cups cooked and drained beans, but it is well to double or triple the amount in cooking the beans. The unusual flavor of large white beans adds a delicious difference to any recipe calling for white beans, and to many another which ordinarily does not, such as this variation. Besides, with the liquid left from draining the beans plus some extra beans, you can have a good soup for lunch.

Incidentally cooked beans freeze well.

Rinktum Ditty With Beans

- 1 can (10½ ounce size) condensed tomato soup
- 2 cups (½ pound) shredded sharp Cheddar cheese
- ¼ teaspoon dry mustard
- ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- Dash or 3 of Tabasco sauce
- 1 egg, slightly beaten
- 2 cups cooked and drained large, white, dry beans

Heat the soup, cheese, seasonings, over hot water in chafing dish or double boiler. When cheese is melted, quickly add the slightly beaten egg, stirring constantly, until smooth. Then carefully stir in the cooked, and preferably hot, drained beans. Add dashes of salt and pepper. If desired, ¼ cup minced onion, cooked in butter, may be added. When hot, serve over crisp piping-hot buttered toast. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

For the same effect but a different flavor, you may like to use either cooked red or pinto beans. These beans are prepared in the same fashion but should be cooked at least a half-hour longer for any purpose.

After a surfeit of ham, turkey and fancy holiday desserts, return to plainer, but tasty fare, is indicated. This "Welsh Rabbit" variation with beans is an idea.

Very Young, Very Elegant

Arrives the busy 1963 season and the very young elegants select their "party clothes" with just as much thought and good taste as their elders.

Pretty, becoming dresses in Crompton cotton velveteen are the vogue for the younger set. The colors are marvelous and it is definitely very smart to be seen in black and navy too! Designers for these social butterflies have added wonderful touches such as deep heavy lace collars, appliques and other distinctive features certain to enchant the young ladies. The toddlers have flattering no-waist line styles to choose from, while the older girls have a variety of silhouettes to select from. Even young brother can't be outdone by his female compatriots. He, too, can be decked out perfectly in an Eton suit in bright red velveteen.

Each and every one of the young elegants really is very elegant, and enchanting . . . and all set for the important occasions about to come.

MEDICINE AND YOU

Emotions Held Cause of Hives

By Ben Zinser

Southland Magazine Medical-Science Writer

A WIDELY held view that chronic hives are emotional in origin appears justified, a psychiatrist reports.

Dr. Robert J. Shoemaker, clinical assistant professor of psychiatry at University of Pittsburgh School of Medicine, told the Academy of Psychosomatic Medicine of studies of 40 persons afflicted with chronic hives.

In general, psychiatric examination revealed a childhood setting of emotional deprivation and chronic frustration of fundamental need for love. This provided a "backdrop of insecurity forever reflected in their lives."

Patients were found to be more active before onset of the ailment.

A VETERANS Administration research project shows the importance of early surgical removal of suspicious-looking lung nodules in men over 50.

More than 70 VA and armed forces hospitals pooled information in a study of 900 men who underwent surgery for a single nodule in the lung.

Fifty-five per cent of the nodules in men over 50 were cancerous.

Some of the nodules turned out to be a result of tuberculosis or fungus diseases such as valley fever or histoplasmosis. But surgery is the only way to tell definitely whether a solitary lung nodule might be malignant, the researchers say.

FOR THE THIRD time since 1958 surgeons have successfully removed a life-threatening blood clot from the lung area.

In the latest effort a team of surgeons at Touro Infirmary, New Orleans, operated on a 31-year-old man. During the operation a heart-lung machine was hooked to his circulation to serve temporarily as his heart and lungs.

A massive clot—three inches long and an inch in diameter—was removed. It had been blocking completely the left pulmonary artery and partially blocking the right pulmonary artery.

The patient was discharged from the hospital 45 days after the operation.

SAFETY GLASS used for auto windshields and windows isn't as safe as another kind of glass, a researcher contends.

Safer—but unfortunately prohibited by law—is glass tempered with heat, says Dr. William A. Lange of Wayne State University in Detroit.

This glass, when shattered, produces fragments with rounded edges—far less likely to inflict injury, he says.

Safety glass, on the other hand, tends to shatter into sharp, jagged pieces on impact, Dr. Lange maintains. Safety glass is made of two layers of glass compressed against a sheet of plastic.

Auto manufacturers would substitute tempered glass for so-called safety glass, but can't. Some states have laws insisting that cars have safety glass, he explains.

The report is, in Medical World News, a newsmagazine for doctors.

A NEW antibiotic called cephalothin appears to be as effective as the tetracycline drugs against a wide variety of germs.

Trials to date show cephalothin can subdue staph germs which resist penicillin.

The drug, not yet available to the general physician, is given by injection.

LA REINA RULE

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

Send your name to LaReina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave. Long Beach 12, Calif., for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

DEAR MISS RULE: Have you data on McCRIMMON.—E. M., Seal Beach.

E.M.: McCRIMMON is a Scotch name usually spelled MacCrimmin. The source meant "sons of the bent one," referring to an ancestor with a bent back. This clan were a sept or division of Clan MacLeod of Lewis, near whom they lived. Their shield is silver, decorated with a gold lion between three red crosses on a blue chevron. The unusual clan motto "Permitte caetera divis" means "Leave the rest to the care of the gods," a primitive pagan slogan handed down from time immemorial. Donald Ban MacCrimmon, a famous bagpiper, was among the ancestors. He was killed fighting with the Scotch royalists for Bonnie Prince Charlie in 1745.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please explain CHARBONEAU. — Mrs. C., Garden Grove.

MRS. C.: CHARBONEAU is from the French occupational name Charbonneau. This meant "little charcoal seller" in the Middle Ages. The Charbonneau family were granted a coat-of-arms in the old French province of Dauphine. Their shield is red, emblazoned with a golden warrior's sling twisted in a triple "X" design, placed vertically in the center of the shield. On the sling is a silver pebble; below it on the red background are two more pebbles.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would like the origin of TATUM and TATOM.—W. T., M. R., Long Beach.

W. T., M. R.: TATUM and TATOM incorporate within them a personality characterization of the remote forefather. The source of these surnames, "Tata-ham" translates as "the cheerful man's home." The root name became Tatham, then Tatum and Tatom. The town of Tatham, Lancashire, is named for these families. Records of 1198 A.D. mention an ancestor, "William of Tatham." London records of 1744 note the wedding of Sarah Tatum. The family shield is covered with six alternating silver and blue triangles.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please explain GUNN.—N. B., Los Alamitos.

N. B.: GUNN, a Scotch clan name, honors the ancestor Gunnar of Caithness, whose name meant "warlike one." Legends say Gunnar's beautiful daughter Helen was engaged to her cousin when a young Clan Keith chief attacked her home with his followers. The Keiths, skilled many Gunn warriors and carried off Helen to their castle. She was so unhappy she jumped to her death from the castle tower. Gunn and Keith descendants feuded for many years after this tragedy until they finally agreed to a truce meeting. There were to be 12 horsemen of each clan at the meeting. The Keiths arrived with two men on each horse and killed many Gunns. Escapers later retaliated by killing the Keith chief and carrying off his son. The Gunn coat-of-arms used by them in battle, has six alternating blue and silver horizontal stripes covering the shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give data on BAER.—M. B., Long Beach.

M. B.: BAER is a German name based on the old High German word "bero" meaning "bear." This surname indicates that the ancestors owned a shop or inn trademarked by a colored sign picturing a bear. Baer is also a variation of the English surname Bear with the same origin.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please analyze PELLETTIER.—J. P., Lakewood.

J. P.: PELLETTIER, a French surname, indicates the primogenitor's occupation. This name reveals Pelletier as a medieval "furrier." Among the ancestors was Pierre Pelletier, noted French chemist of the early 1800s.

DEAR MISS RULE: Can you give information on SANCHEZ.—M.S., Long Beach.

M.S.: SANCHEZ is a famous Spanish family name traced to a progenitor known for his piety, since this name deciphers as "son of the pious one." The Sanchez coat-of-arms has a gold-crowned, golden eagle centered on a blue shield. Descendants were California settlers in the 1700s.

Home shop project to whet the appetite of anyone with a yen for Early American, this colonial hutch is tops.

By William Meyerricks

WINTER workshop project that will keep you busy for some time but will yield a lifetime of pleasure thereafter is this colonial hutch with its broad, 60-inch long buffet base. It's not a beginner's piece, but, if you want to try out new Christmas tools on Colonial pieces, we suggest one of the more simple projects such as Colonial Accent Pieces (S-46) or Colonial Nightstand (S-17).

If you're looking for a bigger challenge, this one offers it. The buffet section includes four drawers and four cabinets big enough for large service pieces as well as special occasion appliances. The drawers are deep enough for boxed silver as well as table linens.

THE HUTCH section adds an ideal background for display of your best china.

The plan provides scale squared outlines for the curved parts and section and detail diagrams to make perfectly clear door and drawer construction. All other parts are dimensioned precisely in the Parts List.

TO OBTAIN Colonial Hutch Plan S-89 send name and address and 50 cents to Building Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif. S-46 and S-17 are also available for 50 cents each.

Handy Shelves You Can Make

One way to have things at low cost is the do-it-yourself formula—a few scraps of wood, some leisure time in your workshop and nothing to pay each week. Suppose your home needs more shelf space. Marilee Jones, NBC television actress, displays a three-unit arrangement for wall storage in most any room of the house. When scrap wood is used, the cost is nil, and the project is easy with a full sized pattern showing each step and details of variations. Make one or more. Send 50 cents in coin, check or money order, with name and address, for Pattern, No. 172, to Steve Ellingson, Southland Magazine, Pattern Department, Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif.

Help in Spelling

By Harry Karns

Education Research Associates

QUESTION: Are there any techniques a child can use to become a better speller?

ANSWER: Certainly. Educational studies have shown that the good speller has a system for studying his words. He looks carefully at words, uses the dictionary a great deal, and repeats words aloud.

Suggest these steps to your child:

1. Look at the word. Divide it into syllables; think of its meaning, its length, its sound.

2. Cover the word and repeat these things in your mind. What did the word look like? How long was it?

What did it mean? How did it sound?

3. Uncover the word and check how well you remembered it. What mistakes, if any, did you make?

4. Cover the word again. Write it from memory.

5. Check it for accuracy.

6. Use it in a sentence.

7. After studying the entire list of words in this way, have someone give you a test.

8. Repeat the process in studying the words missed.

QUESTION: Where do you start in helping a child who has difficulty with word problems in math?

ANSWER: Look at his papers and watch him do several problems, and ask yourself these questions about his work:

1. Is he using the correct process? Does he divide when he's supposed to divide and subtract when he's supposed to subtract?

2. Is he using the correct process but doing his calculations incorrectly?

3. Does he read the problem through before starting the work?

4. Does he guess at answers?

5. Does he understand what the problem means when it speaks of the "product," the "dividend," or the "total"?

6. Does he go back and check his work?

7. Does he copy the work correctly from the book?

NOTE: Many students are tripped up by word problems because they failed somewhere along the line to learn certain basic information. It is important to know how many inches there are in a foot, how many weeks in the year, how many pounds in a ton, how many quarts in a gallon. Most texts in the elementary and junior high school grades refer frequently to weights, measures and distances.

Bed That's Real Doggy

WHEN A GIRL is dog-tired and wants to curl up in a cozy corner for a snooze, a good old inner tube, like that shown above, can be a life saver. With her own favorite blanket, and a chin-rest in any direction, she is ready for solid comfort, protected from drafts on all sides. Besides, her bed is mostly flea-proof.

If she gets a restless urge, she can move her bed all by herself, as Ci-Ci, pictured here, could tell you. Her only problem was that people kept grabbing up her bed every time she vacated it, until a wide strip of adhesive-tape was placed on the inner tube, reading, "Ci-Ci's Bed—Do Not Disturb."

Philodendrons: Indoors and Out

Tradition tells us that philodendrons are strictly house plants, but any local member of the California Association of Nurserymen will tell you otherwise. Here in Southern California gardeners can enjoy these richly textured foliage plants both in their homes and in their gardens.

We can't recommend them for general garden use, but for protected patios and against shaded walls, they make a dramatic showing. They are excellent for the lanai room, also, extending the garden right into the house by their use.

Philodendrons are loosely grouped in two sections, one of which contains the trailing or climbing varieties, while the other includes those tree-like specimens with giant leaves, which make such an impressive display.

One of the best for dramatic effects is the Tree

Philodendron, a lush tropical with deeply-lobed leaves two to three feet long.

When you grow philodendrons in a pot or container—especially indoors—they require frequent attention. Water is the main problem, usually a lack of it. Make sure the root ball is soaked through when you water. Feed indoor philodendrons every month with a complete food and repot them with some new soil every year or so.

Double Grand Champion Di Napoli's Sorenade in Blue and kitten are Siamese owned by Marge Naples of Long Beach.

By Eleanor Avery Price

WEST SHORE Cat Club and California Cat Club have their first double Cat Fanciers Association show

held in the Southland and the first cat show ever presented in Santa Monica Civic Auditorium on Jan. 12 and 13. Cats are at their best in winter, and a top-quality exhibit is anticipated.

It is easy to see that cats are independent, cunning, curious, and possess a charming lunacy. It is not so easy to determine a cat's intelligence. True, nearly all can gauge heights and widths, stroll among precious articles without breaking them, and walk through cacti without being scratched. And some have been taught or teach themselves to do an amazing number of tricks.

But for every cat that can turn a tap there are thousands that cannot. And a cat does not cooperate in fancy mazes nor in other research tests. In fact, cats seldom perform at all unless it is to their advantage. As St. George Jackson Mivart, English scientist, wisely said, "We cannot, without becoming cats, perfectly understand the cat mind."

ONE THING we know for certain, all cats become adept at expressing themselves. A cat showing affection for another feline licks the other's face. When one cat wishes to join another in a pre-empted place such as a comfortable chair or sunny windowsill, the newcomer almost always licks the cat who was there first. Both may comment in a monosyllable or two. If the first occupant wishes to eject the newcomer, he will hiss or growl.

Cats, especially Siamese, enjoy talking to humans. They make themselves heard when they want to go out of the house or are hungry. Many talk uninterruptedly while waiting for a meal. When stroked by a human, they usually purr. When spoken to, they return the greeting with little throat noises.

Cats also "talk" by pantomime. They run back and forth from the meal-getter to the place their dish is supposed to be. They act out the charade of twining around the ankles which means, "Can't you see I'm starving?"

WHEN A CAT senses trouble, it can become very noisy. A number of cats have aroused their sleeping owners when they smelled smoke.

A deserted kitten is most audible in its desperate plea for friendship and food. A cat deserted even for a weekend in its own house doesn't give up its depression quickly. It shows its trauma eloquently before it returns to its usual affectionate manner.

Cats also express themselves with their tails, fur, eyes, ears.

JUST TO SET the record straight, the Weimaraner is MOST happy as an upland game dog. A typographical error in this column December 30 made it appear that the reverse was true.

His Kingdom's on a Horse

BILL HARMATZ is a complete contrast to the usual picture of a jockey. He has never been injured in a race, aside from a few bruises. And he doesn't have to maintain a starvation diet. During the course of a three-hour interview for this article, he consumed three bottles of soft drink, two pieces of cake and several cups of coffee with cream. All this between lunch and dinner.

"I guess since I don't have to worry about my diet, it makes life a lot more pleasant," he admits. "I just plain like riding." Asked what he believes he would have done had he not been so constructed as to be able to jockey horses, he quickly replies: "Drive race cars."

There's one thing he knows he would never be: a horse race bettor. "Toughest thing in the world is to pick a winner," he says.

When he's asked for "hot tips" he politely refuses comment. In years past he tried to be helpful, but "they got mad if they didn't win."

So now Harmatz simply tells 'em all: "If I could pick 'em, I wouldn't have to ride 'em."

Job Resume

You will not lack for help in your project. Although the employment office will not prepare a resume for you, it will advise. A pamphlet entitled "How to Do It" is published by the California State Employment Service, Sacramento, and is free upon request. Samples of resumes are included.

An excellent reference book, "Why and How to Prepare an Effective Job Resume," by Juvenal Londono Angel, is available at the public library as are city and telephone directories which are invaluable in verifying addresses and names that tend to drop out of memory during the years.

It's true the resume is only a glorified job application, but properly prepared and properly used, it is THE application. The one that gets the job.

They Amassed a Fortune in Art

By Vera Williams

Southland Magazine Book Editor

HOW TWO wealthy spinster sisters wandered in to modern art on the ground floor and amassed a fabulous collection is told in "THE COLLECTORS, Dr. Claribel and Miss Etta Cone" by Barbara Pollack (Bobbs-Merrill, $5). Their collection, in a special wing at the Baltimore Museum of Art, attracts thousands of visitors every year.

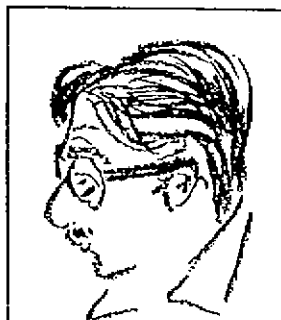

The sisters early became acquainted with the Stein family — Gertrude, Leo, Michael and Sarah—even before the Steins became part of the Paris art world and the art wave of the future. They became good friends with Matisse—and the Baltimore gallery has one of the best Matisse collections in the country.

They were not inspired collectors, one wonders exactly how much they knew about art, but they liked to travel, get acquainted with artists, and collect their wares. The interests paid off.

Buildings and layout of the old Bean Ranch are shown in this photo taken by the author in 1918. Only the eucalyptus tree now remains as a reminder of past era.

By Loretta Berner

IF JOTHAM BIXBY were to ride down Bixby Road on one of his quarterly inspection tours today, he would stop in bewilderment to look at the land that went on sale for 80 cents an acre in 1866. Don Juan Temple received $20,000 in gold that year from Flint, Bixby & Co. for the entire Los Cerritos Rancho, including the Temple Hacienda, now the historic Casa de Rancho Los Cerritos. Today a single residential lot is for sale on California Ave. at an asking price of $26,000.

Used first for grazing, then for farming, the present day Bixby Knolls area of the old Rancho became known about 1906 as the "Sulphur Well Field," and was used as a watering spot for cattle and horses. As time passed, a barn and a blacksmith shop were built on the top of the hill and a house moved in. Lima beans became the principal crop with barley and alfalfa occupying a small portion of the area. It was known as the "Bean Ranch."

Today the old ranch has become the site of ultra modern stores and offices. Paved streets, schools and churches, fine homes complete with patios and swimming pools have spread over the area, until one finds only an occasional vacant lot. Hughes Junior High School and Longfellow Elementary School now stand along the route of the old Bixby Road that cut straight through the fields from Long Beach Blvd. to Cherry Ave., perpendicular to the front door of the George H. Bixby home, now 11 La Linda Dr. North of the ranch buildings, an old reservoir spread over part of what is now the "Devil's Hill" area, around

Myrtle Avenue and Cartagena Street. All that remains now of the old ranch house and farm buildings site is a eucalyptus tree standing in the side yard at 3930 California Ave.

THREE OTHER ranches were still a part of the old Cerritos Rancho in those years, located north of San Antonio Dr.: the Mitchell Ranch to the northeast, the Oscar King Ranch to the northwest, and the Howard King Ranch, north of the old Long Beach Blvd. bridge.

The Mitchell Ranch was operated in conjunction with the Bean Ranch for many years, the former being headquarters for both. All that remains of the Mitchell Ranch today is an old well site in the Maynards' back yard at 1501 Harwick St.

Colby Clarke, still living in Long Beach, was boss of the Mitchell Ranch, and his brother, Edwin Clarke, now living in Gardena, was the boss of the Bean Ranch. Both are now retired.

I remember Ed Clarke squatting on the front steps on early spring mornings to plan the day's work with his men, while the meadow lark's song wove itself in and out of the chorus of crowing roosters and clucking hens.

The ground had to be plowed and disked and harrowed in preparation for bean planting in May. By midsummer the beans were ready for cultivating and, in September, for cutting. In between the work with the beans, the barley that had been planted the previous November must be cut. Traditionally this cutting began the first Monday after July 4. Bean thrashing was done much the same as in any other part of the country, with one exception. The day's work did not begin until all traces of fog had vanished and the sun had shone long enough to dry out the vines. Then the barley field was plowed and the seed always planted beginning the Monday after Thanksgiving.

FROM THEN until spring, only seven or eight men were kept on the place. The winter months were spent repairing machinery and harness. Seed sorting took place in the bean shed, while the blacksmith shop hummed with horse-shoeing and parts repairing. And, interwoven through all this, were tall tales of far-off places and unusual experiences as rival storytellers spun their yarns. Iowa corn fields, Kansas wheat farms and southern cotton fields along with Oregon rodents and Texas cattle country became mixed up in my mind with the land of Paul Bunyan and the exploits of Father Junipero Serra and Joaquin Murietta.

Fred King, the blacksmith, used to let me crank the blower on the forge in the shop when he wasn't too busy. As such times he was most careful of his language. But sometimes I used to sneak up on the overhead storage rack, where lying flat on my stomach I could see all that went on below. Everything would be fine until a streak of profanity would turn the air blue, and I would be unable to suppress a giggle. After a moment of dead silence would come the command "Go to the house and tell your mother she wants you."

The ranch house itself was typical of the times. The big dining room had benches flanking both sides of the long table. On the white oil-cloth the sugar bowl, spoon-holder and condiment cruets always shared a spot in the center with the toothpicks. A clean dish towel was thrown over these between meals, and if flies were bothersome, big sheets of "tanglefoot" fly-paper were spread carefully around.

The cook was boss of the ranch house, which was home for the men, and she served as nurse and advisor when called upon. However, about twice a year she descended on the bunk house and made all hands help with a general housecleaning. Each bed must be personally inspected by her and liberally anointed with "bed bug poison." Like a crusader whose duty has been done, she would return to her kitchen followed by her grumbling helpers, where they would gorge themselves on huge pieces of pie and cake.

HOBBOES CAME and were fed. Some were yearly visitors, just as were the barn swallows who arrived regularly in the spring and departed just as regularly in the fall.

Sunnyside was a cemetery even then, dotted by wooden crosses and an occasional stone. And Signal Hill had truck gardens instead of oil wells down its sides. A house and a water tank sat on the very top. Cherry Hill was the "road test" for all new cars, the old model "T" generally out-performing the fancier makes. A hog ranch occupied the northwest corner of Cherry Ave. and Wardlow Rd.

About 1919, some Japanese farmers moved in about where Lewis Ave. and San Antoniq Dr. are today and garden produce took the place of part of the bean field. Some Hindus also leased a parcel of land at about present day Carson St. and Cherry Ave. They were at familiar sight with their colorful turbans, until a fight resulted in a murder and the group left.

BROODINGLY, the old tree still towers over the hill. Its rustling leaves stir up memories of the smell of freshly plowed adobe, the dust of bean thrashing, the heavy aroma of flowering alfalfa, the pungent scent of hay drying in the sun. Of the noise of tractors and the crunch of plows, hammer meeting hot metal, and the unrestrained swearing of the blacksmith; of harnesses put on backwards and snipe hunts and men singing in the dusk; of the meadow lark's early morning call; of turkey buzzards circling overhead in the midday sun and of owls and bats flying silently through the night.

Of the mouth-watering smells of hearty cooking and the metallic clang of the dinner gong. Quiet conversations around the supper table while the cook stacked and washed the dishes and tidied up the big kitchen.

Of the boss, the cook, and the hands. Of a small girl who also cherished the memory of all these things.

Mardi Gras, New Orleans' famous celebration where all cares are forgotten, will be held on Feb. 26.

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

WHILE most cities are still groggy and trying to recover from the holiday hangover, New Orleans is furiously preparing to get a fresh one.

The old French city's world-famed Mardi Gras — gayest, most carefree celebration in the United States — is coming up Feb. 26.

Everyone there, quite naturally, gets in the act sooner or later. It's sooner — right now — for those trapped in the behind-the-scenes work.

For fathers (and mothers) of debutantes, costume designers and bead salesmen, the calendar moves ahead 10 days for the first of a series of 20-odd parades which get rolling Feb. 18.

AND 65 grand balls!

The carnival season traditionally begins with a ball, and at each of these a debutante reigns as queen while other debutantes make up her court.

ANY PARENT with a debutante daughter attending one or two balls a night for seven weeks soon finds himself or herself in a tizzy that, to put it quite mildly, becomes maddening.

Last year, 8,000 maskers rode floats during the Mardi Gras parade season. Literally hundreds of thousands of other participants—many of them masked, naturally — jammed the streets. All of which gives a fair idea of what the costume designers are up against.

Strings of cheap beads are tossed from floats by maskers to help make the parades boisterous, running give-and-take affairs, on their 40-block runs. The bead salesmen generally do an annual gross of around two-fifths of a million dollars filling these needs.

IF YOU PLAN to go—and Southern California is always well represented — you are urged not to rely on a New Orleans costume designer. Bring your own and, on top of that, make reservations for accommodations as early as possible. Information on lodging and dining may be obtained from the New Orleans Tourist Commission, 400 Royal St., New Orleans 18.

Veracruz. He reports:

"Beautiful hotels are available at 28, 30 and 35 pesos. First class travel averages 1.4 cents per mile with pullman around $2.50 per night. Remember that the peso is 8 cents American.

"As an example of cost of meals I might mention the beautiful Hotel Emporio in Veracruz where my meals averaged 8½ pesos. Five dollars per day should allow for excellent living. If I can be of help to anyone I will be glad to give what information I can."

IN THE TRADE: William Stevens, formerly of Long Beach, has been named assistant manager of dining facilities at the Royal Mail Inn, a novel cottage-type resort on Hassel Island, just a three-minute boat ride from Charlotte Amalie, U. ing a stop at the Canary Islands on its 17-day European economy ($648) tours. . . National Airlines announces the issuance of personal air travel credit cards. No deposits are required, and holders may buy personal and business transportation for others as well as themselves. . . ## DELAPLANE

"... prefer to go to Europe by boat but I don't know whether the weather would make it too rough at this time of year."

I'VE ONLY GONE to Europe once by sea—the SS Independence of American Export Lines. They make a southerly crossing via Cannes, Genoa and Naples which should be smooth. (It was for me.) Warmer, too. (I was swimming third day out.)

These are the luxury ships with 1,000 passengers and bon voyage all the way.

For their brochures, you write American Export Lines, 39 Broadway, New York City. Maybe make it attention Al Graham, I know him.

"... how do you find out about freighter trips. I hear they're the best."

THERE'S A GOOD guide book on this called "Ford's Freighter Ships." Lists ALL of them and where they go. The problem with freighters is they usually carry only 12 passengers (by law) and are booked up most of the time.

Couple of real luxury freighter runs are made by American President Lines and Pacific Far East Lines — address either of them at San Francisco, Calif., for folders. They make some interesting off-beat stops.

"Are there any small ships running to Tahiti?"

I'VE SEEN foreign freighters, mainly British, loading copra there. I don't think they carried passengers. The major callers at Papeete and the island of Bora Bora are the Matson cruise ships, Matson Navigation Co., San Francisco, brings you the folders. Great, warm, sunny cruise. I've done it.

There will be a sailing cruise down there about June. Write Captain Mike Burke, Windjammer Cruises, Miami, Florida. Mike runs several schooners on cruises into the Caribbean. But he'll do the long one via Panama sometime this spring.

"If we stop over in Samoa en route to Australia, can you sail around the islands of the South Pacific?"

THERE ARE cargo schooners all over the South Pacific. But you have to sort of catch them when they are going to lesser islands — usually for shell or copra.

If you fly via Nadi airport in the Fijis, you can drive an hour over to Lautoka and catch one of Captain Trevor Withers' "Blue Lagoon" cruises.

He runs twice a week down to the primitive Yasawas. Four-day and two-day cruises. (Continued on Next Page)

The "Blue Lagoon" sleeps 12 and has wonderful food.

These are really wild Melanesian islands. And while the frizzy-haired natives won't eat you, I think you still LOOK tasty to them. Make a reservation in advance. The cruise is popular. For brochures: Captain Trevor Wither, Blue Lagoon Cruises, Lautoka, Vita Levu, Fiji.

"Would it be possible to get a group together and rent a boat to sail to places like Jamaica and Haiti?"

THAT WOULD be for Mike Burke in Miami who I just mentioned. I don't have his price list with me—you could write for it with descriptions of the boats. Several hundred a day. But that includes a sailing master and food. If you split it enough ways, it's reasonable.

"... where we can find out about fishing, boats and skindiving in Lower California?"

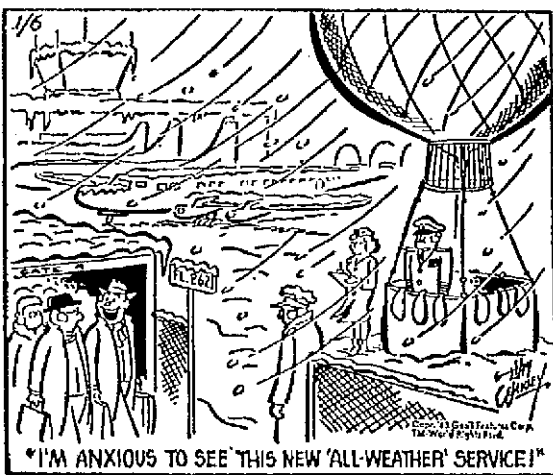

I HAD TO GO to Robert de Roos, the National Geographic writer, for this: Bob says the place to go is La Paz (by Trans Mar de Cortez airlines from Tia Juana). Later 60 miles south to Bahia de Palmas.

For boats: Bill Calahan.

Write him at Apartado 152, La Paz, Baja California, Mexico. Skindiving: Richard Adcock, Hotel Perla Building—also La Paz, etc. For boats, fishing, skindiving at Bahia de Palmas (good hotel): write John Mitre, Bahia de Palmas, Baja California, Mexico.

TRAVEL RESORTS

Going Places

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

MOST North Americans would describe New Zealand as a funny old-fashioned little country. It was cast by fate in the middle of nowhere and seems to gallop determinedly after a world that is always a step ahead.

Australia, its nearest neighbor, is 1,400 miles away, and hardly at the center of things itself.

Its leading city, Auckland, boasts a magnificent scenic location astride two harbors, but it has about as much sophistication as Oklahoma City on a rainy Sunday 30 years ago—and as little amusement.

But if New Zealand is no land for the culture-and-flesh-pot-oriented tourist, it is a veritable paradise for the nature lover. In an area no bigger than the British Isles, it harbors samples of most of the scenery of the world, and a few attractions that are uniquely its own.

THE COUNTRY is divided into North and South Islands, each quite different from the other. The South Island is spectacular, serrated by fjords and studded with ski-sloped Alps, vast glaciers and even volcanoes.

Here in the North, the land seems gentler and more familiar. On its rolling slopes, planted to a velvet green and made luminescent by lush southern light, millions of sheep graze. The landscape is relieved from its many subtle shades of green by splashes of yellow broom and equally yellow eucalyptus blossoms. Forests of towering pines, the tallest we have ever seen, fill the landscape for miles on end.

Fish are far from strangers to these islands. Thousand-pound sharks have been hauled from the Pacific and the Tasman Sea. Lake Taupo, near here in the center of the North Island, yields 500 tons of fish a year, among them 14-pound trout.

But Rotorua Lake may well be the only one in the world where you can catch a fish and boil it without taking it off your hook or moving a step.

Rotorua is in one of New Zealand's thermal regions. Beneath the ground and the lake, geysers boil through fissures or bubble up through the surface. The sands surrounding the chill lake are warm beneath the feet, and occasionally a spring seethes through within inches of the waves lapping the shore.

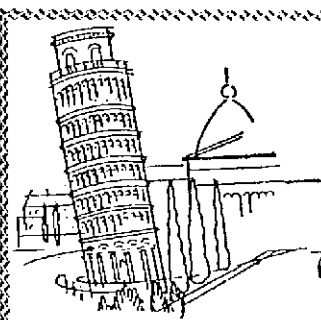

THROUGHOUT the area wreath-like clouds of steam blossom in the air. A local golf course has one hissing through a green. Along the stream which runs through the town, geysers and springs have left chunky mounds of limestone which ultimately break off in cakes from their own weight and tumble back into the water.

Rotorua is one of the few preserved centers of culture of the Maoris, the intelligent and artistic Polynesians who were the Islands' original settlers. They have by now been largely absorbed into the white man's culture.

The Maoris frequently settled in thermal regions for the free heat, wash water and cooking facilities with which the springs provided them. Some still live the traditional communal life here, having built stone fences around the pools and steamy fissures, where they continue to cook and wash as they have for six centuries.

At nearby Whakarewareware a palisaded Maori village has been reconstructed.

Possibly the most spectacular sight on the island is the glow-worm cave of Waitomo, a few miles west of Rotorua. Here, for some unknown reason, hundreds of thousands of glowworms have attached themselves to the ceiling of an underground grotto. A silent boat glide through the cathedral-like cave has the eerie quality of viewing a heavenly firmament while far under the hollow, steam-vent ground that gives the surface of New Zealand so much of its character.

TINIEST zinnia of them all—only about six inches in height—shares All-America Selections top honors for 1963 with a husky relative that towers over it to 30 inches in height and bears blooms up to six inches in diameter.

The dwarf zinnia is Thumbelina, diminutive for Tom Thumb of the Hans Christian Anderson tales. It wins a gold medal, first such award since red Fire Chief petunia won the choice in 1950.

Many zinnia colors are represented in the double flowers of 1½ inches diameter and the colors are very stable.

Thumbelina starts blooming when it is only three inches tall and brings a long season of color to edgings, borders, walks, driveways, window and porch boxes, rockeries and wall gardens, urns and pots for porch steps and patio. Arrangements of cut flowers in bowls, as is done with pansies, are effective.

HUSKY COUSIN to Thumbelina and AAS silver medal winner is Firecracker zinnia. Blooms are bright, rich scarlet, borne on long stems in cactus-flower fashion—exhibition type flowers. The plant is resistant to mildew. Firecracker is best in border and foundation plantings and is excellent cutting material.

Plant these zinnias from seed and get best results without transplanting, although they may be reset if roots are not disturbed.

AAS selections for 1962 are still high in demand. They include scarlet dianthus Bravo, bicolored zinnia Old Mexico, purple ornamental basil Dark Opal, scarlet zinnia Red Man.

'Spud' That Climbs

By Walter Finch

IF YOU are looking for a "climbing potato," Dr. William D. Wainwright, 4704 Greenmeadow Road, Lakewood Village, is probably your man. He has loads of them, some already sprouted and awaiting planting.

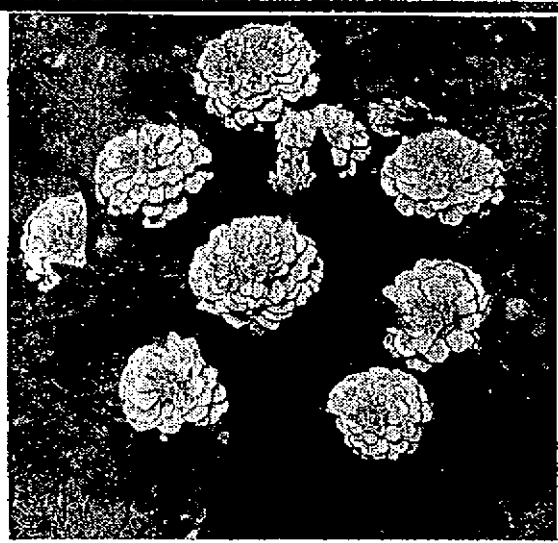

In case you don't know, the plant is better known as chayote and is a native of Peru. The fruit is pear-shaped, tastes something like and is cooked like summer squash. It grows in vine-like fashion.

Dr. Wainwright found a chayote fruit that had sprouted in a grocery store case. He took it home, planted it and the resulting plant spread over his yard, sending out runners 100 feet long and climbing an apricot tree. He harvested about 200 pounds of chayotes and says he'd like to give them away.

Thumbelina, smallest of the dwarf zinnias, received the AAS gold medal. It is compact and long bloomer.

NEW JAPANESE IRIS

Largest of all Irises

Gorgeous MARIGO STRAIN with flowers 8 to 12 inches across

We offered these magnificent new Japanese Iris for the first time in 1956 and have sold out completely every year since. We now have sufficient stock available for distribution once more. You will receive the same stock from which we select a few each year for introduction, priced from $5.00 to $10.00 each. Honestly, the price we ask is ridiculously low for such high quality, and the only reason for this extraordinary offer is to acquaint more flower lovers with MARIGO IRIS. Colors include gorgeous shades of BLUE, RED, PINK, PURPLE, WHITE and many fascinating color patterns unknown to other Irises. The huge blossoms are carried gracefully on slender 3 to 4 foot stems above decorative arching foliage that is attractive at all times. And, best of all, these beauties come into flower after other Iris bloom is past.

Give This Bird Time to Bloom

By Joe Littlefield

BIRD OF PARADISE is a reluctant bloomer in its earlier years and may show the same retarded effect when transplanted from container to garden plot in mature years—and therein lies a reason for many complaints about citrus, bougainvilleas, lilybush and pyracantha.

Container plants usually become root-bound, either while still in nurseries awaiting sale or on ornamental containers about the home. When they are set into the ground, the roots suddenly find room to expand and proceed to do so until a normal development is achieved. In the meantime a season of flower or berry bearing may be lost; in the case of citrus about two seasons.

In the long run, the patient gardener, recognizing this need for development, will receive a proper reward.

BIRD OF PARADISE, as commonly found in gallon-size containers at nurseries, has not yet reached the maturity needed for blooming, often requiring from 3 to 8 or 9 years after planting before flowers are put out.

One may obtain blooms a little sooner by giving the plant bone meal and putting a three-inch layer of manure around it about mid-March, then feeding it two or three times throughout summer with a balanced fertilizer.

Tub-grown plants that have flowered each year for some time may not bloom for a year or two after being planted in the ground or re-potted into larger containers. That's because restricted roots again have to become re-established.

FREQUENTLY, gardeners thoughtlessly cut old leaves of bird of paradise close to the base of the plant without checking to see whether there is an embryo flower spike developing within the thick portion of the stalk. The leaf stalk area is hollow. As a flower spike or new leaf starts to burst forth from within the hollow area, it breaks through the tight fold. Old leaves should be cut off just above this fold. Later, if the fold opens and there is no flower spike or new leaf within, the old stock may be cut close to main plant.

Wise gardeners buy bird of paradise in larger containers, plants in bloom or that have bloomed. They know they don't have to wait years before the plants flower.

Camellia Talk

Joe Littlefield, garden consultant, writer and lecturer, will discuss "Growing Camellias for Winter Color" at a meeting of Long Beach Garden Club at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in Linden Hall, 505 E. Broadway. Questions on gardening will be answered in a post-lecture period.

SOLUTION TO TODAY'S PUZZLE
(See Page 30)

By Dorothy Jonson

We used to think of borers only in connection with peach trees, but these pests seem to have widened their range of activities to include almost every variety of shade and fruit tree. I cannot over-stress the importance of doing everything you can to control the borer menace.

Just as soon as we get a touch of cold weather, most borer species will go down into the soil at the base of the tree to hibernate for the winter and they will go through their entire life cycle. So that will be the time to use a borer solution . . . one containing ether in the form of ethylene dichloride . . . by diluting and pouring it into the soil around the tree. Have your tree well watered and then the ether fumes in the borer solution will spread underground, destroying the borer larvae without injury to the tree. Thus you prevent the borer larvae from ascending the galleries and killing the tree next spring.

Container-grown bird of paradise will bloom well but will be set back by transplanting into a new medium.

Tips on Gardening

Garden tips for the week . . . Many dormant trees — especially fruit trees — should be pruned now. Don't prune spring-flowering shrubs and trees until after their bloom, however.

Prima Donnas

Flowering trees and shrubs are prima donnas of the spring garden. Such beauties as the saucer magnolia, Forsythia, flowering quince, flowering crabapple and dogwood are the true symbols of spring and should be planted by all gardeners who wish to emphasize the change of seasons.

These are all available for planting now during the bare-root season.

Blooms Early

Mr. Sam, named in honor of the late speaker of the House of Representatives, Sam Rayburn, is a bright yellow marigold that is among W. Atlee Burpee Co. seed developments for 1963. Mr. Sam blooms in early midsummer.

You Ask, We Answer

By Haskin

Q. What is the average cost per day for a person to tour the U. S. by automobile? L. K.

A. The cost depends to some extent on whether the person travels alone or as a member of a group. For two people traveling together, the American Automobile Association recently estimated the average cost as $15.50 per person per day, or $108.50 per person per week. This is broken down as follows: meals and snacks for two, $15.50 per day; lodging, $11; gas and oil, $7; tips and miscellaneous, $2.50. The estimate for lodging may be high or low, depending on the season and the type of accommodations.

Q. Where was the zero symbol (0) first used? N. E.

A. The cipher, symbol for zero, was introduced by the Babylonians about 500 B.C. After some centuries it became part of the Indian system of notation, which reached the West through the Arabs as the Arabic number system. Our words cipher and zero come from the Arabic word sifr, the Arabian translation of the Hindu word sunya, meaning void or empty. At first, the zero symbol was simply a marker to indicate an empty position in number notation. The concept of using zero as a number was introduced by the Hindus and the Chinese at about the same time, in the sixth century.

Q. Who first made flat record discs? R. T.

A. Emile Berliner (1851-1929), a German-born American inventor obtained a patent in 1887 on a gramophone playing a flat disc.

known sagas of this momentous period of U.S. history.

With her children and servants she followed her husband to the war-torn New World where she viewed and participated in the great battles including the debacle at Saratoga where she cared for the wounded in a cellar.

She captivated both sides, became a friend of Thomas Jefferson and entertained Boston society while her husband commanded the hated German "greencoats."

A richly detailed and factual story of this remarkable woman is told by historical writer Louise Hall Tharp in "THE BARONESS AND THE GENERAL" (Little, Brown, $6.50).

The life of Kit Carson was, in essence, the story of the opening of the American west and like that great historical adventure the facts have been distorted by fiction and pure fancy.

Author M. Morgan Estergreen sets the record and the man straight in "KIT CARSON—A Portrait of Courage" (University of Oklahoma Press, $5.95).

Using unpublished materials including interviews and correspondence with Kit's family and friends this book reveals Carson—father of seven, Indian fighter, scout, explorer, trader, general, Pony Express rider—as bigger in life than he was in legend.

ANOTHER attempt to determine accurately what happened before, during and after the massacre of the 7th

Cavalry on the Little Big Horn in 1876 appears in "CUSTER AND THE GREAT CONTROVERSY: The Origin and Development of a Legend," by Robert M. Utley (Westernlore, $6.75).

Utley, a ranger-historian at the Custer Battlefield National Monument in Montana, comes closer than most Custerphiles. This book deals less with the battle itself than how the controversy developed, created by two distinct camps—the Custer idolators and the Custer haters.

PRINCE Bernhard's career as a businessman, sportsman, traveler, daredevil, devoted husband and father is detailed by Alden Hatch in "BERNHARD, PRINCE OF THE NETHERLANDS" (Doubleday, $4.95).

IN MODEST type on its elegant menu, The Tenderloin restaurant, 4363 Atlantic Ave., offers this quotation from Homer: "Always to excel and be superior to others."

Those words explain perfectly the goals of owner Rex Welch and his brother Bill, manager of The Tenderloin. Thanks to careful, thoughtful planning, tremendous culinary skill and beautiful surroundings, this restaurant is definitely superior to others in two very important departments: Quality of beef and customer satisfaction.

For years Long Beach epicures bemoaned the fact that this community did not have a restaurant devoted to glorifying beef. It was for this reason that Rex Welch created The Tenderloin, offering marvelous, tender cuts of prime, aged eastern beef. Available are many varieties of prime rib, New York cuts and top sirloins, plus tenderloin steaks, considered by many to be the finest cut of all because of their small-grain texture and tenderness. This is also one of the costliest cuts when you consider that a whole tenderloin from a 1,000-pound steer weighs about seven pounds.

Also featured at The Tenderloin are Utah mountain trout, tenderloin of beef Stroganoff, wonderful Chateaubriands chicken curry and broiled Australian lobster tail, with prices starting at $3.50 for the complete dinner, including huge chilled salads, baked potatoes stuffed spectacularly with chopped bacon and melted butter, vegetable du jour and coffee. The superb service is by teams of highly trained waiters.

TELEVISION LOG OF THE SUNDAY NEWS AND THE INDEPENDENT-PRESS-TELEGRAM

BERT'S EYE VIEW

New Oater 'Naked City of the West'

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

A serious young man is Chad Everett, a new cowboy on the video range.

Chad co-stars with Larry Ward, Jack Elam and Michael Greene in a western series, "The Dakotas," making its premiere 7:30 p.m. Monday on channel 7.

What Chad currently is serious about is "The Dakotas."

"There are TV western and then there is 'The Dakotas,'" he said.

"Our series concentrates on telling a story rather than cross-country rides and expansive scenery.

"Our series is a 'Naked City of the West.'"

Chad maintains the quality of the series has been upgraded to meet what he labels the "drama intelligence" of the viewing audience.

TELEVISION, from the standpoint of drama, has made "college seniors" of almost all of the viewers. They demand quality now because they've seen everything else, according to Chad.

"You must tell a story in a way that does not play down to the drama intelligence of the TV audience," he said. "You can't insult that intelligence or you're out."

The new series, Chad claims, isn't going to insult anyone's intelligence.

"Our heavies don't wear black hats so you can recognize them as the villains," he said. "Our heavies have a point of view. Our good guys are sometimes the antagonists."

In the series, Chad has the rôle of good-guy Del Stark. To prepare himself for the rôle, Chad wrote a 75-page "autobiography" of the fictional character. The "autobiography" begins:

"I am Del Stark. I am four years old."

HE LEARNED, while taking a psychology course, that the area of memory generally begins when an individual is about four years old—most

Wildlife Series Debuts This Afternoon

By DOC QUIGG

NEW YORK (UPI)—Carthage, a place of many parts, was home base for Hannibal, a first-class elephant man who took his act on a northern tour and, frankly, nothing has been seen like it since. Neither the act nor the city.

There is, however, another Carthage—this one in Missouri—which has produced another top-flight animal man, name of Marlin Perkins.

When little Marlin was growing up in Carthage, he kept a backyard menagerie of snakes, coyotes, rabbits and other quasidesthetic whatnot.

Since he grew up, he has been on close terms with just about every thing that is wild—from spitting cobras to anteaters, gooney birds, porpoises, bats and moray eels, to name a few. He began his zoo career in 1926 and, from 1944 until just recently, was director of the Lincoln Park Zoo in Chicago. Now he's director of the St. Louis Zoo.

REMEMBER "Zoo Parade," his program that ran eight years on NBC-TV? It won practically every major television award, including an Emmy from the first batch ever presented. "Zoo Parade" went off in 1957. Now Perkins is back with a new, different, and exciting (he hopes) unraveling of wild life mysteries—a half-hour color-film weekly series which NBC will carry each Sunday, starting today, (3:30 p.m., channel 4.) The series is titled "Wild Kingdom."

BERT'S EYE VIEW

Western Premieres Monday

can't remember back before that time.

He felt that by writing the auto biography he could become Del Stark and not just Chad Everett reading Del Stark's lines.

"The audience," he smiled, "is demanding more of actors as well as writers."

Back on the subject of the viewers' intelligence, Chad made it clear there was nothing derogatory about the audience accepting a series like "The Beverly Hillbillies."

"I don't think the 'Hillbillies' are a corny show," he said.

"Corn is the type of thing they used to have in vaudeville where the comedian would open and close with corny jokes and everybody knew the punch lines."

"In the 'Hillbillies,' you can't predict what lines are coming next—it's pure slapstick."

"Just because the viewing intelligence of the audience is up is no reason why they have to lose their sense of humor."

A SENSE of humor is one of the things the State Department noted that Chad possessed when several years ago they selected him as one of 12 young actors to tour foreign countries.

The objective was to have the young actors demonstrate, by their acting and their personal selves, a slice of American life.

What Chad obtained from that tour added to his personal life slice.

"I came back convinced," he said, "that the world has in common a very strong peace wish."

"If we can keep enough of the people thinking peace enough of the time, we might not have another war."

A serious young man is Chad Everett.

WIGS

Throughout this month you may buy your wig directly from me at wholesale and save from $60.00 to $90.00.

Every January I make my wholesale prices available to the public for the one month and permit each individual woman to have a wig at exactly the same wholesale price that beauty salons and wig salons pay me during the rest of the year when they buy a dozen or more at a time.

My wigs are all one hundred percent pure European human hair of virgin cutting and are made by the proudest and most experienced wig makers in France and Germany. There are no better wigs anywhere at any price. They come uncut and unstyled ready to be fashioned to your own good taste by your own hair stylist.

Shop around first and then compare these prices: German or French in dark ash, strawberry, copper, auburn, milk brown, dark brown, sable and black $88.90. (The average retail price for these wigs is $150.00. You save $61.10)

Charles Jeffries

Bellflower, Calif. — Bellflower Telephone: 867-6147

(Please bring cash, bank money order or certified check)

Light platinum, regal platinum, silver beige and platinum beige $93.85. (The average retail price for these wigs is $165.00. You save $71.15.)

Champagne beige, salt & pepper and light ash $98.95. (The average retail price for these wigs is $190.00. You save $91.05.) All prices plus 4% California sales tax.

By definite appointment made by telephone you may select your wig in the privacy of my home in Bellflower, purchase the wig on the spot and take it right with you at the time. No waiting. Appointments available from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. 7 days a week during this special offering.

January is the only month of the year during which you can get a wig at wholesale so it is suggested that you not delay too long. $88.90 — $93.85 — $98.95.

Q. Has Jane Russell quit making films? What is her deal with studio head Howard Hughes? — H. T. L., Eugene, Ore.

A. Jane is not particularly in demand as a film star but may do a picture in Spain later this year. In 1955 she signed a 20-year contract with Howard Hughes for $50,000 a year.

Q. Please answer this question: During the Cuban crisis when all the wives were sent home from Guantanamo, were there any women left on the base? — K. H., Jacksonville, Fla.

A. Ten Navy nurses.

Q. When President Kennedy's father was our ambassador to England in 1939, he had a code clerk in the American embassy named Tyler Kent. Recently I read in Germany that this man Kent was a leading Hitler spy. I have no recollection of Tyler Kent having ever been tried for treason in any U. S. court, and I understand he is now free in America. Can you supply any details to this hush-hush affair? — B. L., Westport, Conn.

A. Tyler Gatewood Kent and a British traitor, shopkeeper Anna Wolkoff, worked as a Nazi spy team in the early phase of World War II. Kent, a code and cipher clerk in our London embassy, turned over to his lover some 1,500 secret messages and reports, including copies of top-secret reports sent back to Washington by Kennedy. The U. S. was not in the war at that time. When the British arrested Kent, Ambassador Kennedy immediately waived the clerk's diplomatic immunity and insisted he be tried. Kent was then tried in secret at The Old Bailey and sentenced to seven years in jail. His paramour

Anna Wolkoff was sentenced to 10. Kent was released in September 1945 and returned to the U. S. Had this country been at war with Germany when Tyler performed his treachery, in all probability he would have been tried and executed.

Q. Is Judy Garland a barbiturates addict? — Louis Allen, Passaic, N. J.

A. No, but from time to time she has taken barbiturates. Her ex-husband Sid Luft charged in a divorce action that Judy's upsets "are due in part to the use of barbiturates."

Q. Where did Frank Sinatra get the scars on his neck? Was it in a Jersey gang war? — F. T., Louisville, Ky.

A. Sinatra, born in Hoboken, N. J., on December 12, 1915, was delivered by forceps, which scarred the left side of his neck permanently.

Q. Is it true that Mao Tse-tung hates Chiang Kai-shek because one of Chiang's generals strangled Mao's first wife? — William Maulding, Wilmington, Del.

A. That is reportedly one reason.

Q. Who is Alain Robbe-Grillet? — Iona Von Hagen, Brooklyn, N. Y.

A. An outstanding and controversial French writer who wrote the film Last Year at Marienbad and has just finished a new film in Turkey, L'Immortelle.

Q. Why has the American press refused to publish the medical report on Winston Churchill's daughter Sarah? Is this because we are not to be told about her alcoholism? — T. F., Indianapolis, Ind.

A. Actually there is no report. Recently, however, her physician, Dr. Denis Leigh, who has been treating her for 18 months, wrote the British court, explaining: "Since her treatment here her behavior has changed considerably and she has remarried, a considerable gain to her. . . . The problem is that she becomes extremely excited, overactive, aggressive and almost manic after she has had drink. Her pattern is very stereotyped, for she usually abuses the police and demands to be charged in her maiden name. . . . She has been making such good progress, however, that I am quite hopeful for her ultimate recovery, although she is a somewhat difficult case."

Q. Why is Danny Kaye going to do a weekly TV show when he can make a fortune doing one TV spectacular per year? — D. L., Denver, Colo.

A. Kaye says, "I believe it's tougher to do one show a year than to do a weekly show. The audience expects so very much if you do an occasional show. If you're on every week, the audience knows that while some programs will be very good, there will have to be others that will be just passable and even not so good. But they go along with you."

Q. What's happened to the great tennis star of the 1930s, Ellsworth Vines? — V. Francis, Rutland, Vt.

A. Vines, 51, switched to professional golf 20 years ago, has been working as a pro at the Tamarisk Country Club, Palm Springs, Calif. A few weeks ago he announced he was going into semiretirement, would spend much of his spare time in Naples, Fla., "fishing and getting to know my children, Edith, 13, and Ellsworth, Jr., 12." Says Vines, "After 20 years I'm a little tired of golf, golf talk, golfers, although I must say golfers as a group are a nicer, more democratic bunch than tennis players, at least those tennis players I used to compete against."

Q. Is it true Dinah Shore will marry a wealthy Palm Springs builder, Maurice Smith, when her divorce becomes final? — Georgette Hildebrand, Omaha, Neb.

A. Good possibility.

Q. How old is Hayley Mills' father, John? — P. Yorty, Oakland, Calif.

A. John Mills is 54, his famous daughter, 16.

Q. Was Fidel Castro ever an actor in Hollywood? — G. Ramirez, Miami, Fla.

A. About 20 years ago, Fidel and his brother were reportedly taken to Hollywood by their mother; for a little while they worked as extras. Bandleader Xavier Cugat claimed to have known them in Hollywood.

FROM PANIC TO PEACE

THE NEW RED SKELTON

by LLOYD SHEARER

PALM SPRINGS, CALIF.

FOR 20 YEARS RED SKELTON has been a legend in show business—and not an altogether happy one.

Until a few months ago he was pictured as a sad and lonely clown, a tormented, bedeviled man, a great and neurotic talent given to phobias, insomnia, periodic bouts with the grape and his beautiful second wife of 17 years, the former Georgia Davis.

He was portrayed as a moody, intense 'Pagliacci' who viewed those around him with distrust and suspicion.

Stories of his quirks and irrational behavior—supposedly he refused to talk over the telephone, chewed 50 cigars a day, insisted upon wearing maroon ties—his childish hates and pet peeves were written up in publications the world over.

It was said, for example, that if Red got angry at one of his writers, he would refuse to sign the writer's paycheck, make him wait for it indefinitely. At one point CBS was compelled to place a Skelton writer under contract to the network to assure a continuity of scripts, because the scribe refused to work directly for Skelton.

At another point a prominent CBS official was known as the "Vice-President in charge of Red Skelton." His assignment: "Keep Skelton happy."

For years Red's emotional agonies were characterized as adolescent, his insecurity as perennial, his friendships as temporary. When over a period of months he successively fired his attorney, business manager, press agent and personal adviser, it was rumored that his subsequent resentment and brooding had brought him to the breaking point.

Suicide seemed certain— and imminent

Two years ago one shrewd veteran Hollywood observer told me, "Every morning I pick up the paper, I expect to read about Red Skelton's suicide." Another former Skelton employee told me: "This man has so much hostility within him—all with good reason—but no way of releasing it. He's going to blow his top."

Supposedly Red Skelton's personal and professional demise was imminent.

Today all this propaganda has suddenly evaporated, and the problem child of 48 or 55—Skelton doesn't know exactly how old he is—is no more.

When one inquires at CBS how Red Skelton is doing, one finds that the hand-wringing has given way to applause, that this stand-up comedian who has lasted longer in TV than any of his colleagues is described as "The New Red Skelton, the finest, nicest, most warmhearted character in show business."

In Palm Springs where Skelton lives with his wife and daughter Valentina, 16, in a new $160,000 house on the grounds of the Tamarisk Country Club, I asked several of Red's neighbors and club members what they thought of him.

Skelton clowning beside the pool of his new $160,000 Palm Springs home. Paintings were done by the comedian himself.

A rival comedian, not particularly noted for his generosity, said, "Red has finally found peace—with himself and with the world."

A music publisher told me, "He has the soul of an artist and the kindness of a saint. Do you know that he is probably the only man in the country who gives thousands of dollars away to charity each year without taking it as an income tax deduction?"

Later when I asked Red if that statement was true, he confided that in the past 20 years he'd donated about $1,000,000 in charity without deducting it.

"I've never mentioned it to any reporter before," he said, "and there's no point in mentioning it, because the whole subject of money bugs me. I'm sure you've read about how I'm supposed to be distrustful and suspicious, because people have taken me to the cleaners."

"The truth is that they have, not because I'm suspicious but because I'm trusting, maybe too trusting. A few years ago after 40 years in this business, I woke up one morning, and I found I was broke. Not completely broke. I'll never be that, because I've got a God-given talent to entertain and make people laugh, and I guess I can always make a living. But the people I'd associated with, who were supposedly looking after my affairs, you just wouldn't believe it what they did to me.

$1,000,000 worth of insurance,
just in case

"I found out," Red continued, "that before they shipped me off to the hospital to be operated on for a herniated diaphragm, they insured me for a million bucks, just in case I was knocked off. And my son Richard—even before he died of leukemia, they took his insurance policies and borrowed money."

"When I came out to California in 1937 or 1938, I'd never had a business manager in my life, but I'd done pretty well. I had $29,000. Four days after I got my first business manager, I lost it. The guy was great. He showed me all the things I was doing wrong, and he wound up doing right."

"I'll tell you what business managers do—not all of them, but some of them in the Hollywood group. Whenever a business manager walks up to you and says, 'You've had a great year, a sensational year, but we can't pay the tax yet,' I'll tell you what they've done. I knew a guy who used to manage about nine stars and pay their income tax, and of course he had power of attorney. He would have 'em sign checks for the tax, which came to about $2,000,000. Then he'd ask the government for an extension, maybe for six months, maybe for a year. He'd deposit the $2,000,000 in various banks, collect the interest for himself, then eventually pay the government."

"In addition to this he takes 10 per cent for management fees and 10 per cent for accountancy fees. And he gets a cut on all the purchases. I knew this all along—that I was being taken. But if you're an entertainer, you entertain; you don't have too much time to check the books. When eventually you do, the guy who's checking for you, he gets bought off. He comes to you and says, 'A lot of this stuff doesn't add up, but let's not fire your man yet, let's wait awhile. So you wait until he takes his cut.'"

Skelton estimates that in 30 years he's lost close to $10,000,000 by not managing his own affairs.

"And what these business managers did to my personal life! They make trouble. They confuse you. They divide your family. Like they used to come to me and say, 'You've got to stop spending so much money.' And I'd say, 'Who's spending?—not me.' They'd say, 'Of course, not you. It's Georgia, she's

With wife Georgia, Red is now "learning to live." Both feel they're "out of the woods and at peace."

spending dough like it was water.' Then they'd go to Georgia and say, 'Listen, you've got to keep dressed in the highest style. After all, you're Mrs. Red Skelton. You're out in the public eye.' And then they'd spread divorce stories. They believe in divide and conquer.

"Georgia and I—we've been married for 17 years, and we've stuck it out. Why? Because we love each other. She's a great inspiration for me. She's taught me a lot of things—how to meet people and not to just be a clown all the time when I'm out—and to find responsibilities in life."

Out of suffering came understanding

According to Red, his wife and his late son, who died in 1958, have been the two most beneficial influences in his life.

Of his boy, he says. "He made me understand about pain and to feel for people who were suffering, but also to enjoy the happiness around us. People say, 'Merry Christmas' during one week of the year. I go around saying, 'Merry Day.' For years I lived to learn—now I'm learning to live."

"It seems to me that ever since we moved to Palm Springs—me and little Red [his wife] and Valentina—things have straightened out. I've got a new group of associates, talented and honest men. We share a mutual respect. I've learned to understand myself and my behavior. I've taken time to look into my childhood and not run away from things I previously blocked out.

"I try to know why I have certain quirks. Like I won't get into a bathtub filled with water. I have to get in first and let the water come in on me. And the water has to be a certain temperature. It takes me an hour to get into my pool, which is heated to 82 degrees. Why? Because when I was a little kid my relatives threw me into a gravel pit and tried to drown me. So I still have a fear of water. That's why when I'm working, I wear a dogtag around my neck which says that in case I faint, no one is to throw any cold water on me, or I'll just go into another faint.

"Another quirk I have—about not smoking. The reason I don't smoke is I have such a great fear of fire. When I was a baby in my crib back in Vincennes, Ind., my father's half-brother burned down our grocery store. He lit a gasoline coil drum and it blew through the house, and they ran in and rescued me. Today when anyone lights a match, I instinctively back away from them, and that's why I won't light a cigar.

"The main reason I carry a cigar is that when I started off in show business, I used to work as a tramp and use a corncob pipe. When I moved into burlesque,

I used a rubber cigar. One day a guy said to me, 'Why don't you use a real cigar? You don't need that rubber thing flapping all over your face.' So I went out and got a real cigar, and after the very next show, a guy in the audience, Eddie Nelson, came up to me and said would I like to go into vaudeville with him at $250 a week. So I've always felt that if I have a cigar with me, I attract money.

"Another quirk I'm famous for—not talking on telephones. I talk on telephones but not very much. It's just that I like to look into people's eyes when I'm talking to them. I like to test their sincerity, and you can't do that on the phone."

The authority on Red Skelton, both old and new versions, is his wife, the former Georgia Maureen Davis. A tall, freckled, gracious young woman, "Little Red," as she's known, regards her husband as "one of the world's great geniuses . . . a good, good man—a man who wants only to make others laugh."

Her entire life is so wrapped up in the comedian, she is so completely devoted to the man, that she lacks any objectivity in describing him. "Years ago," she'll admit, "he was a little difficult to live with. What man of genius isn't? Now that we're rid of the stooges who tried to separate us, everything is wonderful.

Quiet life in the desert: no nightclubs, no parties

"Down here in the desert, we live a simple life. No nightclubs, no parties. We generally get up and go to bed with the sun. When Red finishes a TV show in Hollywood, I see to it that he rests for the next two days, does absolutely nothing, because when he works, he gives all his talent, every bit of energy he's stored up.

"Big Red has never been in better condition since I've known him. He's gotten his weight down from 230 to 190. He sleeps well. His company, Van Bernard, which encompasses all of his activities, is doing extremely well. I'm telling you, we're out of the woods and at peace."

The Skeltons not only look and talk alike, they think alike. Constantly with them, for example, is the memory of their son Richard. They seem to think of the little boy simultaneously. After he passed away four years ago, Red erected a little shrine in the hall next to Richard's room. The boy's toys and clothes were kept just as he had left them. Then Red got sick and went to the hospital. "And when I came home, the shrine was gone. And I asked Little Red why. And she said, 'Well, I think it's about time to take it down because it's beginning to depress our friends and people who come around.'

"But you know one thing?" Red continues. "It's funny how we came to buy this house in Palm Springs. We walked out on the golf course, we were talking. Then we both stopped and looked ahead, and little Ritchie seemed to be out there on the grass, playing and smiling, we had the feeling he was there, just invisible, that's all. And even now we will look out across the grass and see him. He's with us always. And we feel that's why we're here, that he wants us to be close to him."

"People tell me we shouldn't have reverence for the dead, too much of an obsession. But Moses and Christ were pretty great people, and everyone remembers them for the good they did; so I remember my son the same way, and so does Little Red."

In the autumn of his life Richard "Red" Bernard Skelton has become a pious and philosophical man, a clown with a great soul.

PARADE'S SPECIAL

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

DESTRUCTION DEALERS. Cuban saboteurs seized in New York and terrorists who blew up Venezuelan oil fields are graduates of the same exclusive finishing school: the Castro School of Sabotage in Cuba. The student body is recruited throughout Latin America. As many as 3,000 students have started classes in a single week. Most graduates return to their native countries to await orders.

MOVIE ADMISSIONS. Motion picture admission prices have reached an all-time high according to the latest Department of Labor statistics. Biggest jump, approximately 25%, has been in the price of children's tickets.

LIQUOR PRIVILEGES. The new Congress can expect a drive to abolish the privilege overseas travelers now enjoy of bringing one gallon of liquor, duty-free, into this country. Behind the campaign lies the National Alcoholic Beverage Control Association, which speaks for the state liquor control commissions.

NIGHT WORK. Car owners have been complaining for years about the inconvenience of getting their vehicles serviced at agencies during the day. Result: Manufacturers have talked dealers into offering night service. Chevrolet, for example, has persuaded more than 600 car dealers throughout the country to offer their customers night service.

FACT OF LIFE. The U.S. Post Office handles 68,000,000,000 pieces of mail per year, half the world's total.

SWISS COMPLAINT. Switzerland, with a population of 5,500,000, has 650,000 foreign workers, 450,000 of them Italian. Because of Switzerland's chronic manpower shortage in a boom economy, Swiss immigration authorities have permitted so-called "Italian tourists" to enter the Swiss labor market en masse. But now Italians, mostly from southern Italy, have become so numerous that the Swiss find them a threat to national identity.

FILM CLASSIFICATION. Unless the motion picture industry voluntarily provides parents with advisory film classifications, five Catholic bishops have vowed to support legislation which will make it mandatory. The bishops, headed by Archbishop John Joseph Krol of Philadelphia, have expressed special concern over "the increased screening of questionable foreign and independent films in neighborhood and family-trade theaters."

DRUGS AND PREGNANCY. Scientists have reached the conclusion that during early pregnancy women should avoid taking even the commonest drugs. Reason: Little is known about the possible effects of most drugs on human embryos.

NEW U.S. RADIO NETWORK. To keep in touch with our nuclear Polaris submarines throughout the world, the Navy is constructing one of the largest radio towers in Western Australia. From 1,200-ft. masts at Northwest Cape, 700 miles north of Perth, the station will beam, on low frequencies, instructions to our growing fleet of Polaris subs in the Indian Ocean. The radio station will cost $70,000,000 and may be the forerunner of a supply base in the Western Pacific. Heretofore our supply and tender base was in Guam; it was pretty much leveled by a hurricane a few months ago.

BRITISH NAVY. Once proud ruler of the seas, Great Britain's navy is diminishing both in size and prestige. Since the end of World War II, Britain has built no aircraft carriers, battleships or cruisers.

TWO-WAY STRETCH. Belt manufacturers are toying with the idea of distributing exercise booklets with each elastic belt produced. They recommend that men's belts be used not only to hold up trousers but for early-morning setting-up exercises.

Actor Dan Duryea demonstrates exercises with elastic belt.

COMMUNITY PROPERTY. Originally intended to protect wives discarded by their husbands, the community property law these days has become a boon to husbands. In Hollywood, George Montgomery, ex-husband of Dinah Shore, is reputedly $1,500,000 richer since Dinah broke the marital ties. If screen star Doris Day proceeds to divorce Marty Melcher, these two will reportedly divide $15,000,000 acquired in their marriage. One reason Sid Luft is fighting Judy Garland's divorce is that he insists she's a resident of California, not Nevada, that they have at least a million to divide in community property, most of it Judy's profit percentages in various films. Sometimes it pays to marry a screen actress.

If Doris Day and husband part, they split $15,000,000.

GREEK TRAGEDY. John Nasos, a Greek naval officer, ordered a cream puff in a pastry shop in Piraeus. Vasiliki Firou, young daughter of the proprietor, waited on him. John was so struck by her beauty that day after day he returned to the pastry shop just to look at her. Vasiliki's father explained that his daughter was too young to marry. Three months later John returned to the pastry shop in anguish, pleaded with Mr. Firou. "I just can't forget your daughter. I've got to marry her. If not, something terrible will happen." He tried to approach Vasiliki on her way to school, was arrested. A few weeks ago he again appeared at the pastry shop in Piraeus. This time Vasiliki was there with her mother and 15-year-old brother. John walked up to the love of his life, pulled a revolver from his pocket and fired five times. Vasiliki's brother threw himself on the intruder. John knocked him down, reloaded the revolver, shot the brother. Neither Vasiliki nor her brother were killed, just paralyzed for life from the waist down.

| 2 lb. lean beef, ground                      | 1 tablespoon steak sauce                                       |
| 2 teaspoons salt                             | 1/4 teaspoon bottled hot pepper sauce                          |
| 1/2 teaspoon pepper                          | 1 1/4 cups finely chopped onions (about 2 medium-sized onions) |
| 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce              | 3 cups shredded sharp Cheddar cheese (3/4 lb.)                 |
| (optional) 1 can (15 oz.) pinto beans heated |  |

Combine beef, salt, pepper and sauces; mix well. Shape into 8 patties. Broil 3" from heat source, 8 to 10 minutes, turning once to brown both sides. Top each patty with onions and cheese. Return to broiler long enough to soften cheese. Serve between toasted bun halves, with pinto beans. Serves 8.

|-------------------------------|-------------------------------|
| 2 cups sifted enriched flour  | Poppy seeds                   |
| 2 teaspoons baking powder     | 1 1/2 lb. ground beef         |
| 2 1/2 teaspoons salt, divided | 3/4 cup rolled oats, uncooked |
| 1/4 cup shortening            | 1/2 cup chopped onion         |
| 1 cup milk, divided           | 1/4 teaspoon pepper           |
|                               | 1/4 teaspoon oregano          |

Sift together flour, baking powder and 1/2 teaspoon salt. Cut in shortening until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Add 1/2 cup (about) of the milk, stirring only until flour is moistened. Roll out to 1/4" thickness; cut in six 5" circles. Brush lightly with more milk. Sprinkle with poppy seed. Bake on ungreased cookie sheet at 425° 10 to 12 minutes or until golden brown. Meanwhile, combine remaining ingredients, including rest of salt and milk; shape into 12 balls; chill. When ready to cook, roll in flour; brown in hot salad oil over medium heat. When browned, simmer over low heat about 15 minutes. Sauce: Meanwhile scald contents of 1 tall can (14 1/2 oz.) evaporated milk. Cube 1/2 lb. sharp Cheddar cheese; add to hot milk with 1/4 teaspoon dry mustard. Cook about 5 minutes more, stirring to blend well. To serve: Place meat balls on pastry; top with cheese sauce.

A Ranchette of Your Own
In The HEALTHIEST, SUNNIEST CLIMATE
In All America
$199 Per Half Acre $5 down & $5 month

Stretching across the nation from Savannah, Georgia to San Diego is U.S. 80, the most travelled, all-weather highway of its kind in America. On its way to the West coast, Route 80 courses through the beautiful, sun-bathed Southwest where one of the greatest land booms in our country's history is taking place. Cities like El Paso, Tucson, Phoenix lie astride this great highway. And smaller cities like Las Cruces and Deming, New Mexico—also on Rt. 80—are beginning an astonishing growth. Nowhere—not even in Tucson and Phoenix—is there the brilliant sunshine and healthy climate that blesses southwest New Mexico. And, whereas, the price of a rich piece of land near the larger cities is beyond the means of most of us, you can still buy a Ranchette in the Deming region for only pennies a day. DEMING RANCHETTES lies directly on great U.S. 80, is rich in soil and pure in water; still a half-acre here is only $199 complete, $5 down—$5 a month. In neighboring Las Cruces land such as this is selling for 10 times this price! Yet Deming, its valley nestled alongside the breath-taking Florida Mountains, is every bit as beautiful, every bit as sunny and healthy. ## Why we must

 win a crucial battle in the cold war

Russian students from the sports college at Tiflis, in Russia's Georgia. Paid to attend, men are trained as future athletes, coaches and teachers.

Free-style wrestlers at the 1960 Olympics are Elliott Simans of the U.S. (white shoes), who won decision over Aliiev of the Soviet Union.

win the Olympics

by HUBERT H. HUMPHREY

U. S. Senator from Minnesota

WASHINGTON, D.C.

THE RUSSIANS are feverishly building toward what they expect to be a major cold war victory in 1964: a massive triumph in the Tokyo Olympics. They plan not only to beat us, but to do it decisively, while the whole world watches.

You may ask what the Olympics have to do with international politics. Make no mistake about it, the relentless struggle between freedom and Communism embraces almost every level of life from spacemen to sprinters. Because the Russians understand this, they have converted the once-idealistic Olympic games into an ideological battlefield.

They sneer at the "Amerikanskis" as a nation of softies and portray the United States as a "tired, decadent, declining power." Once they have crushed us in the coming Olympic battle, the Red propaganda drums will thunder out a world-wide tattoo, heralding the "new Soviet men and women" as "virile, unbeatable conquerors" in sports—or anything else.

Indeed, the USSR's massive Olympic preparations cannot be matched by any other country on earth. The Russian program is expected to produce 50,000,000 sportsmen by 1965, including 30,000 "Masters of Sport." The "Masters," of course, are amateurs in name only. The government provides them with everything—training, housing, transportation, food. They need worry about only one thing: finishing first! (The International Olympic Committee, while sounding off periodically against "state amateurs," has done nothing about them.)

Apathy and Squabbles

If Russia is at the top in Olympic preparation, the United States can only be described as part way to the bottom. Many countries on both sides of the Iron Curtain do their utmost to win Olympic honors. They provide heavy state financing or, as in Italy, use a national lottery to pay for the effort. But while foreign athletes get wholehearted support, their American counterparts are handicapped by a combination of national apathy and intramural squabbles.

The Amateur Athletic Union and the National Collegiate Athletic Association have been waging a cold war of their own over who should represent the nation's amateurs in world competition. One group even threatened to disqualify any athlete from the Olympics who had competed in a meet sponsored by the other. Also, many minor Olympic sports—from fencing to volleyball—are represented by small groups, loosely organized, haphazardly financed and attracting too few participants to develop top competitors.

Our country has a wonderful record in past Olympics, but time appears to be running out on us. We had to come from behind to win in 1956, and, no matter what scoring system you used, we showed up poorly in Rome in 1960. One widely used scoring method rated us third: behind Russia and Sweden.

Although we finished first in men's track and field, basketball and swimming, we gave up our crowns in rowing and weight lifting. We failed to pick up any points at all in canoeing, cycling and Greco-Roman wrestling, though points were given for ninth place in some events.

Since our inglorious showing in 1960, we have done little to remedy our weaknesses. Yet the Russians have made a national cause of improving their standing.

It is time we realized the deep issue at stake here, and it involves far more than whether or not we get our ears pinned back in Tokyo. I believe our greatness as a nation has arisen, in part at least, from the fact that we always play the game to win and that we don't take any defeat lying down. For when the day comes that we can shrug off a resounding defeat with indifference, a whole era in our history must be considered closed.

What must we do? Let's not forget that many a great champion has literally gotten up off the floor to win. Although we are still far from flattened, our Olympic trend is downward, and it must be reversed.

Let's remember, too, that we are the richest, greatest nation on earth. With the exception of Russia, we have the widest range of geography and climate for training men and women in all fields of sports. Our people also have more leisure time than those of any other advanced power.

To use these advantages, we must all work together to regain the ground we have lost in fitness and athletics. I urge that we start off 1963 by adopting the following national New Year's resolutions:

1 We should make a voluntary, all-out effort to step up the physical fitness level of our whole population. In your community, make sure the schools have a good physical fitness program carried out by qualified instructors using approved facilities. Then set a good example of physical fitness for your child, not by saying but by doing.

2 To insure that the athletes we send overseas are our best, we should set up a vast, nation-wide "Junior Olympics" competition, starting at the neighborhood level. Work with local civic groups to organize competition in your neighborhood; urge your mayor to set up an Olympic committee in your city; call upon your governor to establish a state committee.

3 We must interest young Americans in the seemingly "obscure" Olympic sports, which don't excite our sophisticated youngsters much but which pile up points in world competition. Write to the U.S. Olympic Committee, 57 Park Avenue, New York 16, N.Y., for literature on any sport you might be willing to promote.

4 As interest is aroused, we must see to it that facilities for these sports are adequate.

Highly trained women athletes performing in Moscow's Red Square are propaganda for the Communist way of life.

Before Tokyo, a White House send-off

For instance, there isn't a single banked track for cycling in the country. And there is only one speed-skating rink (in Squaw Valley, Calif.), while Moscow alone has 32.

5 We must persuade our athletes to adopt Olympic rules and standards in their sports. In skating, for example, we race against one another instead of racing against the clock, Olympic-style. And the Olympic wrestling form is quite different from our collegiate style.

6 We should encourage our girls and young women to participate in sports. They have been taking a drubbing in the Olympics from Soviet women.

7 We need to change our basic attitude toward our athletes. So many of our star athletes turn pro at the height of their powers that we must send over relatively inexperienced competitors to each Olympics. When they are beaten, foreigners naturally conclude that our country's "best" have been defeated. Thus our Olympic teams assume global importance, but you would never know it from the way we treat them. When our teams go overseas, we virtually ignore them, and, except for a brief flurry of publicity, they are accorded the same treatment on their return. A little public appreciation might persuade the stars to keep their amateur standing and carry their country's banner on the field of honor.

8 Uncle Sam should do more to stimulate enthusiasm in the Olympics. The government could help conduct a nation-wide publicity campaign, could also help by picking up more of the tab for the international travel and expenses of the coaches and teams. Now, the State Department often doesn't even know who is on the teams, or where or when they are going. Although the decision as to who goes is strictly private—which is correct in a democratic society—we must not overlook the fact that foreigners view our athletes as official representatives of our country.

9 We must find ways to raise the funds necessary to provide adequate training and facilities for our international competitors. Your contribution to the U.S. Olympic Committee will help assure better teams.

10 The President's Council of Youth Fitness should be established on a permanent basis, and the National Defense Education law should be amended to provide matching grants-in-aid to the states for physical fitness programs. Urge your congressman to support these changes.

I have talked to President Kennedy about the Olympics' challenge, and he shares my concern. As a first step, he urged the NCAA and the AAU to settle their differences. We can also look forward to his greeting our athletes at the White House before they go to Tokyo. Win, lose or draw, they should also be given an enthusiastic reception upon their return—parades, banquets, awards.

We can win the next Olympics if we give it a real, old-fashioned American try. As A. O. Duer, secretary-treasurer of the NCAA, puts it: "The Olympic Games are second only to the space challenge as the major issue in the cold war."

YOUR IDEAS CAN HELP

As ONE STEP toward meeting the Olympic challenge, perhaps a Foundation for Fitness should be established—to raise funds and promote fitness across the land, and to be dedicated to strengthening the well-being of youngsters and adults alike.

Let us know your reaction to this suggestion. Send your comments to: Foundation for Fitness Proposal Parade Publications, Inc., 733 Third Avenue, New York 17, N.Y. Your response will be studied and turned over to suitable authorities.

Guides for a happy baby

BRINGING UP BABY? HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF FIVE

Certainly babies should have some leeway in setting their own patterns in the matter of feeding and sleeping the first few months. But as baby grows toward a more settled existence, he should be gently steered toward a reasonable schedule. The baby who is guided toward good habits early, is less likely to rebel at more exacting regulations later.

You can sweeten eatin' schedules by offering a goodly variety of good-tasting foods. Gerber offers over 50 pleasing, appe-teasing strained foods for your baby... all prepared with the Gerber flair for preserving true-to-nature colors and flavors. Everything from fruits to vegetables, meats to dinners, juices to desserts. And each and every one is individually processed by specialists with special know-how in preserving the utmost in precious food values.

Carriage cues. (1) A bright balloon or pin-wheel, taped to the front of baby's carriage, will provide many happy looking moments. (2) A transistor radio, tuned sweet and low, will delight baby when he's awake... won't disturb him when he's a-snooze.

Toy trickery. (1) If baby gets take-apart, put-together toys before he's manually ready to use them, let him play with the individual parts, provided they're not small enough to swallow. (2) When you wash squeak toys, put a piece of adhesive tape over the squeak mechanism to prevent water damage!

High on the happy list of favorites for the little fellow on a full food schedule are combination dishes. (More ingredients, more flavor.) Gerber Strained and Junior High Meat Dinners are bound to win any mealtime popularity contest. That's because these flavorsome casserole dishes are savory with extra meat. (3 times as much as regular vegetable and meat combinations.) Garden-good vegetables and subtle seasoning are added to the meat for truly sprightly flavor. Nutritionally, they're a good source of protein, offer significant amounts of certain vitamins and minerals.

Important: Gerber prepares over 100 baby foods—infant formulas, cereals, strained and junior foods—to meet your baby's nutritional needs. We're proud to say:

"Babies are our business... our only business!"®

Specialties for little sweethearts

Suggestions from
Mrs. Dan Gerber

There's no doubt that variety makes mealtimes more interesting. That goes for wee ones too. Take the baby who's just starting on cereal. Easiest way in the world to introduce him to the delights of different flavors: Gerber Cereal Sixes. This handy, 6-in-1 package contains small-size boxes of Rice Cereal, Barley, Mixed Cereal, High Protein Cereal and two Oatmeal. Each has its own delicate, pleasing flavor...all 6 have an exceptionally smooth texture. For baby's nutritional well-being, they're enriched with iron, calcium and important B-vitamins.

Cover story for lap-sitters or gada-bouts. Of course you want your baby to be as comfortable as possible at all times. Gerber Baby Pants are comfort (and protection) personified. They're made of soft-as-silk polyvinyl film that's water-proof, leak-proof, acid-proof. Downy nylon edging protects tender legs and waist...ample cut assures wiggle-room and grow-room.

Naturally, Gerber Baby Pants are machine washable...will stay soft through many, many sudsings. Medium, large, extra-large, in pull-on or snap-on styles. At supermarkets everywhere.

Toddler treats with nutritious overtones. Toddlers dote on snacks but the best are those with built-in nutrition and fun. Like Gerber Cookies for Toddlers. These crunchy, cinnamon-y flavor surprises have twice as much protein as most other cookies, plus B-vitamins in the icing. The animal shapes are absolutely adorable, and I can't think of a nicer, more nourishing way to teach your toddler animal names.

Noteworthy treat for teething: Gerber Teething Biscuits. Extra-hard and waffle-surfaced, they're designed to give your teether the biting experience he wants and needs. Gerber® Baby Foods, Fremont, Michigan.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Danny Davis, a 29-year-old native of Philadelphia who bears a striking resemblance to Yul Brynner, got his first big break in show business as a winner on Arthur Godfrey's Talent Scouts show in 1952. He later developed a night club act and appeared at a number of leading supper clubs throughout the country. Danny records for Warwick Records, and his first release, "The Egghead and I," hit the record shops recently. His second album, "The Close Shaves of Danny Davis," will be out soon. Here are some of Danny's favorite funnies:

my favorite jokes

by DANNY DAVIS

"Susan, darling," said the anxious young man, "will you marry me?" "No," she said, "but I will always admire your good taste."

The bright-eyed salesman bounced up the steps, rang the doorbell and was greeted by the man of the house. "Good morning, Sir," said the young man, cheerfully. "Want to buy a letter opener?"

"Buy one?" snorted the disgruntled husband. "I married one!"

Many a man who goes into politics with a bright future comes out with a dark past.

What this country needs is more slow readers and fewer fast talkers.

An elderly, foreign-born gentleman was proudly applying for his U.S. citizenship. He was doing very well until he was questioned about the American flag. "What is it," asked the judge, trying to elicit the correct answer, "that you always see flying over the courthouse?"

The old man thought and thought, then smiled brightly and exclaimed: "Pigeons!"

There would be many more geniuses in this world if people retained as much of what they read as of what they ate.

A woman visited a psychiatrist and pleaded: "You have to help my husband. He has delusions and thinks he's a horse."

After subjecting the patient to extensive tests, the psychiatrist said to the woman: "I think I can cure your husband, Madam, but it will cost a lot of money."

"Oh, money is no object," she quickly replied. "He just won the Kentucky Derby."

There's a new beatnik doll on the market. You wind it up and it doesn't work.

I saw a movie that was so bad—all the credits were under assumed names.

There's a new alarm clock for actors which is guaranteed to produce results. It doesn't ring—it applauds!

More people might live to a ripe old age if they weren't working so hard to provide for it.

I saw a hitch-hiker standing in the middle of the road with his thumb up to his nose. "You'll never get a ride that way," I told him.

"Who cares," he replied. "I'm on my lunch hour."

A woman applying for her driver's license was uneasy despite the simple questions. "And what is the white line in the middle of the road for, Madam?"

She thought it over for a moment, then blurted out: "Bicycles!"

Anecdote of the week

ON HER MOST RECENT VISIT to Paris, Jacqueline Kennedy enjoyed a chat with President Charles de Gaulle. "Do you know, General," said Mrs. Kennedy, whose maiden name was Bouvier, "that my family origins are French?"

De Gaulle nodded, replied with a smile, "So are mine."

Catalina to Boom

Hills and valleys that slope toward the ocean on both sides of the island. Those would make ideal areas for homes, but the land developers are not just about to start a wild, disorderly stretch of residences that could not be provided with power, heat and, once again, that precious water. All land will be leased for 55 years, not sold, and leases will be renewable for 20 or 40 years.

Another rumor—and this one has been going the rounds for many years—is that a canal will be cut at the Isthmus to link the open Pacific on the west with the quieter water on the lee side of the island.

There is this much to be said for that rumor: An investigation has been started to determine the rise and fall of the tides and to see what such a canal would do to the quiet mooring area of the Isthmus.

J. H. (JIM) RAE, one of Edison's main trouble-shooters for many years, has been named manager of the Catalina operation, which will be separate from Edison's interests on the mainland, at least for the time being.

Jim and his wife, Trieva, already have moved to the island. They have one daughter, Linda, who is teaching her first year in South High School at Torrance.

Jim's last job with Edison was that of employee relations coordinator. He has done a real circuit-riding job for Edison—all the way from the mountains to the sea.

Here are some of the most urgent tasks:

Raise the height of Thomson Dam at Middle Ranch 25 feet to provide more water immediately.

Repair Wrigley Reservoir at once. It is a holding unit that virtually has been abandoned.

Replace and enlarge all existing pipelines, both for water and gas and all of which are subject to dangerous leakage under increased pressure.

Add one diesel electrical generating unit to the present power plant at Pebble Beach, just east of Avalon.

Then, says Rae, comes the long-range program of building additional reservoirs in canyons where water can be contained from natural runoff. Edison and SCIC have prepared maps showing just where such reservoirs will be situated. It is estimated that 50,000 acre feet of water falls on the island each winter and that most of that is lost in runoff. The mean annual rainfall is 13 inches.

Long Beach has a tremendous interest in Catalina's future. For one thing, the school district there is a part of the Long Beach system. And, possibly this is more important, thousands of recreational boaters look to Catalina Island as a place to go, to fish, to hunt, and to have family fun.

ODDLY enough, boating brought SCIC and Edison together. Harold Quinton, chairman of the board of Edison, made frequent boating excursions to the island. There he met Philip Wrigley and the deal began to take shape.

The most optimistic Chamber of Commerce-minded people of Avalon predict that 52,000 persons could be housed within 20 years on the island with a development of its potential water supply as outlined in the SCIC report about the Edison program.

Others far more realistic feel that the island's population could rise from its present 1,600 to 17,400 in 20 years with a rise in the average daily tourist total of 1,500 to 2,900.

PHILIP K. Wrigley now owns 60 per cent, while other heirs of the Wrigley family own the rest. The Wrigleys own all land except 35 percent of the City of Avalon, which is privately held.

The island is served in the summer by the SS Catalina and by smaller boats in the winter. Also, there is a barge which carries supplies to Catalina residents. That is one of the factors why the cost of living is higher there than on the mainland.

In addition, two airlines, Avalon Air Transport and Catalina Channel, operate from Long Beach. Amphibious planes are used.

A helicopter operator has applied for a license to operate from Los Angeles to Avalon and the Isthmus.

tration will begin its second term on a note of grand formality. Monday night's celebration party is by invitation only. And guests will wear white ties and tails or long evening gowns.

CONGRESS TO BATTLE ON RULES

By WALTER T. RIDDER

Chief, U. S. Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—The 88th Congress will convene on Wednesday and will immediately become engaged on the political battlefield.

The House of Representatives will resume a fight which began two years ago. The issue will be the size of the powerful House Rules Committee which decides what legislation will go on the floor of the House and also decides in what form it may be presented.

Much of President John F. Kennedy's legislative program lies at the mercy of the Rules Committee, so the first of the chief executive's "must" legislation will be to have the House vote to continue the Rules Committee at its present size, ten Democrats and five Republicans.

PREVIOUSLY the group had been aligned 8 Democrats and 4 Republicans, a division wanted again by the conservatives in the lower chamber. Two years ago enlargement of the Rules Committee barely squeaked through, the vote being 216-212. Enlargement of the committee enabled Southern Democrats who view the filibuster as their only safeguard against some civil rights legislation which they desperately oppose. Sen. Russell D. Gibson, probably best illustrated the position of the Southerners when he said that he would vote for a rules change "only when the shrimp have begun to whistle."

Standing firm against the rules changes will be the Southern Democrats who view the filibuster as their only safeguard against some civil rights legislation which they desperately oppose. Sen. Russell D. Gibson, probably best illustrated the position of the Southerners when he said that he would vote for a rules change "only when the shrimp have begun to whistle."

WHILE the Kennedy administration holds a comfortable margin in the Senate, it doesn't possess enough muscle to push through the rules change on its own. A rules change needs a two-thirds majority and in order to get the necessary margin the liberal Democrats will have to pull votes from the Republican side of the aisle.

Addicts' Mutual Aid Cures Many

ernment, in multimillion-dollar hospitals at Lexington, Ky., and Fort Worth, Tex., claims a "cure" ration of between 12 and 16 per cent, but they acknowledge that their figures merely indicate that between 12 and 16 per cent of the addicts they release do not come back for more treatment.

SYNANON HAS been in existence less than five years, so its "success" ratio of 85 per cent is not a final or accurate figure. But the 136 "clean" addicts at Synanon don't care. They, like Nadine Portugal, are thankful they've found a way to stay away from narcotics.

Synanon—the word derived from the slip-of-the-tongue of a confused addict attempting to say seminar—evolved from Alcoholics Anonymous-type meetings conducted in 1957 and '58 by Dederich in his ramshackle beachfront "pad."

DERERICH, a former

business executive who had boozed himself into near oblivion, was the leader in philosophical discussions which somehow were held at the level of the motley collection of drunks and addicts in attendance.

Some of the addicts came to the realization after awhile that they didn't feel the need to shoot dope any more. That, in fact, they hadn't used any narcotics since they'd been yacking things up with Dederich.

Not all the addicts stayed away from narcotics, but those that did banded together and eventually moved in with Dederich. Soon his "pad" became too small for the growing group, and, aware that they had stumbled onto something, they took the plunge and rented the old armory for $500 a month.

OFFICIAL Santa Monica screamed. Having a bunch of dop fiends on their beach was not to their liking. Having Negroes and whites, males and females, living together was not to their liking either.

The local newspaper maintained a constant barrage of editorial invective. Synanon was taken to court, convicted of a zoning violation, and ordered to leave. Maybe you're doing good, it was told, but do good someplace else.

The Los Angeles County Probation Department ruled that since it was a violation of an addict's probation to associate with other addicts, probationers couldn't stay at Synanon.

SOME JUDGES inquired, found that the ad-

HONORED WITH AN invitation to the White House Conference on Narcotics last September, Nadine Portugal of Synanon stands in front of the organization's bulletin board at the conference with one of the East Coast's leading experts on treatment of addicts, Dr. Daniel Casriel, psychoanalyst with New York's Flower and Metropolitan Hospitals. Nadine, a walking testimonial for Synanon, ran away from home when she was 11 and was an addict at 17.

dicts at Synanon were clean and that the probationers there had stopped using drugs, too, and in many cases overruled the Probation Department and ordered probationers to stay at Synanon.

Official department policy has remained unchanged. The list of judges who have overruled the department is growing.

Synanon and Dederich's contribution to the battle against narcotics has drawn no recognition from the Santa Monica city fathers, but other government agencies apparently have a different opinion.

One of the officials who think Dederich's ideas are worth listening to is President Kennedy. He invited Dederich to participate in the White House Conference on Narcotics last Sept. 27 and 28.

DEDERICH AND 11 other Synanon inmates and friends went to Washington and drew considerable newspaper space in the New York Times, the Washington Post, and other eastern newspapers.

One of the 12 who made the trip was Nadine Portugal.

Lovely and poised, Nadine spoke freely to newsmen and legislators of the time when she was not very pretty and not very much in command of herself.

WHEN she was 11, she ran away from her San Pedro home for the first time. From then on, it was long years in the gutter. There was little she didn't do, few depths she didn't reach.

all addicts, like herself. They knew what it was all about.

She found something else, something she didn't like.

She was ridiculed! She was called a sniveling, cowardly, whimpering piece of nothing. She was called stupid. She was called soft.

They shouted at her. She shouted back.

She washed dishes, cooked, sewed, scrubbed floors, argued, was shouted at some more and shouted back some more. And she talked to newcomers and found out how stupid and soft they were. She told them so. She called them sniveling, cowardly, whimpering pieces of nothing. She tried helping them.

AND SHE found she didn't need dope anymore.

Gradually she was given better, more important jobs. Late in the summer she began working as a mother's helper at the Santa Monica Presbyterian Church nursery school. One of the church's ministers, Rev. Charles Harvey, a long-time friend of Synanon, got the job for her.

She worked well, so well that eventually she was put on salary as one of the four full-time teachers of the 40 or so pre-school children, including Peter and Pat Lawford's daughter, Victoria.

Now she wants to stay in nursery-school work. She has taken courses at UCLA and intends to take more. She has her daughter, Fawn, living with her at Synanon. Both are happy, both are healthy, both have a future.

It could have been otherwise.

World Victory Ahead in Conquest of Polio

By 1951, birthday balls here were drawing up to 6,500 March-of-Dimes contributors.

Big names studied the playbills of benefit shows. In 1950 the entertainers at the Long Beach benefit in Municipal Auditorium included Charles Laughton and Ed Wynn. That year Long Beach contributors donated $56,831 to the fight against polio.

Then in 1955—break-through. The Salk vaccine.

PEOPLE ROLLED up their sleeves and went to work. The incidence of polio began to fall.

In 1955, 21,305 Salk inoculations were administered in public immunization programs in Long Beach. By 1960 a total of 325,983 shots had been given in local public programs, plus thousands more in doctors' offices.

Citizens groups teamed with the City Health Department to do the job. The medical association also pitched in.

Now the final blows against polio are being dealt through administration of the new Sabin oral vaccine.

The National Foundation, meanwhile, has broadened its goals to stimulate research in other virus diseases, birth defects and arthritis.

The cadence of the March of Dimes has stepped up, not slowed, in the fight against disease.

Peru Arrests Its Communists

LIMA, Peru (UPI)—Peru's ruling military junta proclaimed a nationwide state of siege Saturday to break up what it called a revolutionary plot hatched in Moscow and Havana.

Police flying squads arrested scores of known Communists in predawn sweeps. The government did not say how many suspected Communists were arrested, but unofficial estimates in the capital said about 800 persons had been taken into custody.

Buses continued to roll up to police headquarters in Lima into the night, indicating the roundup was continuing Saturday night, Arista Party sources said. 21 of its members were arrested in the town of Haraz and brought to Lima—the first indication that noncommunists were being caught up in the raids.

Gov. Barnett's Case Set for Feb. 8

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A federal appeals court Saturday ordered Mississippi Gov. Ross Barnett and Lt. Gov. Paul B. Johnson Jr. to show Feb. 8 why they should not be held in criminal contempt for blocking Negro James H. Meredith's admission to the University of Mississippi.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, in an order signed by six of its nine judges, said it would try the two officials at a later date if they pleaded innocent or showed other cause at that time.

BARNETT. If they fail to appear to JOHNSON answer the four counts charged by the federal government, the two could be found guilty immediately and sentenced to heavy fines and imprisonment.

Tshombe Key to Peace, Says Rusk

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk emerged from a two-hour session with President Kennedy Saturday and reported "there's a real chance of getting a quick settlement in the Congo."

But, he said, it's up to Katanga President Moise Tshombe to bring about the peaceful settlement, which Rusk described as long overdue. Tshombe, Rusk said, has indicated he goes along, in principle, with U.N. Secretary-General U Thant's reconciliation plan.

Ike Calls for Personal Diplomacy

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower called Saturday for more personal diplomacy and less government protocol in the search for world peace.

"I think there is a definite grass-roots interest among the peoples of the world to make governments get out of their way in their own attempts to establish a free world," Eisenhower said at the first annual trustees meeting of People-to-People.

Eisenhower, chairman of People-to-People and two other former heads of state, Harry S. Truman and Miguel Aleman of Mexico, joined in the session dedicated as a "Salute to Mexico."

Kennedy May Seek Anti-Strike Law

NEW YORK (UPI)—Sources close to the administration said Saturday there was a possibility President Kennedy may seek anti-strike legislation to end the 14-day-old strike of dockworkers on the East and Gulf coasts.

Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz declared that eventual settlement of the strike was "bound to have an effect on the future of collective bargaining."

Squatters Hold Ranches in Mexico

EL PASO, Tex. (AP)—Negotiators seeking a peaceful evacuation of lands invaded by hundreds of squatters in the border Mexico state of Chihuahua, reported Saturday they have been unable to convince the leaders to move their people out.

Latest reports said "Paracaidistas" (parachutists) continued to hold their ground on five large ranches invaded in the Casas Grandes, San Buenaventura, Asuncion, and Janos areas.

Reports reaching Juarez, across from El Paso, quoted one of several leaders of the movement—Emilio Garcia—as saying preparations are in the making for a new invasion of lands in the Madera region in the next few days.

Tony Curtis May Wed Co-Star, 18

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Tony Curtis confirmed Saturday that he and 17-year-old Christine Kaufmann may get married, but he said it won't be for at least a week, maybe Jan. 18.

"I certainly would not discuss marriage with Christine until she is 18," said Curtis in a statement released by his publicist. The beautiful young German actress, who co-starred with Curtis in "Taras Bulba," will be 18 next Friday.

Ball to Brief NATO on Atomic-Arm Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States would supply equal numbers of planes with their nuclear bombs. Kennedy's top diplomats, will fly to Paris Wednesday to open far-ranging talks with NATO on formation of an Allied nuclear force for Europe.

But the NATO Allies Kennedy feels that basic decisions on whether NATO is to have such a force, following up his Polaris-missile agreement with British Prime Minister Macmillan last month, will be made this year.

The talks to be kicked off by the Ball's European trip probably will be the most critical in the great breakthrough toward recent history of NATO—the strengthening the unity of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

THE PRESIDENT discussed the subject with Secretary of State Dean Rusk and NATO Ambassador Thomas K. Finletter at Palm Beach, Fla., Saturday.

Ball is expected to tell the 15-nation NATO Council that Kennedy is prepared to carry out in the near future the first of the three stages envisioned in last month's U.S.-British Nassau Pact. The pact calls for providing the NATO powers with an alliance-control led, European-based force of Polaris nuclear missiles.

The first step would be the commitment undertaken by Kennedy and Macmillan to make available to NATO's strategic bomber forces already in existence. Britain and

Governors' Group OKs National Guard Cut

WASHINGTON (UPI)—

The executive committee of the National Governors' Conference Saturday gave qualified approval for the states to let the Army proceed with its plan to reorganize the National Guard drastically.

But the governors emphasized that each state was still free to veto the Army plan which would mean the elimination of four of the present 27 National Guard divisions.

The action, however, released the governors from a pledge made at a meeting in Hershey, Pa., last July to withhold their approval of the sweeping changes until they had consulted further with the Army command.

These consultations were held Saturday.

The decision came after the Army made a major concession. It agreed to coordinate an internal improvement of the 23 divisions which will be retained.

Gov. Albert D. Rosellini of Washington, president of the governors' conference and chairman of the executive committee, predicted a majority of the states would approve the Army plans.

"I would think that these plans should be acceptable to the majority of the states," he added. "The Army has made a real concession, and we hope to establish the rest of our case in Congress."

The governors will fight in Congress to lift restrictions on recruiting for the Guard.

Asked whether some states will still withhold the approval required by law to reorganize the Guard, Rosellini said, "Yes, there will be some." He mentioned Mississippi and said "there are others."

Gov. Ross Barnett of Mississippi, a member of the governors' seven-man committee on the National Guard, cast the only dissenting vote to a committee report which was adopted by the executive group.

The Guard committee met earlier Saturday with Army Secretary Cyrus S. Vance. Its report to the executive body emphasized these points:

The governors should appear before the appropriate committees of Congress to support legislation establishing that the "average strength" of the Guard shall be 400,000 men. The words "average strength" would substitute for the Pentagon's phrasing of "end strength." The governors hope this would establish that units can exceed manpower levels part of the time.

The plan for internal improvement of Guard divisions, announced by the Army Saturday, is the most acceptable offered.

Individual states are left free to exercise their legal right to reject changes.

Friends Pay Carson Final Tribute

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Actor Jack Carson, the movies' ace portrayer of loudmouth fourflushers, was eulogized Saturday as a man of quiet but deep religious belief.

Dr. Raymond Lindquist, pastor of Hollywood Presbyterian Church, surprised Carson's friends when he disclosed that the 52-year-old actor had completed eight chapters of a book dealing with his religious beliefs.

"The theme of the book was that God had put a responsiveness in every man and we are judged on how well we utilize that gift," the minister said, adding that Carson often discussed the book with him after attending church.

Carson's memorial rites in Forest Lawn's Wee Kirk n' The Heather, a replica of Annie Laurie's Church in Glencairn, Scotland, climaxed one of Hollywood's saddest weeks.

Carson died five hours before actor-producer Dick Powell on Wednesday. Both succumbed to cancer. The two knew each other over the years but were not close friends.

The crowd at Carson's rites was almost wholly different in content from the celebrity-studded turnout at Powell's funeral Friday.

Veteran character actors, known only by face; ex-vaudevillians and golfing buddies from Lakeside Country Club composed most of the 250 mourners at Carson's rites. There also were many rank-and-file studio workers.

But there were names among them — Raymond Massey, Buddy Rogers, Johnny Weissmuller, William Demarest, Danny Thomas and George Gobel.

Gobel, a golf chum and Encino neighbor, left the church in tears.

Pallbearers included actors Dennis Morgan and Dave Willock, longtime showbusiness partners of Carson's.

In the family room along with Carson's widow—his fourth wife—was Mrs. E. T. Wells, the former singer Kay St. Germaine. She was Carson's second wife and mother of his two children.

Sonny Tufts, who attended Powell's funeral Friday, arrived just as Carson's rites ended. He had been caught in a traffic jam.

Singer Constance Towers sang "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," the actor's favorite song.

More than 50 floral pieces turned the little church into a veritable garden. The coffin was closed.

Cremation will follow but, a family spokesman said, not immediately.

Powell was cremated simultaneously with his memorial rites.

MRS. JACK CARSON, widow of the film actor, is in tears Saturday as she arrives for husband's funeral. With her is family friend Sid Freeman.

Patman Assails 'Brainwashing' Done by Tax-Free Foundations

By GEOFFREY GOULD

WASHINGTON (AP)—One large tax-exempt foundation and a wholly-owned subsidiary have spent more than $750,000 since 1955 for public relations purposes, a congressional report said Saturday.

The report said also that another tax-exempt foundation spent $172,583 for public relations services in a 10-year period.

Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., chairman of a special House small-business committee, said in his report to committee members that such expenditures were "an abuse of a public trust, an imposition on the kindhearted American people who subsidize the foundations. In my view, expenditures of this nature should be cause for revocation of tax exemption."

PATMAN SAID taxpayers "have enough of a load without carrying foundations that engage in brainwashing activities."

Patman's report was one of a series in which he has accused some foundations of business activities inconsistent with their legal standing as charitable institutions. Patman has said some foundations are abusing their tax-exempt status and has called for thorough review of laws and regulations under which such tax exemption is granted.

The Texas principal targets this time were the tax-exempt Howard Hughes Medical Institute of Miami Beach, Fla., its wholly-owned subsidiary, Hughes Aircraft Co., and the Ford Foundation.

PATMAN reported the Hughes Institute since 1955 has paid $46,417 to a large New York public relations company, Carl Byoir and Associates, in addition, he said, over the same period, Hughes Aircraft paid Byoir $166,666 such tax exemption is in fees and $545,733 in reimbursements.

Says U.S. Firm to Sublet Navy Work to Japan

CHESTER, Pa. (AP)—The president of the Sun Shipbuilding and Drydock Co. says a Seattle firm, recently awarded a U.S. Navy contract, plans to subcontract much of the work to a Japanese firm.

Paul E. Atkinson, in a letter to U.S. Rep. William H. Milliken, R-Pa., made the charge and said such a move would be contrary to law and to the U.S. national interest.

The contract, for the $15 million job of lengthening two fleet oilers, went to the Puget Sound Bridge and Drydock Co. Sun Ship was the next low bidder.

Electronic Hotfoot Due for Starlings

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Philadelphia, which once tried to rid city hall of starlings by broadcasting the bird's distress cry on a public address system, is about to try something else.

Public Property Commissioner Fred T. Corlito said a $49,500 electrical network to give the birds an electronic hotfoot has been installed on roofs and ledges and will be turned on soon.

Brazilians Vote Today on Setup

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI)—An estimated 18 million Brazilians went to the polls today to decide whether or not to scrap the parliamentary system which many blame for Brazil's continuing government crisis.

Foremost exponent of a return to the presidential system is President Joao Goulart. The parliamentary system was initiated 16 months ago when Goulart succeeded President Janio Quadros, who suddenly resigned. Rightist military officials were suspicious of leftist Laborite Goulart, who at that time talked like a radical demagogue. Conservative congressmen pushed through the amendment changing the government from a presidential to a European-style parliamentary system.

GOULART contends that the system serves to shackle his administrative initiative and is responsible for the nation's failure to move as it should.

It is taken for granted here that the referendum will result in an overwhelming victory for the return to "presidentialism."

The voters will indicate "yes" or "no" on a ballot asking:

"Do you approve the amendment which instituted parliamentarism in Brazil?"

FAVORING a return to the strong executive, in addition to Goulart's Labor Party, is the Social Democratic Party of former president Juscelino Kubitschek.

BOURBON STREET'S BLUE

D.A. Aims at Shutting Down the 'Trashy and Criminal' Joints

By L. J. VIDACOVICH

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—Inside one of the joints that line Bourbon Street, a bored stripper mechanically goes through her act to a phonograph record of "Patricia" on a runway behind the bar.

Ten minutes later, like as not, she will sidle up to a male customer at the bar and suggest that he buy her a drink, too. At $2.65 per drink.

Outside, a barker entices the tourists, making it all sound exciting and naughty to the men and like a peek into perdition for the women.

DOWN THE street, with its lacy iron grillwork and its patina of a more opulent age, are night clubs for the jazz buffs.

There is an art gallery. There a superb restaurant. Here is a place to go and sing along with two entertainers at twin concert grand pianos. There is a shop that sells kewpie dolls, postcards and cheap souvenirs. Behind that dingy door is a fine apartment house with a swimming pool. Next to the curb is a portable hot dog stand.

BOURBON STREET is what you want. Brassy and muted, charming and bawdy, historic and tinselly. And in trouble.

The strip joints have been one of the major attractions.

Tens of thousands of tourists visit them every year, especially at Sugar Bowl and Mardi Gras times.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY Jim Garrison, in office for less than a year, wants to sweep out the trashy and the downright criminal on the street. What will it do to the legitimate businesses?

He now has five strip joints under padlock. Several club owners admit they know of no way to stop him from closing every "joint" on the street if that is his intention.

There have been arrests for prostitution. Perverts have been seized in raids. There is no complaint places that attract, if only through curiosity, tourists who are normal, decent citizens.

GARRISON does not feel Bourbon Street will be hurt in the long run. "I'm not against night clubs," he said, "and tourists like good night clubs. But these (the strip clubs) are not night clubs. They're tourist traps."

His main targets are clubs where strippers mix with customers and ask for drinks. Garrison calls it "a form of commercial vice that is very vicious—its purpose is to empty the entire contents of the unwary wallet."

He also labels it a cover for prostitution, and claims that when his undercover agents investigated the clubs on the street, they were approached by 22 women and got 22 offers of prostitution.

FRANK CARRACCI, who owns three strip clubs and the famed about this sort of clean-up. But what of the strip Court of Two Sisters restaurant, disagreed. He said organizations have cancelled "convention on top of convention" because of the word that Bourbon Street has changed. "They tell me," he said, "that all we have to offer now is old buildings, and they want more than that."

Club owner Larry Larmar disagreed with Garrison on the "evils" of B-drinking.

"Most men who come into the clubs come in to talk with the girls. Most of them begin by asking 'how did you get in this business,' and 'how do you feel when you're up there on stage.' It seldom goes further than that," Larmar said.

THE CLOSING of the first club under court order, Jazz Ltd., surprised the old timers along the street. A bartender said "that was known as one of the Sunday School clubs. The owners were really tough about keeping the club in line. If he (Garrison) can close them all."

Grapevine Road Accidents Cut

SACRAMENTO (AP)—Conversion of the once-tracherous Grapevine Grade on U.S. 99 to an eight-lane freeway has slashed death, injury and accident rates, the state reported.

State Highway Engineer J. C. Womack said accident frequency dropped by two-thirds and fatalities by 89 percent despite a 10 percent increase in traffic.

From an average of eight deaths on the grade before the freeway, the number dropped to one—an intoxicated pedestrian—for a full year of the freeway.

THE NUMBER of accidents for a year dropped from 114 to 41; injuries from 77 to 25. Runaway trucks, formerly the greatest hazard with an average of nine a year, decreased to one after the freeway. Rear-end accidents dropped from 59 to 16.

Womack said the study was based on the average yearly number of accidents for two years before the freeway opened, with one full year after completion.

THE "AFTER" year was July 1, 1961 to June 30, 1962. The Division of Highways said it did not use 1960-61 because "bugs" were still being worked out. The freeway opened in July 1960.

Womack attributed part of the decrease to the policy of reserving some of the right-hand lanes for exclusive use of slow-moving trucks.

He said the 6.6-mile, $7.43 million project has reduced the accidents on the Grapevine to the statewide average for rural freeways.

U.S. Continues 'Copter Use in Viet War

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army will keep on using helicopters in the bush-war battles with Viet Cong Communists in Viet Nam, despite the guerrilla gunfire which has been blasting those aircraft.

The Defense Department issued Saturday a summary of the action earlier this week in which three Americans died, 10 were wounded and five helicopters brought down, one of them a total loss.

Embraced in the summary was what amounted to a policy statement: "Use of helicopters to provide transportation for Vietnamese forces will continue as a primary means of pressing offensive operations against the Viet Cong."

The announcement had originated at headquarters of Gen. Paul D. Harkins in Viet Nam, passed through Army channels and had the approval of the Joint Chiefs of staff and the Defense department. The White House was reported to have asked for a complete report on the battle. The summary issued by the Pentagon today presumably was based on that report.

The summary and policy expression appeared to be intended for several purposes, including:

1. Getting out the Army-Defense Department version of what happened last Wednesday about 35 miles southwest of Saigon. The statement said the deaths, injuries and damage occurred in efforts to rescue those aboard a helicopter hit during the airlift operation.

2. Heading off criticism of Army tactics in using helicopters under the jungle warfare conditions of Viet Nam. The summary said experience shows helicopters can penetrate "otherwise inaccessible areas and deprive Guerrilla forces of the initiative. In 1962, U.S. Army aviation aircraft flew 50,000 sorties in Viet Nam, half of them combat-support sorties. Ground fire brought down only nine aircraft, the department says.

A news dispatch from Saigon Saturday said that in another engagement near the Cambodian border the South Vietnamese government claimed 47 Viet Cong killed, largely as the result of air strikes. The same dispatch, in discussing the battle southwest of Saigon on Wednesday, said American officers who participated believed that inadequate intelligence, lack of aggressiveness and poor coordination were factors contributing to the difficulties encountered by the South Vietnamese forces.

In some Washington quarters, there is inclination to attribute some of the trouble to inadequate and late use of fixed-wing aircraft in the battle. And the impression in these quarters (admittedly far removed from the scene) was that this failure to provide fighter planes to help the armed helicopters arose from decisions of the South Vietnamese command.

Viet Nam and U.S. officers who planned the attack on the Viet Cong were reported to have requested that fighter planes be assigned to strike in advance of the helicopter lift, using rockets and machine guns. But higher echelon headquarters already had committed available fighters to other targets. The report here was that only after the helicopters had come under heavy fire was it possible to divert fighters from other targets and that even then fewer than half a dozen were assigned to the mission.

Baby Ill After Cancerous Eyes Removed

GLASGOW, Scotland (UPI)

Margaret McKeown, the 20-month-old baby whose remaining eye was removed in a New York clinic recently to save her life, is "fretting and ill," her parents said Saturday night.

Margaret already had lost one eye when surgeons told her parents last year the second had a malignant tumor which would kill her if the eye was not removed. After several weeks of indecision by her parents, Margaret was flown to New York three weeks ago and the second eye was taken out.

Her father, Matthew, said Saturday night he was afraid as though in pain over the something may have gone past few days," McKeown said.

Reds Fear E. Berlin Breakout

BERLIN (UPI) — East German Communists set up a heavy machine gun covering a blocked off East-West Berlin street tunnel Saturday to prevent any mass escape by East Berliners attending a sporting event near the wall today.

The tunnel is under the elevated railway lines running between East Berlin and the French sector of West Berlin and was part of Gleimstrasse before the Communists blocked it off when the anti-refugee wall went up Aug. 13, 1961.

West Berlin police said the machine gun was aimed down the tunnel and that the Communists usually take extra precautions when some event brings a big crowd close to the wall.

THE COMMUNISTS also announced they would blow up an empty house on their side of the Zimmerstrasse near the U.S. Army Checkpoint Charlie on Tuesday. The area has been the scene of numerous tunnels, shootings and difficulties between East and West Berlin police.

Communist police Saturday returned a 21-year-old West Berliner to the West after he had served eight months in a labor camp for "slandering" East Germany. Exact nature of his offense was not known, but Eastern guards telephoned West Berlin police to turn the youth over to them.

The extra precaution along coal-short East Germany appealed to the people to conserve natural gas so it could be used for industry.

Belgian Film Critics Choose U.S. Film

BRUSSELS (AP) — The U.S. film "The Miracle Worker," directed by Arthur Penn, Friday won the annual prize of the Belgian film critics.

Second came the French film, "Cleo de 5 a 9," (director Agnes Varda), and third, "Jules et Jim" (François Truffaut), another French film.

Another U.S. film, "West Side Story," directed by Robert Wise and Jerome Robbins, placed fourth. The British film, "A Taste of Honey," directed by Tony Richardson, was fifth.

Draft Change Studied

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Argentine authorities were said to be studying a plan to lower the draft age and reduce the military service requirement for properly prepared youths. Informed sources said the plan provides for the conscription of young men at the age of 18 instead of 20 as at present.

Hunting Big Cats Is Anaheim Rancher's Hobby

By KEN KNIGHT

"BUSINESS—Citrus and Cattle," read the calling card. "HOBBY—Lion Hunting."

It belonged to Leo F. Douglass, of 10611 Douglass Road, a pioneer developer of Anaheim who has lived on the road named after him since 1911.

LEO DOUGLASS . . . Friend to Deer

The card could also have been printed — Leo F. Douglass—Deer Hunter's Friend.

Since the gray-visaged 70-year-old rancher began hunting mountain lions in 1928 he has killed more than 30 of the big cats.

"The department of fish and game estimates that a mountain lion will kill at least one deer a week for his food," Douglass said, "but from personal experience I would say lions kill quite a few more."

ALTHOUGH he admits to killing more than 30 mountain lions, a conversation with the quiet spoken Douglass soon indicates that his "kill" may easily amount to more than twice that number.

In 1962, Douglass killed three mountain lions in a pursuit of his hobby that takes him through California, Arizona and Utah. He has killed six cats in the nearby Santa Ana mountains.

"I first started it in 1928 and haven't ever been able to get enough hunting," Douglass said as he strode over to the pens where his pack of hounds bayed in nervous anticipation.

"The bounty is $60 for a female mountain lion and $50 for a male, but heck, I guess that every lion shot cost me at least $200," he says.

"When I get ready to go hunting, I just pull my truck up here and get about three dogs and take off. Sometimes I'm gone a couple of weeks," Douglass said. "Fish and game people tell me about a cat or farmers will call me."

"I set the dogs on the trail and they run the cat until it's trapped or tired and then I shoot it with either a 9 mm. Luger, or a .357 cal. Magnum."

WHILE THE mountain lion has no natural enemies except man, they pose a problem for sheep and cattle ranchers, often wantonly killing stock just for the thrill of the slaughter.

"I remember once I got a call from a game warden in northern California, a mountain lion had been killing sheep."

"I got right up there with the dogs and the cat had killed 22 sheep and carried one off for its meal."

"Unfortunately, I didn't get the cat. It was so hot the feet of the dogs couldn't stand it. They ran from shade to shade and we called off the hunt."

During his 34 years of mountain lion hunting, Douglass has studied his quarry carefully.

"The lion travels a 40 mile circle and does it every week. They breed every two years and keep the cubs with them nearly two years."

"THEY ORDINARILY won't attack a person, although I've heard of two cases where children have been killed by mountain lions."

"If the mountain lions in the area are big, that means there are a lot of deer for them to kill for food. The mountain lions of the desert are lighter than those living in the mountains."

Scattered throughout the Douglass home are numerous mountain lion pelts.

Asked when he planned to leave on another lion hunting trip, Douglass smiled and replied:

"Tomorrow, I guess. That's about as soon as I can get away."

BETHLEHEM SHIPYARD COMPLETES BIG EXPANSION PROGRAM

22,000-Ton Dry Dock No. 2 Dedicated

The cargo ship Hawaii was raised out of the water Saturday—an event which served as dedication for the harbor area's newest and largest privately owned dry dock.

In a simple—and useful—ceremony on Terminal Island, Bethlehem Steel Co. officials announced completion of a multimillion-dollar expansion program which began in 1961. The Hawaii was the first ship to be brought aboard the 22,000-ton-capacity sectional dry dock.

While company officials watched, workmen went about the task of securing the 12,691-ton freighter.

Completion of the expansion program with the addition of this dry dock to the San Pedro yard greatly increases our capacity and indicates Bethlehem's faith in the growth of the harbor area and the increasing importance of the West Coast to the maritime industry," said W. A. Harrington, San Pedro yard manager.

This will be the second dry dock operating in the yard. Dry Dock No. 1 is a 15,000-ton sectional dry dock. The docks are parallel to each other, one on either side of Pier 2. Pier 2 is the central pier in the newly constructed basin.

Dry Dock No. 2 has an over-all length of 657 feet, 3 inches and width of 96 feet, 8½ inches. The dock will accommodate ships in the class of Matson's Lurline or American President Line's President Cleveland.

Thirty-six turbine-type pumps can raise the dock in 60 minutes. Each pump is capable of discharging 4,000 gallons per minute.

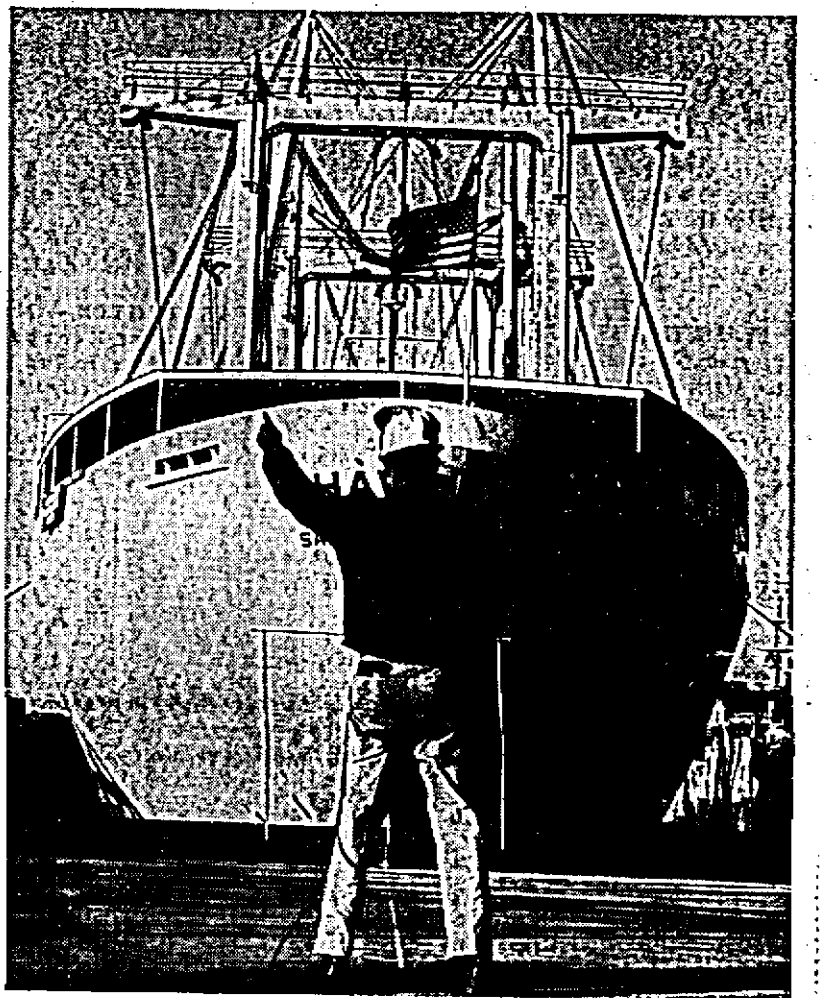

Two whirley cranes serve Pier 2, which is adjacent to the main ship channel of the Los Angeles Outer Harbor. Each crane has a lifting capacity of 22 tons.

With completion of the expansion program and addition of the new dry dock, the San Pedro yard is now one of the most modern ship-repairing units on the West Coast, said Harrington. During the recent construction program, four new piers were built. Pier 1, on the south side of the basin, has a length of 560 feet and a water depth at mean low tide of 25 feet. Pier 2, in the center of the basin, has a length of 660 feet. Pier 3, on the northernmost edge of the basin, has a length of 690 feet and can accommodate a 50,000-ton-deadweight tanker.

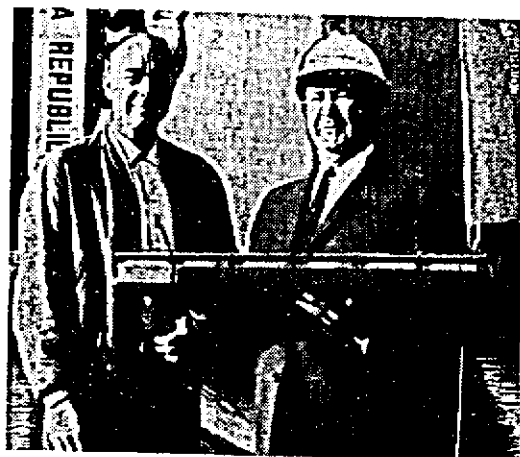

Pier 4 faces west onto the Los Angeles ship channel and was used recently to perform work on the 940-foot-long SS Manhattan, largest commercial vessel built in the United States.

Besides the cranes on Pier 2, each of the other piers has two whirley cranes—each with 90-foot booms.

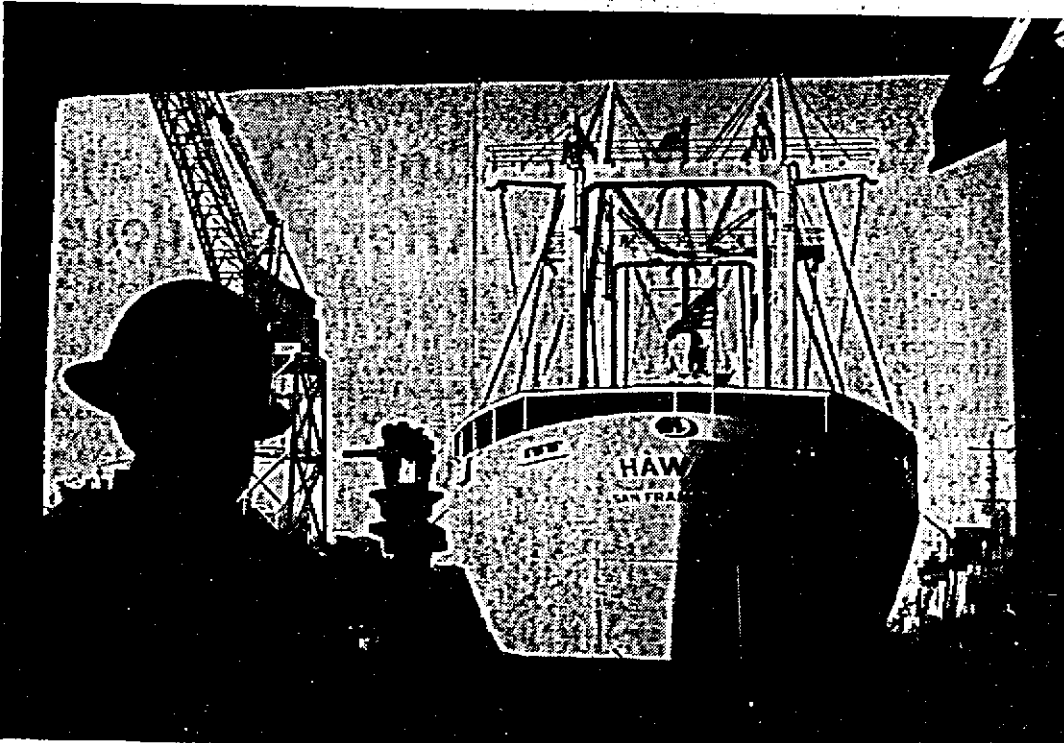

The yard now can handle almost every type of ship-repair and marine-engine overhaul. It has a full range of completely equipped shops, and its engineering crews and operating personnel are

All-Digit-Dialing Hearing Monday

Hearings resume Monday morning in Los Angeles on the merits of all-number telephone numbers as compared to the present two-letter, five-number designations.

The State Public Utilities Commission will hear testimony on two complaints, one filed by James J. Oppen, Van Nuys attorney, and the other by Edward L. Blincoe, president of the Utility Users League of California.

Both seek to block Pacific Telephone Co. from changing to the all-number system.

A case brought by Oppen was taken under submission by the PUC Dec. 23 after three days of hearings. It sought to block Pacific from bringing out its Northwestern Telephone Directory on an all-number basis.

The three cases were joined for hearings, but decisions will be rendered separately, according to PUC President George G. Grover, who presided at the opening sessions.

Monday's hearing will open at 10 a.m. in the New State Building, 107 S. Broadway, Los Angeles.

Industry Site Home Ban Set

An ordinance to bar residential subdivisions in industrial zones is on its way to passage by Long Beach City Council.

Proposed by the Planning Commission, the measure drew no opposition when read for the first time last week. It is scheduled for adoption Tuesday.

Planning Director Werner Reicht said that only few and small vacant tracts remain in the 3,540 acres of industrially-zoned land here. Much of the development in the industrial land has consisted of residences, which are permitted in two of the three manufacturing zones, M-1 and M-2.

Long Beach police would like to know the identity of Maxine Alexander's secret admirer—and so would Maxine. Miss Alexander, piano player at the Anchorage Cocktail Bar on 61st Place near Ocean Boulevard, told officers someone stole a publicity photo of her from the marquee in front of the Anchorage. The 12-by-17-inch picture cost her $27, she said.

THE ONLY exception allowed by the new ordinance is that one single-family dwelling may be constructed to house the watchman of an adjacent industry. Planning Commission records show 9,558 acres in Long Beach zoned for residences, 3,524 devoted to such uses as parks, recreation facilities and other community purposes, 2,780 acres in ditches, rivers and utility right of way, 1,517 commercially zoned and 6,694 acres used or reserved for streets and highways.

EARLY road travelers hereabouts, of whom there are untold numbers, may feel put upon when they think of others lying snugly abed, but there are compensations. I found this out when I got up at an unholy hour to attend a meeting set at the ridiculous time of 7:15 and requiring considerable driving through heavy traffic.

And I mean heavy. The roads were jammed, and the intersections clogged with people going somewhere, presumably to work. Those who don't get out until 9 or 10 have no idea what it's like between 6 and 8.

This is bad, but for the benefit of my readers, all of whom no doubt sleep late, I made mental notes of some interesting viewing experiences.

FOR instance, in Alamitos Heights I saw a lady out in her nightie and bare feet. She was standing on her front sidewalk. The morning newspaper lay four or five feet out in a freshly-mowed lawn and she was trying to get it without soiling her pink tootsies.

Her method was to fish for it with one of those sprinkler turners. I brazenly slowed down to see if she could get the paper in the notched end of the tool. I don't know how she came out because I hastened away when she realized I was gawking. The nightie was pretty thin and she couldn't know my whole interest was in the unique fishing operation.

Coming along a little further I encountered a hitchhiker in dapper dress and carrying a dispatch case. His thumb gesture caused me to slow momentarily, but only that. Those stories of hitchhiker crimes have impressed me, and I figured a mean hitchhiker might as likely as not be smartly dressed and with gun in bag.

On Ocean Blvd. I encountered a brisk, refreshing seabreeze, and the view of the bay across Bluff Park was inspiring. Several men were walking along the sidewalk next to the rail, looking sturdy and determined as they took their morning constitutional. One of them had a dog on leash which he apparently didn't trust. Approaching another pedestrian, he jerked the leash and circled widely around him. Or maybe he didn't trust the other pedestrian. I'll never know. Men have made news by biting dogs.

I ROLLED on along the shoreline, jostling for position among other drivers, all of whom seemed hell bent for election. Several of the cars were filled with men, obviously car pool participants, and in each case the driver was going like the devil while appearing to be asleep. In all of these cars I never saw a smiling face, and surmised that early risers are generally grouchy and danged poor company.

Some had obviously left home in a hurry. On Ocean close in I came alongside a man who was shaving with an electric razor as he drove, and another who was sipping something from a paper cup.

Downtown, I observed a crane on top the partly constructed hotel at 600 E. Ocean and wondered how they got it up there. A little further along I noticed for the first time, although I often pass there, that the tiny All States Society office building is surrounded by what I took to be a flock of metal flagpoles. Presumably they're for state flags and if they were hung, it would make quite a display. The poles, however, are in rather poor shape. Some are rusty, some are bent, some have a ball on top and some don't. What's the story about that?

MY travels took me to Terminal Island and the Navy base. Mostly what I saw over there was a mad scramble of traffic. They really pour into the place in the early morn.

It was a good thing I had all those worth while experiences on the way. When I got to the gate, I discovered my meeting was some place else and I missed the whole thing.

It was an enlightening and thrilling trip, though.

Further Delay Would Have Been the Real Tragedy

AMONG ITEMS THAT WILL be tossed into the lap of the California Legislature in the forthcoming session is a report, now nearing completion, charging that the state water plan contains elements of "a very great and tragic engineering and political error." An old canard for a new year?

The author of the report is Charles M. Weber, a former state assemblyman, who has been studying state water problems under a legislative grant. In a preview report this week, Weber declared that the Feather, Yuba, and other Northern California rivers at times won't have surplus water for the Feather River Project; that the Oroville Dam will be unduly expensive; that the cost of water will be doubled if the Feather River Aqueduct and Oroville Dam are built as planned; that he has a plan that would double the amount of water the aqueduct could provide.

We've heard these things before, of course.

THERE HAVE ALWAYS BEEN, and probably always will be, disagreements as to the best way of capturing and distributing water on a statewide basis in California. Such disagreements delayed approval of the present water program long past all reason.

The present plan was hammered into shape by years of debate after dozens of false starts, and it rests on a foundation of studies and reports sufficient to support a pyramid. Only the final realization by a majority of lawmakers and voters that further delay would do irreparable harm to a growing state brought the issue to a head. People began to understand that whatever the imperfections of the proposed plan, inaction would be far worse. Without water, arid California would curl up like a dead leaf.

PERFECTION IS RARELY attained in any public program. We frankly doubt that it will be attained in the water program. But the program will provide water, and, according to responsible authority, in adequate quantities.

Mr. Weber's full report will be awaited with interest. If it offers constructive changes within the framework of what has been approved, without bogging the program down in further debate, fine. Meanwhile, the truth is that the "very great and tragic error" would have been further delay in putting the present plan into effect.

Vendor Allows No Manipulated News

By Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—A friend of ours was recently riding with one of Washington's famed—and loquacious—taxi drivers. The driver reported without encouragement from our friend that on Sunday, his day off, he sold newspapers on the steps of Washington's Roman Catholic cathedral, St. Matthew's. He recounted that not so long ago at the conclusion of a Mass a young man came over to the pile of New York Times and stood gazing at the front page.

"The second I laid eyes on the guy," said the driver, "I knew he wasn't going to buy nothing." The driver said his belief was reinforced when the man started lifting a corner of the page and glancing at pages two and three. "Get your hands offa there," he shouted at the non-customer. "This ain't no library." The man apologized and shuffled off.

"I watched him as he went," said the driver, "and I thought there was something familiar about him. Suddenly it comes to me," and the driver mopped his brow at the recollection. "He was Bobby Kennedy."

WE'LL SOON GET A POSTAL rate increase, but the post office department doesn't think the volume of mail will be reduced. The amount of mail handled by the post office in the United States is simply staggering, a fact not generally recognized by critics. They usually point to the mail system in France as being the best in the world. "Sure," say our officials, "but all of the mail handled in one day in all of France is just about the amount handled by our Chicago post office alone."

A much admired feature of the mail system in France is the "pneumatique." For a few cents extra the mail is whizzed along and delivered within Paris in about five hours. The system has been tried out in the U.S. It didn't work. Why not? The affluent society, says Postmaster General J. Edward Day, in France, the mail user carefully counts the extra pennies it will cost him and usually decides the message isn't worth all that. In the U.S., speed, not expense, is the essence. When the system was test run here, the American just gaily put on the extra stamps and postal apparatus was just as overwhelmed by the deluge of letters as it is in ordinary mail.

AMBASSADOR TO ITALY G. Frederick Reinhardt is pondering the inadvisability of holding back routine announcements. He failed to inform the Roman press recently that he was due for a routine trip to Washington for consultation. Meanwhile, a syndicated columnist in the U.S. reported a baseless rumor that Reinhardt was to be recalled and replaced by outgoing Ohio Gov. Mike DiSalle. The DiSalle story hit the front pages in Rome on the same day Reinhardt belatedly announced his return to Washington. The timing of his announcement gave credence to the phony column report.

While Jackie Exuded Cheer, Male Kennedys Fumbled Ball

WASHINGTON — Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy may not have realized it, but sometimes it only takes one generous gesture by a person in high places to set off a chain reaction of generosity.

Her visit to the sadly neglected Junior Village in Washington has set off such a reaction. Since Mrs. Kennedy played fairy godmother to the children in the government orphanage in the nation's capital, all sorts of other people have followed her example.

Among them were 13 enlisted men from nearby military stations who spent Christmas Day helping to care for the children. They didn't know much about children, didn't know anything about changing diapers, but, inspired by Mrs. Kennedy, they wanted to help the homeless children of Junior Village feel more at home.

Said Pvt. Gary Baner of Chicago as he blew up a balloon for a sad-eyed little girl of 3: "She hasn't smiled all day long, and I've been here since early morning."

Just then the little girl smiled. Another development: Jimmy Hoffa, head of the powerful Teamsters Union, has taken an interest in Junior Village and although there will be no announcement, he is making a sizable contribution.

Finally, requests for adoption of children from the orphanage have doubled in the past month—all following Mrs. Kennedy's visit.

WHILE Jackie Kennedy was building up a lot of goodwill and affection, male members of the Kennedy family seemed to forget the political axiom that the public is more easily impressed with small things than big issues.

One thing that impressed them in late December and early January was the amount of money President Kennedy spent taking members of his cabinet and staff down to Florida by special planes to confer with him when he could have saved the money by remaining in Washington.

The public long has had the idea that the White House is a place to be lived in and worked in. They know that it costs several million dollars to keep it up. They consider it one of the most beautiful houses in the U. S. A., if not the world. They know that 30-some other Presidents have found it a good enough place to live and work in without constant trips to Palm Beach, Newport and Hyannis Port. So the fact that President Kennedy had a raft of advisers and cabinet members fly down to Florida when they could have conferred in Washington was noted with critical interest, along with the skiing trip to Colorado by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy in a special plane.

FRIENDS of Sen. Wayne Morse, who has battled so vigorously against the public utilities and the power interests, tell this story on the Oregon Democrat:

During an election debate, one of Morse's critics shouted at him: "What about the powerful interests that control you?"

Morse shouted back, "You leave my wife out of this!"

HARRY S. TRUMAN and the Soviets have at least one thing in common—abstract art. Truman referred to abstract art as "those ham and egg" pictures. The Communist Party uses more highfalutin language—"degenerate bourgeois influences"—but it all adds up to the same thing. . . . The late Sen. Bob Kerr of Oklahoma was true to his convictions to the very end. Most senators go to the Bethesda Naval Hospital when they are ill where they get the equivalent of medicine—free medical treatment by the U. S. government. But Bob Kerr, who was largely responsible for defeating the Medicare bill in the Senate, died in Doctors Hospital, a private institution. . . . In fairness to Rep. Floyd Breeding, the defeated congressman from Kansas, it should be noted that Mrs. Breeding worked in his office almost every day for six long years but never took a cent of salary.

When he put her on the payroll during the last two months of his expiring term—to help pay his heavy campaign debts—she was finally being paid for part of the work she had previously been doing free. Her salary for six years, if she had taken it, would have totaled around $36,000. She got paid $1,900.

My, doesn't that ovation just make your heart bleed! And did everyone hear the big speech that was given regarding our 23 Americans who are rotting in Fidel's prisons? What is Jackie shooting for, a contract with MGM or the like.

August Poll Called Turn and Saw Nixon After Presidency

POLLSTER LOU HARRIS submitted a confidential study last August, 10 weeks before the election, showing Pat Brown led Richard Nixon 53 to 47 per cent. November's final came out Brown 52.6 and Nixon 47.4.

The study ranged through numerous other campaign specifics based on deep interviews of about 1,000 Californians. It is a fascinating record for reasons other than its accurate forecast of the final.

One of the fascinations: Despite Brown's lead, when voters rated four public figures on the kind of job they were doing, Brown scored only 43 per cent positive, 57 per cent negative. This contrasted with positive readings of 71-29 for Sen. Tom Kuchel; 68-32 for President Kennedy; 67-33 for Chief Justice Earl Warren.

Harris, nonetheless, found some good in Brown's score—it was an 8-point improvement over his 35 per cent positive rating of April 1961. The improvement looked better when compared with another poll reading: Queried on a JFK-Nixon 1964 presidential pairing, it was JFK 62-38.

HARRIS resolved, therefore, that California's contest was in many ways a JFK-Nixon race and recommended that JFK come to this state to speak for Brown and that advantageous use could be made of Warren's son's switchover to Brown.

Brown-Nixon favor was weighed also by areas and numerous other factors. Los Angeles read 66-34 for Brown while San Diego was 61-39 Nixon. By occupation, executives and professional people went 61-39 Nixon, farmers 60-40 Nixon, white collars 50-50 and labor 65-35 for Brown.

Protestants favored Nixon 60-40, Catholics were 75-25 Brown and the Jewish rating was 76-24 for Brown. Union membership read 65-34 Brown, nonunion was 54-46 for Nixon. In nationality groups, Irish gave Brown a 65-35 edge while German went 60-40 for Nixon.

Sex and age were interesting indicators. Males 21 to 34 years old went Brown 61-39; 35-49 years went Brown 59-41; 50 years and older went Nixon 55-45. Females 21-34 went Brown 56-44; 35-49 years went Nixon 52-48; over 50 also was 52-48 Nixon.

THE RACIAL vote divided 51-49 for Nixon among whites; 76-24 for Brown among Negroes and 84-16 for Brown among Mexican-Americans. Upper middle income groups registered 54-46 for Nixon, lower middle was 52-48 for Brown, low was 64-36 Brown. Finally, the reading from registered voters who had not voted in the primary was 62-38 for Brown, a statistic which drew Harris emphasis on registration and get out the vote activities.

It was further recommended that Brown hit hard in his strong areas, Los Angeles, with labor which represented 32 per cent of the electorate and with bread and butter and education issues among the younger voters. The study showed one of four who voted for Republican Joe Shell in the primary would go for Brown.

Nixon's most frequently mentioned positives were experience as vice president, sincerity and honesty, a good family man and good personality and speaker; his negatives, insincere, phony moralist, cold fish, poor speaker and debater, out for himself, mud-slinger.

BROWN'S POSITIVES were that he was for the people, aged and Negroes, honest and sincere, good on water, hard and conscientious worker. Brown's negatives, indecisive and weak, handled Chessman case badly, wild spender and did not enforce narcotics laws.

Perhaps one of the most telling readings of the Harris study was one rating voter opinion on Nixon's prime interests. Running for Governor scored 38, running for President scored 64.

SACRAMENTO—The most frustrated officials in California are those charged with containing crime and criminals.

They constantly must seek more taxpayers' money to build more prison cells and hire more law enforcement officers and guards. But this stopgap measure only handles the criminals after they have become criminals.

There is little emphasis yet, says the correctional officials, on broad community crime prevention programs. So crime and prisons both grow.

Walter Dunbar, state director of corrections, pointedly asked California communities for help on crime prevention during a recent crime prevention panel discussion in Redding.

In analyzing the 50,000 boys, girls, men and women in confinement or under supervision of the California Youth and Adult Corrections Agency, Dunbar declared: "Many have deep-seated emotional problems, many lack maturity. They are plagued with the same resentments and defiance of authority they displayed in their home or in elementary school days."

"Are we using every possible means of detecting the youngsters with emotional, maturity problems and do we have a community or school service for counseling them before they turn to crime?"

DUNBAR SAID CALIFORNIA correctional studies show that some men's crimes stem from as simple a problem as inability to get and hold a job.

The typical California felon is 30 years old, of normal or better intelligence, has a seventh grade education but has no trade skill. Most are marginable people but could have been trained for a vocation (other than crime).

"One obvious question a community might ask itself then is: 'Are we providing locally the kind of training, the work opportunity and guidance of young men and women need?' said Dunbar.

Dunbar listed adequate community leisure time facilities as essential.

"Are special work, laboratory and other facilities available afternoons and at night for those youngsters with energy which they will expend—one way or another?" asked Dunbar.

In calling on schools and other community agencies to recognize and treat children's emotional problems before they trigger a later criminal act, Dunbar has some strong economic arguments.

California crime is much costlier than crime prevention—even if the prevention includes costly psychiatric help and extensive vocational training.

It now costs $10,000 to build a new California prison cell. Subsequent institutional time costs are figured at $1,800 a year for each inmate. Even a parolee costs the state $300 a year. Added on to these costs are the outlays of public assistance checks to the families of criminals.

CORRECTIONAL OFFICIALS already have broad programs of their own underway to prevent convicts from becoming repeat offenders when they are paroled.

Though correctional staffs are limited, California felons now get counseling, psychological testing and psychiatric help to find the most likely road for rehabilitation.

Though most convicts in California have no bread-and-butter trade when sentenced, correctional officials usually succeed in training them for a marketable vocation.

Half-way houses, work camps and work shelters also are used to aid rehabilitation. And Dunbar has proposed community correctional centers further augment the state correctional processes.

BUT DUNBAR RIGHTFULLY is a little apologetic that such a broad correctional program is necessary in the nation's No. 1 state. He still basically is a prevention man.

Concludes Dunbar: "In all of these facilities, we are trying to help the offender after his criminal pattern has developed. This is almost like waiting until a youth is crippled by polio to give him vaccine."

U. S. Should Start Calling the Shots

EDITOR:

The first lady addressed the 40,000 persons in Orange Bowl stadium in flawless Spanish, and the crowd with moist eyes cheered her short, heart-tugging speech. She is so happy that her son has known the brigade officers, and it is her most solemn wish that some day he may be a man at least half as brave as the members of Brigade 2506.

My, doesn't that ovation just make your heart bleed! And did everyone hear the big speech that was given regarding our 23 Americans who are rotting in Fidel's prisons? What is Jackie shooting for, a contract with MGM or the like.

I believe we are using the patry attack on this whole situation in Cuba. Therefore, to cover up our mistakes we employ theatrical methods to win the supposed confidence of the American people.

Where is the prudent, aggressive type of individual who does not turn his cheek to be slapped over and over again? When you have a thorn in your side, pull it out. Don't try to eliminate it by using medication.

Let's get smart, American people, and live and do what should be expected from the number one nation in the world. We are the number one country on this planet, and no other nation in the world has what the U.S. does.

Why not let the U. S. give the ultimatum for a while and let's quit acting like some poverty stricken, spineless, backward, non-aggressive country who comes in second best.

How Would You Vote on Foreign Aid?

EDITOR:

I wonder what the opinion would be if U. S. citizens during the 1964 Presidential election could vote on these suggestions:

1. Eliminate foreign aid, as it seems the people who need it don't receive what they need.

2. A lottery three times a year where one could purchase a ticket at any post office in the U.S.A. (Gambling? What about the race track?).

Truth Apparently Beginning to Hurt

EDITOR:

Re the letter of R. G. Palmer in the Dec. 25th Public Forum: It seems an increasing number of President Kennedy's supporters advocate silencing any and all opposition or criticism, no matter how well informed or respected the source. Hitler's supporters also favored a press either friendly to the regime or silent.

This sort of thinking is far more dangerous to our freedoms than anything advocated by David Lawrence. There is no place in this country for a person or administration that considers itself above reproach.

It is apparent the truth is beginning to hurt.

Languages in the News

By Charles F. Smith
 and Robert Thompson-Davis

The Chinese Communists have long referred to the U.S. as tsu tsu lao hu ("paper tiger"), meaning there was nothing to fear from it. The complete Chinese proverb in this regard goes, Tsu tsu lao hu yung i'ch'o'ch'uan, meaning "A paper tiger is easy to break with your finger."

To the aggravation of the Chinese fellow Communists, Chairman Khrushchev, in his recent explanation of Russia's temporizing with the U.S. over Cuba, turned the Chinese proverb around, saying, "The American tiger has atomic teeth." In Chinese, in case there are any Chinese Reds who haven't heard Khrushchev's inventive modification of their proverb, it is, Mei kuo tsu tsu lao hu ren tsu ya. "Mei kuo," the word for America, means literally "beautiful" (or "fine") land.

Speaking of tigers, paper or otherwise, February, 1967, to February, 1963, is the Year of the Tiger on the traditional Chinese calendar, a good year, perhaps, for tigers to turn around and bite those who have been bedeviling them.

A Perfect Gift for Mother Is Her Figure

Vickie Mullins just recently had a baby and was frustrated about all kinds of figure problems that developed after her baby arrived. Vickie's new figure is a present from her mother.

as told by: Vickie Mullins,
410 E. South St., Long Beach.

My name is Vickie Mullins and I live at 410 East South St., Long Beach, Calif. I am writing this because it's the holiday season and I am really one happy girl. A few weeks ago my mother, Mrs. Blanche Richette, read an ad that appeared in the Independent, Press-Telegram telling about Pat Walker's Stauffer System program. It told about Miss Walker (who is the national figure authority for the Stauffer System) and what wonderful things she has done for people who needed help in reducing.

My mother called and talked to the manager, and she told her that Miss Walker would be in the salon that afternoon and that she could talk to her personally. Miss Walker did. My mother told her about the fact that I had just recently had a baby (this is my baby, Debra Jean, and my mother that's in the picture that you see). She told her that I was beginning to have all kinds of figure problems and how frustrated I was over them because before I had the baby I had a pretty figure. So my mother took me to the salon and they measured me and gave me a figure analysis along with a courtesy treatment, and they told me where I would lose, how long it would take and exactly what it would cost.

My mother gave me a new figure for a Christmas present. It's the best present any mother could give her daughter because it will be something I will have and cherish long after most presents are forgotten. I am losing beautifully, the people in the salon are so nice to me and I am even going to be able to wear a pretty dress on New Year's Eve, not the one I thought I would wear which would hide my abdomen and hips, but a nice sheath. I really feel that I'll have something to celebrate on New Year's because I have a beautiful new baby, a wonderful mother who was thoughtful enough to help me, a husband who is encouraging me, and furthermore, I'll have my figure back. To me, this is great. I am glad mother read that ad.

They measure me every ten days and, honestly, it is hard to believe that you can enjoy yourself so much with such lovely people and at the same time regain your figure. They're going to photograph me again so you will be able to see how much I have lost in another few weeks. Well, that's what happened to me as a result of going to Pat Walker's Stauffer System—Vickie Mullins.

Here are a few quotations from the hundreds of grateful letters received from women who have taken the Pat Walker's Stauffer System treatments:

"I lost 22 pounds and 34 inches over all. I lost where I needed to lose—including four inches from my waist, three inches from each thigh and six inches from my abdomen. My family says I look 10 years younger and my new figure has put me on top of the world." — Mrs. Ruth Rundlett.

"Life is so wonderful again," says Mrs. Grace Funder. "For years my dress size was an unattractive 40. Today it is a trim 12. I lost 67 pounds without dieting... without exercise. It was easy. I owe everything to Miss Walker."

"In two months I reduced 19 pounds and trimmed 21 inches from my figure measurements. Aches and pains are gone and I feel wonderful." — Mrs. Jeanette Weinberg.

Under Pat Walker's scientific, personalized guidance, any woman can slim down as quickly and easily as Vickie Mullins. Thousands of women on the West Coast have successfully reduced with this service. You can lose weight and inches exactly where you need it. Pat Walker's personalized, comfortable service makes slimming a pleasure. Try it! You can have a complimentary treatment and figure analysis at no obligation. Results are guaranteed. Most women see changes in 10 days. Visits are only $2.00. Place now—today for more information.

HAWAIIAN OPENING A SUCCESS

The opening of Pat Walker's Stauffer System in Salon recently in Honolulu, Hawaii, was a tremendous success.

Miss Walker personally supervised the expansion of her salon reducing service to the 49th state, and reported, when she returned to Long Beach, that:

"It is our hope that our thousands of friends in Southern California, when in Honolulu, will look us up for a friendly visit at 1551 Kapiolani Blvd."

No Rigid Diet in Program

Vivacious Pat Walker, who has helped thousands of Southland women to achieve their dreams of a brand new figure, is now directing a new program from her Long Beach Stauffer System Salon, 423 E. First St.

Nationally known as a figure authority, Miss Walker has operated salons here and over the Southland for years and is launching a vast new program. She is the national figure authority for the vast Stauffer system.

NO STARVATION
Women with problems are finding Miss Walker's figure control methods offering them a new way of life without suffering from effects of near starvation.

There is no secret to Miss Walker's success, for across the nation some 4 to 5 million women from ages 14 to 84 have been given a new figure and no secret could be maintained by that multitude of happy women.

The key to the success—or secret if you wish to call it—that is in losing where the loss is needed and in firming and toning the tissue to retain the new figure.

DIET WON'T DO IT
"Under a rigid diet program women will lose weight," says Miss Walker. "But they won't lose it in all the places they should."

"Perhaps the waistline may shrink from hunger but the bulging hips, large thighs, thick ankles and sway back remain after dieting."

"Under our system we accept each individual as a separate figure problem."

Women who have no figure problem find our treatments tone their bodies, relax them and soothe the nerves without creating a false appetite.

MRS. STEVENS is now a size 10. She was a size 16 and had to wear boxy jackets and full skirts and was ashamed to be seen in a swimsuit.

As told by Jackie Stevens, 920 Mar Vista, Seal Beach.

I am smiling in this picture and really feel like smiling for a change. About 3 months ago I saw an ad with Pat Walker's picture telling about Miss Walker and the Stauffer System. It was a full page ad and it really impressed me. I went to work the next morning and took the ad with me.

My name is Jackie Stevens and I live at 920 Mar Vista Ave., Seal Beach. I am married and have 2 boys, ages 12 and 8. I am 34 years old. I have a good job with Dean Van Lines in Long Beach.

For many years, it seems like forever, I was hiding my figure under a boxy suit or coat, huge handbags and full skirts. My problems were all worthwhile. From the waist down, I had given up slacks and told everyone I didn't like the

Pat Walker Says:

Most women are happy to know that under our figure correction program there is no starvation diet.

Not only do we remove unwanted fat where needed, but we firm and tone the tissue so the body holds the new contour.

We consider each woman as an individual case for no two women have figure problems alike. Age is no barrier if a woman decides she wants to improve her figure.

A perfect figure is every woman's most valuable asset and every woman can have it with proper guidance.

We offer all women a free trial treatment and figure analysis and we will inform them how long it will take to make their figure corrections.

Nearly all women have a good figure in their youth. When their figure problems start they have a tendency to slump and poor posture creates problems in the abdomen, hips, thighs and other areas. Nature did not intend it that way.

the photographer snapped the picture and it was all over. I feel I owe Miss Walker and the Stauffer System an awful lot because I'm a much happier woman today than I was before I met them and believe me, when I say you have no idea what it's like to want something as bad as I did—a pretty figure and to have it come true. — Jackie Stevens.

MRS. LILLIAN POLAK was ashamed to be photographed when she was a size 24½ and weighed 209½ pounds. Now she is down to a size 18, has reduced 46 pounds and is still going down.

as told by Lillian Polak, 286 Hermosa, Long Beach

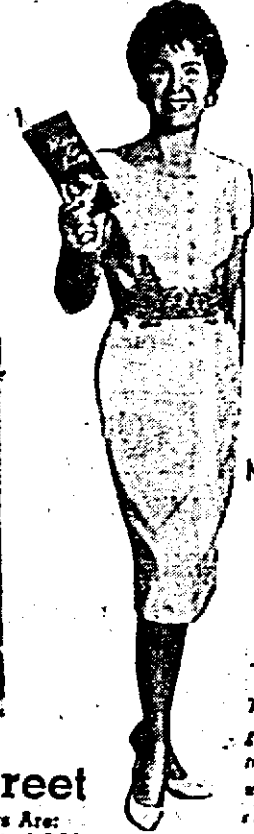

My name is Lillian Polak, could help me. I had given up I'm a housewife and I live at 286 Hermosa, Long Beach. I am married and have 2 children and 3 grandchildren. I am 56 years old. I wish you could have been me before I went to Pat Walker's Stauffer System. I wish I had a photo of how I looked before I went to reduce with her system. I don't have one because I looked so awful for so many years that anytime anyone ever took a picture of me, I made a point of hiding behind my husband and anyone else who was near me because I was ashamed of how I looked.

One day I was having my usual morning cup of coffee and reading the Independent, Press-Telegram and I read about Pat Walker's Stauffer System. That was 2 months ago. I really didn't think they

Sniper Kills 4, Wounds 7 in 6 Months

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—The sniper strikes unseen by night, swiftly felling his victims from behind in a burst of gunfire.

He has struck 11 times in six months.

Only one man has seen him. He died the next day.

The sniper has killed four men and wounded seven others, all Negroes.

He stalks by night an old neighborhood that sprawls from Main Street to the James River in Richmond's central west end.

THE NEIGHBORHOOD, populated mostly by Negroes, has come to know terror; the kind of terror that empties streets at nightfall and sends people behind bolted doors until dawn.

The police bureau has put extra manpower into the area and skilled investigators have pursued every clue.

The sniper last struck on Dec. 1, leaving a 14-year-old boy dead. The case moves slowly now and clues have grown few, says Lt. F. S. Wakefield, in charge of the investigation.

Each attack by the sniper has followed nearly the same pattern.

THE VICTIMS all have been men, usually young men. He strikes after dark, using a high-powered automatic pistol without warning from behind.

The sniper first hit last June 21. Two young men were wounded by a hail of gunfire. Later that morning a block away, Andre Mills, 42, was found dead.

The second victim was John Anderson, 32, who was shot down Sept. 4 by an "unknown colored male who came up behind him." Anderson lived until the next day but could give police only a sketchy description.

He is survived by his wife, Nettie; daughters, Mrs. H. Virginia Ehmman, Mrs. Cecile House; sisters, Misses Olive and Irene Stimson, Mrs. Bess Bourland, Mrs. Helen Spaulding, Mrs. Grace Gochauer; brothers, James, Don, Fred; two grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Princess Spending $238,000 on Home

LONDON (UPI)—Builders have almost completed the $238,000 renovation of a 20-room 17th Century mansion for Princess Margaret and her husband Lord Snowdon. It was disclosed Saturday.

Builders said work progress was almost a "miracle" because they found an underground stream beneath the basement and discovered dry rot and termites.

Mrs. James Davis (left), 1440 Gundry Ave., holds twin girls born Jan. 4; Mrs. Robert Parks (center), 2189 W. 20th St., holds twin boys born Jan. 3, and Mrs. Melvin Atkisson, 530 W. 35th St., holds twin girls born Jan. 2. ## Cuba Permits Swiss to See U.S. Captives

HAVANA (AP)—Swiss officials will be permitted to visit 17 Americans in prison on the Isle of Pines off the south Cuban coast, a responsible source said Saturday.

Informants said three members of the Swiss Embassy will make the trip, possibly today. The Swiss have looked after U.S. interests since Washington severed relations with Havana.

THE SWISS will be permitted to take food parcels to the Americans, the informant said.

The Americans were convicted of crimes against the safety of the state.

Three other American men were held at Principe Castle in Havana and one American woman is in Guanajay Prison, 28 miles west of Havana. The latter four were visited by the Swiss last month.

All the imprisoned Americans were allowed to receive Christmas parcels.

A SWISS spokesman emphasized that efforts to obtain the release of the Americans will be continued.

Wine Marketing Hearing Slated

SACRAMENTO (AP)—The Agriculture Department will hold a hearing in San Francisco Tuesday to consider a three-year extension of the wine marketing order, which expires June 30.

The order authorizes advertising and sales promotion of California wines. The hearing will be held at 10 a.m. at the State Building Annex, 455 Golden Gate Ave.

Explosives Truck Detonates, Two Die

JAY EM, Wyo. (AP)—Two truck drivers were killed Saturday when their explosive-laden truck plunged off U.S. 85 in eastern Wyoming and the cargo detonated.

The Wyoming Highway Patrol identified the drivers as Billy E. Jordan, 31, of Purcell, Mo., and Jack Calvin Carey, 42, of Galena, Kan.

The patrol said the blast ripped the top off the truck and the ensuing fire left the giant tractor-trailer a charred skeleton.

The accident happened about 20 miles south of Lusk, near Jay Em, a small ranching community.

Officers said the manifest showed the truck was carrying explosives in five-pound kegs. An officer said the explosives might have been dynamite, but he was not certain.

Dental Care For O.A.S. Pensioners

Complete information about dental care benefits available to pensioners in this county is available at the Dr. Cowen Dental Offices.

These is no obligation for this service, and personal visits to the office can be made at any time, without advance appointment.

Dr. Cowen points out that the current expanded O.A.S. dental care program provides for 2 different procedures, depending on the type of dental work needed.

"We can provide immediate service, on the very first visit, for those who need X-ray dental examination, or repair or adjustment of their old dental plates," Dr. Cowen points out. "The O.A.S. Identification Card must be presented."

"If new dental plates are needed, the O.A.S. rules require that an authorization be obtained from the Department of Social Welfare, and our staff is at the service of the pensioner for assistance in filling out the application and taking care of the details."

General health is often directly related to the condition of the dental plates, Dr. Cowen added. Plates that are loose, or have teeth missing, can be a handicap to the balanced chewing power that permits the wearer to obtain the healthful nutrition value from the food he eats.

Oroville Dam to Be Highest in U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—California's Oroville Dam, now under construction on the Feather River, will loom higher than any other dam in the United States when completed.

But the 735-foot earth-fill dam—a key feature of California's ambitious state water plan—will be all but dwarfed by dams now being built in the Soviet Union.

One Soviet dam, the Ingurskaya project, will tower to 988 feet. Unlike the Oroville Dam, but like the 726-foot Hoover Dam on the Colorado River, the Soviet Union's highest dam will be of concrete construction.

L. B. Arena Popular Place

Long Beach Arena manager Win Hanssen is virtually a guest author today as he unfolds to us the interesting chain reaction in his office following cancellation of Chiefs' basketball dates in the Arena.

Chiefs' owner Art Kim called Hanssen on Jan. 2 at 9:30 a.m. to cancel eight of his remaining nine dates for the defunct Chiefs. (Kim retained the date of Feb. 2, when the Globetrotters were booked here on a double bill with the Chiefs. The Globetrotters still will be here, with Kim handling the promotion.)

Walt Newland, Wilson High School principal, was on the line awaiting conclusion of Kim's call. Newland firmed up the night of Jan. 26, which date Wilson would have played a second game of a double-header with the Chiefs, and he also booked the night of Jan. 30 for the Bruins.

As soon as Newland's call was completed, Poly High principal Neil Phillips got on the horn and agreed to the nights of Jan. 26 and Jan. 30, and additionally scheduled games on Feb. 12 and Feb. 21.

Then, before Hanssen could right himself, Jerry Hill of Roller Skating Championships snatched the date of Feb. 23, took a second date of Feb. 16, and then decided to grab the night of March 22.

"Within a period of one hour after Kim's cancellation of eight Chief dates," sighed the dazed manager, "seven replacement dates had been filled."

Hanssen is scared to death to reveal the ONE remaining date available for fear he'll be mobbed by ice skaters, roller skaters, auto show, boat show and maybe tiddley-wink officials.

"I think we'll have a waiting list for our second year of operation," concluded Hanssen, in what surely must be recorded as the first understatement of 1963.

THE CENTURY CLUB and tournament co-chairmen, Dick Perry and Bob Pestolesi had their feelings revived considerably this week when the athletic director of Drake University sent a fine note commending everyone concerned with the recent Long Beach Basketball Invitational.

The four-team tourney was not a financial success, but everyone in Long Beach agreed it was handled in excellent artistic manner.

Drake applauded the tourney "as one of the best we've ever seen" and cautioned Long Beach "not to give up after one year. We've gone through the same thing and can tell you that it takes time to build anything like this. There is no short cut for the time factor."

In the business of athletics, often many of us are involved with our own impatience. Just as often, it takes wiser and cooler heads—like the fine gentlemen from Drake and Oklahoma State Universities—to convince us that time must run its course. In spite of the sad attendance projects I've witnessed during the past year, I've become a convert and am willing to let "time" be the ultimate judge in future Long Beach events.

WEIRDEST LETTER of the new year received by this department:

"I have for many years been reading your column and consider it interesting. It seems you have a vast knowledge of sports, but I think I know more than you. I consider myself an expert on sports."

"Every time I predict somebody to win or something to happen, it happens. I just know too much about sports and that gives me an advantage over everybody else. I wish that you would please print this piece of wisdom in your column."

"If you would like to correspond with a great sports fan, please say 'yes' in your column."

This Nobel Prize nomination was signed "Socrates II, Age 16."

Forget the correspondence, Socrates. I've got too many nuts on my back already. (Oh, and next time, kid, please sign your real name, eh?)

ELSEWHERE IN THESE PAGES, you'll read an article about the Century Club's seventh annual Sports Night, scheduled for Jan. 24.

In past years, the Club and this department have been deluged with fast-minute blasts by relatives and friends of Long Beach athletes who claim certain sports figures should have been invited to the banquet.

Let's do the inviting in an orderly fashion this year, folks, and IMMEDIATELY. Simply drop a note to this department on the achievement of any Long Beach athlete on the state or national level during 1962.

Do NOT telephone, please. Notate the athlete's achievements, his (or her) address and telephone number... and let a committee do the rest. With YOUR help, we'll be able to sift through the hundreds of names in proper manner this year... and not overlook the worthy!

Flying Wheels Romp to Casual Triumph

The Long Beach Flying Wheels, hitting a torrid 51 per cent of their shots from the floor, raced past Fresno for the second time in two nights Saturday, winning 71-57.

John Cheves canned 21 points in leading Long Beach to its 16th successive win, five of which have been this year. Frank Franco, Fresno forward, was the game's high scorer, hitting 29.

Long Beach's 16th straight win came in a 71-57 victory over Fresno at the Long Beach Arena Saturday night.

Calhi Upsets Compton; Saints Beaten

By JOHN CASH

California High pulled away from Compton in the final two minutes to stun the Tarababes, 45-37, and win the Compton basketball tourney Saturday night.

Player of the tourney Dave Callendar scored on a three-point play with 2:16 left and Cal added three more points in the next 55 seconds to put the game on ice.

Loyola walloped Norwalk, 60-43, for third-place and Bellflower nipped St. Anthony, 45-44, on a follow shot by Bill Rohr with five seconds to go to take the consolation title.

The all-tourney team included Bob Ramsey, Bob Nicholson and Tim Cherney of Calhi, Mike Jacobs, Harvey Dillon and Joe Davis of Compton, Bill Paulino of Norwalk, Tony Terry of S.A., Rick Cabrera of Loyola and Dan Wood of Bellflower.

Jacobs was awarded the high-point trophy (80 points) and Paulino was named the top defensive player. St. Anthony's John Graves missed tourney honors by one vote.

ST. ANTHONY failed to score in the last four minutes as it missed several shots. The Saints yielded only two baskets in that span but it was enough to beat them.

Larry Schima's two free throws gave S.A. a 44-41 lead with 3:58 left, but Al Clegborn narrowed the deficit to one with a basket with 2:51 to go.

Rohr's basket was made possible when St. Anthony lost the ball on a bad pass with less than a minute remaining.

Calhi (47) defeated Compton (37) in the final game of the tourney. Calhi's victory was aided by a strong performance by Dave Callendar, who scored 21 points.

Compton's defense was unable to contain Calhi's offense, particularly in the second half. Calhi's lead was never in jeopardy.

Calhi's victory was a surprise, as they were considered underdogs. Their performance was a testament to their teamwork and skill.

BENNIE RICHARD gave Poly its go-ahead basket 17 seconds after Ware tied the count and the little guard hit several key jumpers in the fourth period to put the Rabbits in command by 10 points midway in the quarter.

Richard led Poly with 19 points, followed by Ware with 17 and Mel Reed with 13. Coach Bill Mulligan continued his shuffling of players every other minute and 10 scored.

Poly's junior varsity also won, 72-60, giving it a perfect 12-0 mark.

Mighty Cincinnati opened its bid for a third consecutive Missouri Valley Conference basketball crown Saturday night by whipping Wichita, 63-50.

The No. 1-ranked Bearcats were never in serious trouble as they rolled to their 29th consecutive win—11 this year—over the eighth-ranked Shockers.

Wichita was one of four of the Associated Press' top 10 to taste defeat. Kentucky (No. 6) bowed to Georgia Tech in two overtimes, 86-83.

Auburn (No. 10) suffered its first loss, falling to Mississippi State, 62-53; and UCLA (No. 9) fell to Washington, 67-63.

Duke's seventh-ranked Blue Devils walloped North Carolina State, 78-52, as Bill Heyman netted 25 points.

As for individual efforts, Indiana's Jim Rayl was tops, scoring 44 points in a 96-84 win over Michigan State. Rod Thorn had 28 points as West Virginia won.

Ohio State (No. 5) got a scare in its Big Ten opener, losing to Minnesota, 78-76, as guard Dick Reasbeck scored eight points in the last three minutes.

Two free throws by Mike Tomasovich with seven seconds left in the extra period gave Georgia Tech its win. High-scoring Cotton Nash of Kentucky scored only nine points.

Second-ranked Loyola of Illinois remained unbeaten, clobbering Loyola of Louisiana, 83-53, while third-rated Illinois, paced by Bill Small's 25 points, topped Iowa, 85-76.

Fourth-rated Arizona State had trouble with Texas Western, but won 63-60.

more poised than do the Celtics.

Tom Heinsohn, Frank Ramsey and Sam Jones were ushered out of the game on fouls, and once again, even though Baylor went out on fouls, the Lakers displayed the second stingiest defense in the NBA.

With 40 seconds to go, Russell knotted the score with two free throws at 102-102. West came back with a stolen ball and sank it to make it 104-102. But Havlicek hit from 15 feet out with 40 seconds left to knot it again. Then LaRusso hit two clutch free throws to sew it up.

BOSTON GOT off a last-ditch shot as the buzzer sounded and it rimmed the basket and came out. The try was made by Jim Loscutoff, the most unlikely man to make the big effort.

By JERRY WYNN

One year ago, Jack Nicklaus—then U.S. Amateur champion—made his professional debut in the L.A. Open. To the snickers of the "I told you so, the kid isn't ready to play with the men" cynics, the flaxen-haired, cherubic Ohio State prodigy limped home with the also-rans in a tie for 50th place to earn only pocket money of $33.33.

But you know now who had the last snicker.

For Jack Nicklaus returned to Southern California last week as the most heralded and by far the wealthiest one-year wonder boy in all of sport... the U.S. Open champion... twice the conqueror in head-to-head duels with Arnold Palmer... winner of $113,000 in 1962 prize money.

Not a bad start for a lad who won't be 23 until later this month.

Besides the monetary benefits, Jack, have you found pro golf to be fun?

"Yes, it's been most enjoyable. As a pro, all I do is concentrate on my golf. When I was an amateur, it was getting to be a rat race to play golf, go to school and earn a living to support my family. There's a big difference now. I'm a golfer."

Is there a touchstone to your success?

"It is difficult to single out any one factor in a golf game. You have to start with ability or you don't belong playing in pro tournaments. What helped me most last year was being able to sink putts from within six to eight feet of the cup. Then I drove well most of the time. In winning at Seattle, I hit only one tee shot off the fairway all four rounds."

Do you ever feel that the veteran pros are envious of your quick success?

"Not to my knowledge. Of course I can't read everyone's mind. You'll have to take it from there."

How have the galleries treated you?

"First, it is always an advantage to play in front of large galleries. Mentally, it gives you a lift. Then a large gallery will help define a fairway and can keep a ball from going over a green. The galleries don't pull for me the way they do for Arnold Palmer. But I've been treated well."

You have gained fame as the conqueror of Palmer. Do you enjoy that role?

"I never think of it in that way. To win the National Open, I had to beat hundreds of other golfers as well as Palmer. Of course, Arnold was the man to beat at the end, and will be the man to beat in any tournament he plays. If I can beat him, that's fine. But I don't consider it a personal challenge."

Have you a goal set for this year?

"No, I'd just like to win as many tournaments as I can. I'd like to win them all."

What do you think your chances are in the California tournaments this month?

"I'm a bit rusty now from vacationing at home in Columbus (Ohio), but I hope I can get my game into groove more quickly than I did out here last year. I'm going to skip the San Diego tournament next week, but I will play at Pebble Beach, San Francisco and Palm Springs."

What has been your greatest thrill in golf?

"By far it was winning the National Open. It's the tournament with the most prestige. I guess it's the dream of every golfer even though the financial rewards aren't as great as some other tournaments. The Masters probably is the most lucrative now because it comes early in the year when you can capitalize better on endorsements. However, the Open is still the big one."

Has success altered Jack Nicklaus?

"I hope not. If a golfer doesn't like the excitement and pressure of tournaments, he's in the wrong business. I'm sure anybody gets a kick out of seeing his name in print."

A name to be reckoned with in print—and golf championships—for years to come is Jack Nicklaus.

Casares Admits Lie Tests, Denies Guilt

CHICAGO (UPI)—Veteran fullback Rick Casares of the Chicago Bears, embittered over the fact that information leaked out revealing he had submitted to lie detector tests, said Saturday, "I don't believe there's any scandal in the National Football League."

Casares said he took a lie detector test Oct. 17, 1961, and another 10 days ago at the request of National Football League officials.

"I took the tests voluntarily and in complete confidence in order to help the league," he said. "But now I'm upset over the fact that information leaked out revealing he had submitted to lie detector tests, said Saturday, 'I don't believe there's any scandal in the National Football League.'"

Disclosure of the tests came amid rumors of a National Football League betting scandal involving players of several NFL teams. The rumors have prompted investigations which commissioner Pete Rozelle said in Miami Beach, Fla., were "usual rather than unusual" in checking out reports of possible wrong doings.

"I don't think there is anything to it," said Casares. "I've heard of heavy betting by gamblers and other men. But I can't believe any player has shaved points as they say or worked with any gamblers."

"These rumors have been going on for more than two weeks. If anybody has anything to print why are they just printing one rumor here and another one there. I defy anyone to come up with anything about me."

AAU Gives Top Award to Beatty

NEW YORK (UPI)—Jim Beatty, who set one world and six American track records during 1962, has been named winner of the Amateur Athletic Union's James E. Sullivan award.

The award, in memory of the founder and former president of the AAU, is made annually to the athlete who, by performance, example, and good influence, did the most to advance the cause of good sportsmanship during the year.

Beatty, a 27-year-old former University of North Carolina runner who once retired from competition, established himself as the fastest miler in the United States last year.

Beatty set a world mark of 8:29.8 for the two miles at Los Angeles, June 8. His other American records, all established on a European tour with the Los Angeles Track Club, include: a 3:39 clocking for the 1,500 meters; 3:56.3 for the one mile run (outdoors); 7:54.2 for the 3,000 meters; 13:19.2 for three miles and 13:45.0 for the 5,000 meters.

'NEWK' NOT WANTED IN WHITE DISTRICT

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI)—Former major league pitching star Don Newcombe said Saturday he will sell his liquor business here and leave New Jersey because a builder refused to sell him a home in a white neighborhood in suburban Montclair.

"I don't want to bring up my son in such an atmosphere," Newcombe said. "I had heard about things like this happening to other people but I somehow never thought it would happen to me. My wife's from California and she's not used to this either."

Newcombe said he would move his family to Los Angeles "as soon as I can expedite the sale of this business."

Campbell caught 10 passes from Sonny Gibbs in the San Francisco Shrine game Dec. 29, scoring twice. Richter rolled up 163 yards on 11 receptions at Pasadena while Mackey scored twice for the East in the Shrine contest, grabbing five passes for 152 yards.

Gibbs, the Texas Christian giant, will be opposing Campbell this time as quarterback for the South.

Gibbs had a big day in San Francisco, hitting on 22 out of 37 tosses.

"And I sure wish I had Campbell on my side again," the TCU ace said. But Gibbs could be worse off. Operating out of coach Billy Barnes' slot tee, he will have such targets as Louisiana State's Jerry Stovall, Ron Goodwin of Baylor and Marv Fleming of Utah.

Griffing's Passes, Goal Line Stand Save South, 33-27

MOBILE (UPI)—Quarterbacks Glynn Griffing of Mississippi and Gary Cuozzo of Virginia and a magnificent goal line stand in the final seconds paced the South to a 33-27 victory over the North Saturday in the 14th annual Senior Bowl game before 38,048 fans.

The Rebel victory offset a record-breaking passing performance by the North's quarterback Jerry Gross of Detroit and an outstanding running show by Iowa State's brilliant halfback Dave Hoppmann.

The game started out almost a duplication of last year's when the Rebels won by a 42-7 rout. The Rebs took a 27-6 halftime lead. But the North came back fighting to surge within a yard of tying the game in the final seconds.

GRIFING PASSED for three touchdowns and Cuozzo tossed to South Carolina's halfback Billy Gambrell for the first score of the game. Gambrell later caught a touchdown pass from Griffing. Mississippi State end Johnny Baker caught two touchdown passes, both from Griffing.

Griffing was voted by sportswriters the game's outstanding player even though he played only a little more than one quarter.

The South's other touchdown came on a four-yard run by Keith Kinderman of Florida State.

The North scored in the first quarter on a one-yard plunge by Hoppmann, who ground out 120 yards. It came a few minutes after the South scored on the Cuozzo to Campbell pass.

THE SECOND Yankee score came on a razzle-dazzle play—fullback Dave Katterhenrich of Ohio State caught a lateral from Al Snyder of Holy Cross at the four while Snyder was being smothered by Southern defenders after catching a pass from Gross.

Snyder caught passes of 35 and 36 yards for the Yanks' two other touchdowns.

McKay will be called upon in clinics to explain how his new style of play transformed the Trojans into national champions. McKay recently was called "the most imaginative coach to come along in 10 years" by Frank Leahy and football coaches are never averse to copying a good thing.

One of the first questions to be asked McKay will be: What about '63?

The Trojans will be better than they were in 1962 when they won 11 in a row and... well, you know all those flattering things that were said about them.

FROM THE starting team the Trojans lose a fullback (Ben Wilson), a blocking back (Ken Del Conte) and a tackle (Marv Marinovich).

Coming back next season are such fellows as Hal Bedsole, Gary Kirner, Pete Beathard, Willie Brown, Damon Bame, Ernie Jones, Pete Lubisch... well, it's a long list.

At first glance it might seem foolish to say that a fullback like Wilson can be easily replaced, but it's true. That is not to say Wilson's ability can be equaled with ease, but his contribution to the '62 team can be equaled and topped by the boy who seems destined to inherit his position, because Wilson was bothered by an injury most of the season. His contribution was limited.

Troy's fullback in '63 likely will be Ron Heller, a reserve halfback the past season who caught the eye of knowledgeable football men. Heller weighs 190 pounds, is built with a bone structure that will support 205 to 210 pounds. He runs with the speed of a halfback and the power of a fullback.

Troy had 38 lettermen this season and 28 of them will be back. Add to that some good prospects up from a strong team and it's an impressive start—a lot better start than the 1962 team had. But that's not all. Add some excellent prospects coming in from junior college ranks.

TROY FIGURES to pick up the cream of the jaycee crop. The reaction among junior college players has been startling. It seems they all want to go to USC. In recent years since USC was crippled by NCAA sanctions and barred from the Rose Bowl, it's been a struggle to get the outstanding jaycee players. No more.

Yes, McKay will find plenty to keep him busy. It's a long time 'til next season, but it will be worth the wait. Into the Coliseum will come such Trojan opponents as Oklahoma, Michigan State, Ohio State and Oregon State in addition to Stanford and UCLA.

USC will go on the road to meet Colorado, Notre Dame, Cal and Washington. The Trojans will meet Oklahoma, Michigan State, Notre Dame and Ohio State in succession.

Yes, there's plenty to keep McKay busy.

JOHN MCKAY Explains New Style

Charge AAU in Scare Campaign

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The executive director of the U.S. Track and Field Federation Saturday attacked suspension of Jim Dupree by the Amateur Athletic Union as part of a "scare campaign" and asserted it was a "flagrant example... of the lengths to which the AAU will go."

At the same time, Charles D. Werner declared the Pan-American Games should be abandoned.

Werner told a news conference that the AAU had warned directors of several meets that it would not sanction them if these directors sought sanction of the newly formed Track and Field Federation.

THE SHARPLY worded statement by Werner came as the president sought to bring a truce between the warring AAU and Track and Field Federation to assure the United States with the strongest representation in track and field during the 1964 Olympics.

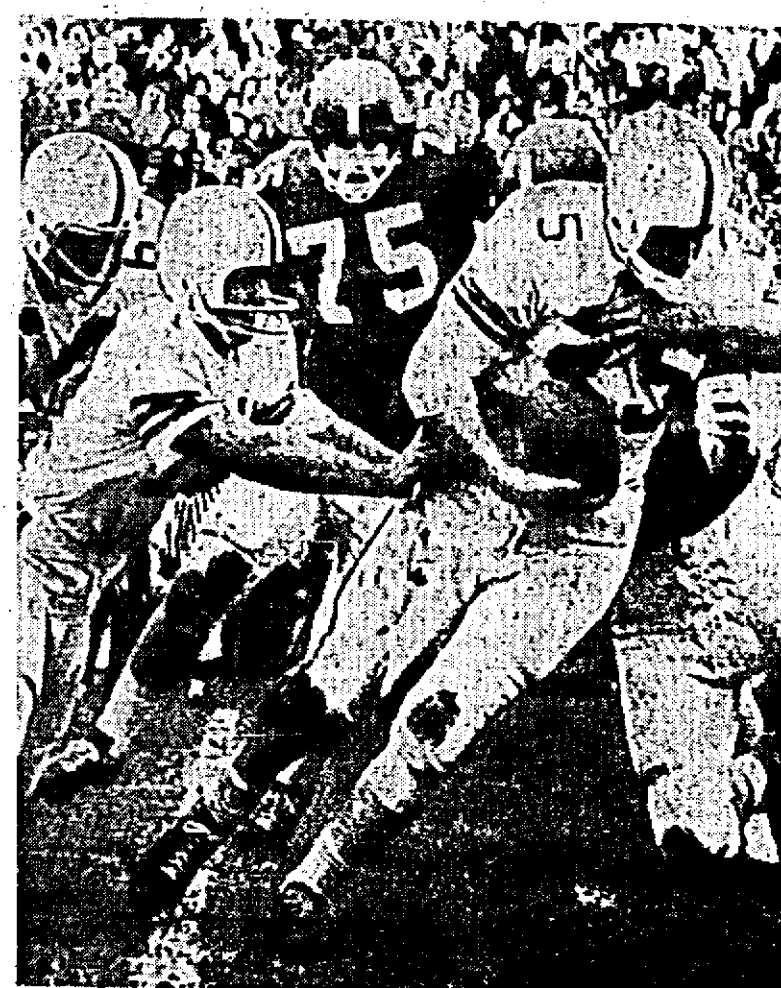

Werner, obviously disturbed by the Dupree incident, said that the action "again shows the AAU contempt for United States athletes and disdain for President Kennedy's attempts to keep the United States track and field performers eligible for international competition in the 1964 Olympic Games."

Werner said Dupree was suspended on Oct. 28 after a Southeast Conference meet at Knoxville which was sanctioned by his federation and by the local AAU. However, he said the suspension came when the national AAU refused sanction—although it had agreed to joint approval of a similar track and field meet at Chicago.

WERNER, former Penn State coach, said the overwhelming U.S. Pan-American superiority made it "embarrassing" both for the team and the opposition who "insisted we send our best."

"I don't see what good the meet does," said Werner, who said the U.S. dominance was so great that he was almost relieved when one of his men had an off day—"if you can believe that."

Werner's Track and Field Federation received a boost from the west Saturday when the AAU reaffirmed its support of the new organization.

A HELPING HAND IN TIME OF NEED North quarterback Jerry Gross pushes his fullback, Dave Katterhenrich, for a few extra yards before the South's Jim Dunaway makes stop. South won, 33-27.

Tab Lions as Runners-up Vie

MIAMI (UPI)—The Detroit Lions, still smarting over their divisional loss to the world champion Green Bay Packers, ruled a rugged eight-point favorite Saturday on the eve of their runner-up playoff game with Pittsburgh in the Orange Bowl.

It's a game designed solely to aid the players' pension fund with a $125,000 television payoff for the national picture tube tussle on CBS-TV starting at 11 a.m. PST.

But, while the winners each collect $600 against an individual $400 check for the losers, according to coach George Wilson of the roaring Lions—only team to conquer the world champion Packers this season—there's more than a $200 per man difference at stake.

"Call it pride, or call it whatever you want to," said the burly, easy-going Wilson, "but this will be a rough game between two fine defensive teams."

Despite the pride of workmanship involved, there are a number of other football facets at stake in this one:

— Whether Miami will come up with enough in-person patronage to continue to host the game, plus a personal vendetta satisfaction for Steelers coach Buddy Parker, trying to beat the team he once coached, and Pitt quarterback Bobby Layne attempting to conquer the club with which he gained his greatest fame. And this could well be his football swansong.

Inside pro sources hint that if the game does not draw at least 35,000 fans—which it is not expected to draw—the game well may be moved elsewhere in the future.

"It isn't hard for us, or for the Steelers, to get 'up' for this game," said Wilson. "A lot of people may figure that we look on this game as a vacation, but they overlook the pride involved when you get two runner-up teams such as these knocking heads. It'll be an all-out battle right from the opening whistle."

CITIES UNDER THE SEA

Diving Vessel May Show Way

By JOSEPH L. MYLER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Men some day may build cities under the sea.

Already they are designing atomic plants which could supply such submarine communities with power and heat.

Deep-diving vessels built for oceanic research may be the precursors, it has been speculated, of transports linking sea bottom cities with the surface world.

The most immediate economic incentive for considering the feasibility of underwater communities appears to lie in the well-established fact that billions of tons of valuable metals litter the ocean floor.

IN THE LONG future, it conceivably could turn out that the pressure of growing populations on the continents might drive mankind to seek living space in the sea. That notion appears at least to be no more fanciful than the idea of colonizing the moon and mars.

According to the Westinghouse Electric Corp., a recent study financed by the company and the power branch of the Office of Naval Research established the practicability of atomic power plants under the sea.

A large undersea reactor is now in the preliminary design stage at the company's Astronautical Laboratory in Pittsburgh. It would be capable of producing 3,000 kilowatts of electricity, enough for a community of 6,000 persons. The plant would be the kind that converts heat directly into electricity and thus would need no moving parts.

RICHARD C. CUNNINGHAM of Westinghouse, noting that 70 per cent of the earth is covered with water, said that "if man could establish an undersea community as a base for geological studies or mining operations, it would be comparable to discovering a new world."

"But like outer space exploration," Cunningham said, "undersea work would require that man bring his environment with him. And, like space flight, this would require large amounts of power to sustain life in such an environment."

The undersea atomic plant would be 46 feet high and 20 feet in diameter. The Navy-Westinghouse study indicates it could operate unattended at full power for 18 months.

Spring Begins to Take Shape

...I, P-T Brings on-the-Spot Coverage of N.Y. Showings

By MARY ELLIS
I, P-T Fashion Editor

NEW YORK CITY—Fashionable midtown New York is many things to many people.

It is, of course, the world's largest building (102 stories); it is the melting pot of nationalities and cultures; it is the more than 200 fashionable shops where elegance is a product and customers part with countless dollars.

But to 250 fashion editors from over the nation, here attending the unveiling of spring-summer collections by the nation's leading designers, it is the ivory tower of haute couture.

HERE, where fashion is big business, designers have the busiest drawing boards in all the world.

From them have come more head-turning looks than a whole season of world tennis matches at Wimbledon. . . looks that make headlines and by-lines from hither to yonville, from Hong Kong to Yonkers.

The coming season promises to be no exception.

As chill winds blow outside, the nation's trend-setting designers are set to show their first breath of spring fashions to the nation's press at swank Hotel Pierre across from Central Park.

THE UNVEILING starts Monday in an event-packed week which will end with a chartered flight to Nassau, where more styles will be previewed by the week-sponsoring New York Couture Group.

Today we're giving you a glimpse of some of the newest trends for spring, along with the designers who created them.

For more detailed, on-the-spot reports of what Miss and Mrs. America will be wearing come spring, watch the women's pages for daily wire stories this week.

LONG BEACH 12, CALIF., SUNDAY, JAN. 6, 1962 SECTION W

GLAMOUR GOES FULL-LENGTH in this simple ball gown presented by Toni Carnegie, president of house of Hattie Carnegie. Fashioned in shades of pink-on-pink Velours de Coupe, skirt is gently shaped, molded to small waistline. Brief jacket is lined with emerald satin.

NEW FOR SPRING... wrist length overblouse dress by Hannah Troy, attractive head of her own successful New York house. Also newsworthy: tiny sleeves that puff; neckline that scoops.

FROM THE DRAWING BOARD of talented Alice Berman, stylist for House of Branell, comes another costume (her trademark) fashioned of silk chiffon and wool . . . here in glowing coral. Jeweled embroidery on lacy wool jacket matches sparkle of dress bodice.

The Wild Waves Say . . .

By Iola Masterson • I, P-T Women's Editor

NOW IS the season for early to bed and early to rise nights once again, at long last. But wasn't it a dippy, doo-dle time while it lasted. Have a grand potpourri of year's end notes — all shapes and sizes of parties and events, to away we go.

Two big, bouncy, beautiful parties — the guest lists richly interlaced — sparked the weekend and both were largely Long Beach Yacht Club inspired. Outgoing Commodore Bill Hardestad and wife, Caroline, said thanks to board, committee chairmen and workers-at-large, who expended plenty of elbow grease during Bill's term, at a cocktail open house in their home.

About an even 100 were present including Helen and Jonah Jones, Sally and Kosta George, Helen and Harold Teeple, Dee and Don Horton, Marion and Stan Mathburn, Madge and Hal Halvorsen, Blanche and Phil Wiedrick, Jean and Keith Brockett, Eve and "Sal" Mope, Debbie and Bud Weinheimer, Conrad Lueke and Elizabeth Stewart.

SECOND OF the sparkle plenty dates was incoming LBYC Commodore Frank Mansury and Margaret's cocktail party Sunday. Gay and chatter-filled, it swept merrily through the hours from 3 until 8 p.m.—and then some.

In addition to many of those at the Hardestads', also spotted were "Willie" and Ed Bourne ("Willie" sporting a leg cast to heal a broken ankle which she expects to have to continue to "sport" until May), Rhea Pigott and Red Montgomery, Audrey and Don Helmer, June and Bob Dilday and Pauline Dilday plus the Burr Dildays, Joan and John Knight, Juanita and George Heinrich, Ann and Lloyd Greeno and La Nelle and Ray Fosholdt.

Well, old '62, you can't say you didn't have some rich moments in your waning hours!

NOTHING IN town topped the Junior League's Debutante Ball last Saturday for elegance and glamor — for pre-ball and post-ball festivities. The ball and the debs have been previously re-counted in print, but did you know about the grand wind-up—an after the ball is over gala at Dorothy and Lee Wiltse's home co-hosted by Virginia and Jerry Desmond and Marge and Edison Demler?

This tres gal affair couldn't start, of course, until about 1:30 a.m. and continued, Manhattan style, until about 5:30 in the morning when the last of the handsome, happy young people made their departure. A night to remember forever.

The post-ball party also honored members of the ball committee. The Wiltse's generous Park Estates home was "expanded" to even larger proportions by huge canopied section which extended into their garden.

A spattering of the adults present, having as much fun as the youngsters, were Betty and "Bix" Bixby, Jane and Jim Kresl, B.J. and Russ Green, Helene and Jack Brown, Vivian and Monty Yunker, Joan and Ed Losche, Liz and Don Wallace (Liz was ball chairman), Jean and Morrie Samuel and Jean and Jim Burdge.

TOPPING OFF THE holly-rays with a real splash were those couples who flew to Las Vegas Sunday morning — returned mid-day New Year's. And with the preceding item in mind, consider this — one of the couples consisted of Marge and Ed Demler who managed just two hours sleep before taking off!

With them were Georgia and Frende Combs, Mary and Fred Yeager and their daughter and son-in-law, Phyllis and Bob Prather and Fred's sister and brother-in-law from Philadelphia.

All had a wonderful time. Bumped into other Las Vegasers-at-New-Year's-having-a-while — Dorothy and Joe Mullarky and Jane and Larry Houts.

ONE MORE dab of deb data: Eleanor and George Kading, with their three sons, returned to the old home town from Chico for the night. They attended the ball (with their eldest son, Don), especially to be with old friends, Dolores and Herman Weissker, whose daughter, Sandra, was presented.

LEAST OF Cecile and Lloyd Perry's worries New Year's Eve was driving to their party. They were far out on the open seas aboard the S.S. President Wilson — and still are.

The Perrys sailed from San Francisco Saturday on that popular 42-day cruise of the Orient which will find them visiting such storied cities as Hong Kong, Yokohama, Tokyo, etc.

AT A PARTY that was mucho gusto, Frances and Len Crowley ushered in the New Year. Neighbors and close friends joined in the sprightly fun as did daughter, Judy's, younger set crowd.

There was dancing and talking and a midnight buffet for such as Lucy and Wilbur Thompson, Virginia and Franklin Waters, Helen and Joe Young, Annabelle and Lyle Wyatt to name a few.

THE SWING-ALONG New Year's round-up continues: Mildred and John Dorsey and Marge and Harry Jacobs co-hosted an especially warm and happy Eve family dinner party at the Dorsey's. Among friends joining the circle were Millie and John Magill, Mary Jane and Bill Durbin and Eleanor and Herb Carlson, with Eleanor providing just the right musical accompaniment for the night at the organ.

IT'S A small world department—or, you can so, TOO, find a needle in a haystack! These localities bumped into each other finding their way to Rose Bowl seats Tuesday. . . . Jean and Tenny Moore, Ruth and Harrison Moore, Dorothy and Jim Nagle and Juanita and Ed Stubbs (attending from current home in San Diego).

Other localities who sat in the dark to watch the finish of that spectacular game were Louise and Paul McKenzie Jr., Madalyn and John Christopher and families, and Marian and Bob Ritzer, with Skip and wife, Jeanette, (her first visit to either parade or game) as well as Judy.

DELIGHTFUL holiday open house, I am told, was Posie and Bill Boyd's egg nog and champagne punch affair. A few of those present were Bonnie and Hank Ridder (he just back from Mexico and she just back from New York—where he had also been prior to the Mexican fishing trip), Jackie and Harvey Waggoner, Evelyn and Ken Hemphill, Wally and Betty Arntzen and Laura and Ed Killingsworth, Sue and John McDonald and ever so many more.

THE SMITH clan plus friends were invited by Hazel and Gerald Smith to view the Rose Parade. In color at their home. Good cook Hazel thought nothing of whipping up breakfast, including pancakes, for 20. Also entertaining at a Rose Parade brunch were Elsie and Reese Hansen.

Michael Dutcher attended the bridegroom as best man. Ushers were Robert Ruby, Dominic Cavaliere, Chris and Chuck Tatreau and John McNaughton.

A reception followed the wedding at the home of the parents of the bride. A feature of the decorations was a large white flocked Christmas tree decorated with white bells and blue satin baubles.

THE BRIDE'S grandparents are Mrs. Joseph Bechler and the late Mr. Bechler, founder of Mountain View Dairies, Inc. Her maternal grandparents are Mrs. Charles E. Wells of Shawnee, Okla., and the late Mr. Wells.

tin and Cheryl Thurston, bridesmaids. The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Harkins, Glendale, asked Carl Lockwood to serve as best man. Ushers were Dick Thompson, Phil Vango, Ed Schildbrock and Fred Harris.

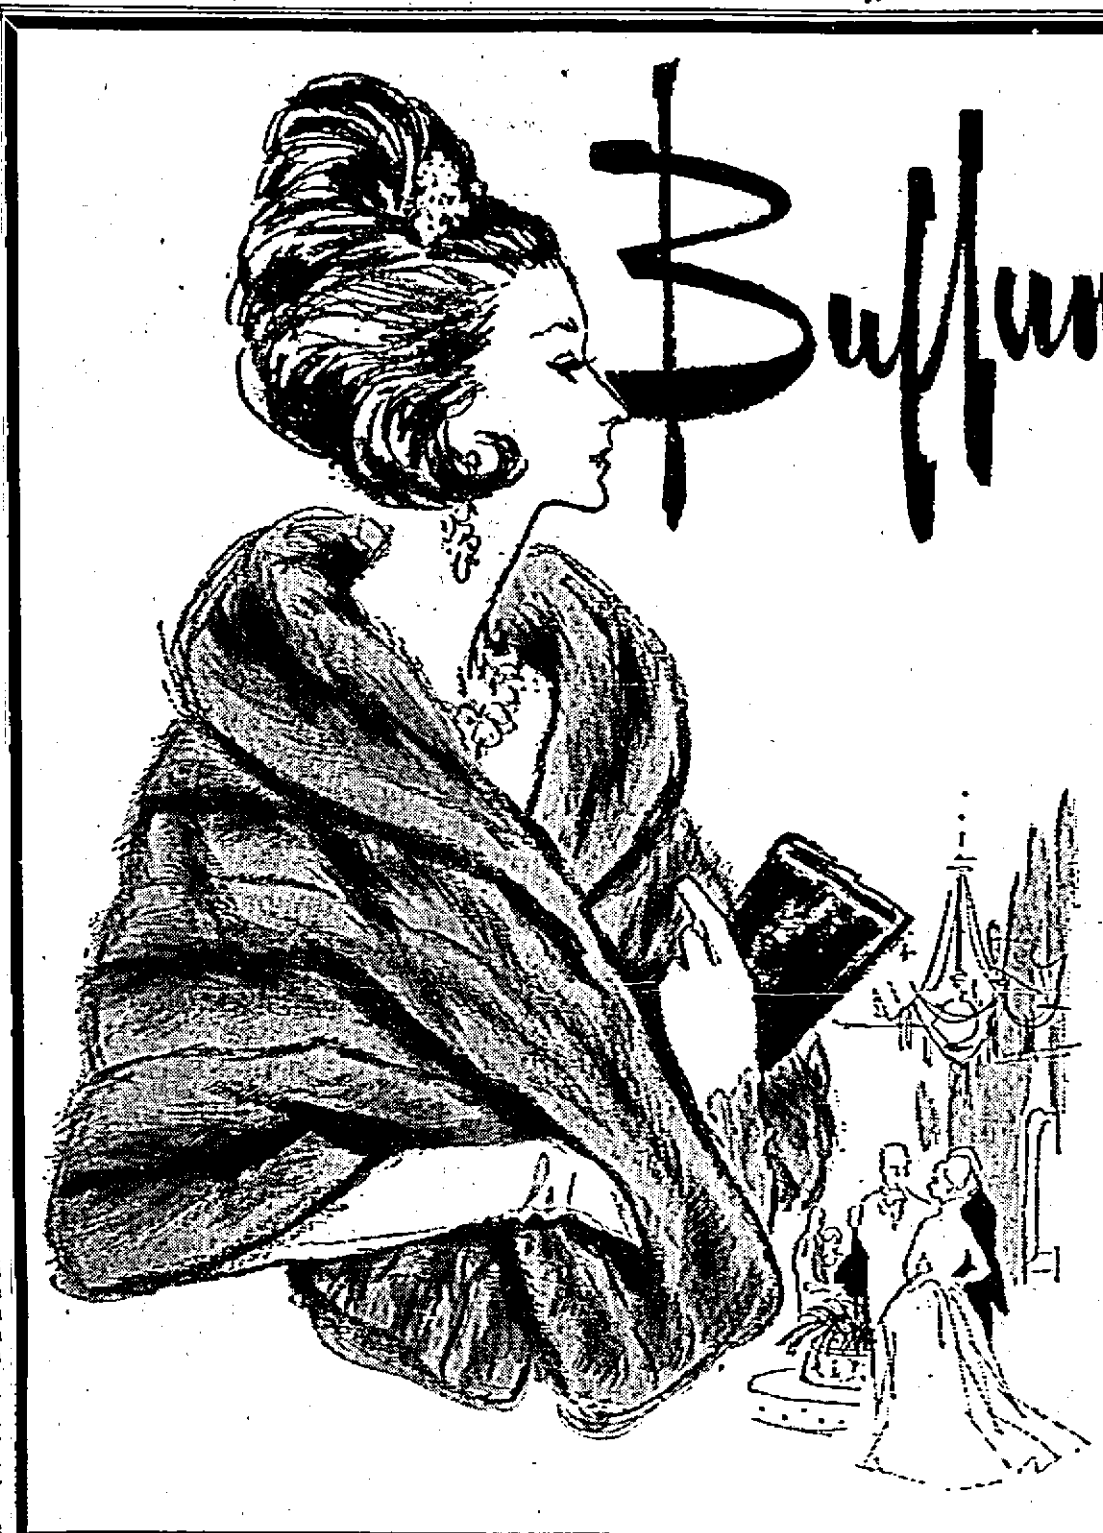

A RECEPTION followed at the church, with family and close friends bidden to a later party at the bride's parents' home.

The newlyweds are at home in Santa Barbara where the bride is a junior and her husband a senior at UC, Santa Barbara. She received early schooling at Poly.

He studied under Virgil Fox, Searle Wright and the late Hugh Porter.

'Hiroshima' Shown Free at Museum

"Hiroshima, Mon Amour" will be shown Thursday at 3 and 8 p.m. at Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd.

The 83-minute production, offered free on the museum's film series, has been acclaimed as a masterpiece of the New Wave of Gallic filmmakers.

In France it has been called a thousand films in one: an atomic horror movie, a pacifist tract, a Proustian exercise in recollection, a radioactive Romeo and Juliet.

The film is presented under sponsorship of the City of Long Beach. No tickets or reservations are necessary. Doors open at 7:30 p.m. for the evening showing.

Portrait of a portrait

William E. Heron calls this oil "The Last Sitting" because, he says, the "Mona Lisa" was the last painting for which model sat before her death. It also depicts Leonardo da Vinci putting last touches on his famed portrait.

'Mona Lisa' Inspires Painter

In a formal ceremony, attended by President Kennedy, "Mona Lisa" by Leonardo da Vinci will be unveiled to Americans Tuesday evening at the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C.

Even before then, Long Beach viewers, beginning Monday, may see "The Last Sitting" by William E. Heron at the B-Q Gallery, 3920 E. Fourth St. The work is valued at $1,500.

Inspired by the famous portrait, Heron's large canvas—32 by 44 inches—shows da Vinci putting finishing touches on his painting as the model for Mona Lisa poses in his studio. In the background are other da Vinci studies: St. John the Baptist and the angel of the Madonna of the Rocks.

Heron, 5 feet 4, with thick silver hair and twinkling hazel eyes, looks like a merry Santa Claus who has just slipped out of his red costume and donned a business suit.

BORN IN Newcastle-on-Tyne, England, at the edge of the border of Scotland, he speaks with a rich Scottish burr that has earned him the nickname "Scotty." "I've never lost me tongue," he says proudly. "You need a 'Scotty' dictionary to understand him."

adds his wife, Geneva, an artist in her own right and art teacher in Long Beach City College's General Adult Division.

"For instance, he'll combine enchanting and enhancing into a lovely new word, enhancing."

Heron studied art at Armstrong College in his native city and at Glasgow School of Art in Scotland.

AS A YOUNG man he "took a chance" and came to this country, where he worked for 25 years as a tool designer for General Motors in Detroit before coming to Long Beach in 1959.

Art has been a lifelong interest. He has exhibited at Detroit Institute of Art, Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, the National Art Festival in Provincetown, Mass., at the Arts and Letters Exhibition at the University of Michigan, the Scarab Club of Detroit and many places in England. His "Samson in Chains" was awarded first prize in Michigan by Paramount Pictures in a contest in connection with the movie, "Samson and Delilah."

AMONG HIS other paintings are The Deluge, Jonah, Resurrection, Third Day of Creation, The Foundry, Gates of Gaza and numerous landscapes, seascapes and many portraits.

Heron also has turned his creative mind to inventions. Among his most successful are a pipe, a pipe bit and a self-expanding pipe reamer. He does not smoke.

His custom-made Heron tubes have enticed fish in this country and Canada and he is working out another idea which he is not ready to discuss.

Why did he come to this city?

"Well, now," he explains, "Long Beach is the art center of the future!"

Prints on View at Library

By ELISE EMERY Arts Page Editor

Fanciers of prints, and art bargain hunters will find much to their liking at the California Printmakers Society show which will be on view at the Long Beach Public Library through Jan. 26.

This is the 17th annual exhibit by top-flight artists—members who make up the society.

Prints—signed, numbered and of limited issue—may be purchased from the exhibit at prices ranging from $5 to $50.

Membership in the society is open, enabling interested persons to support the group and to receive an annual membership gift print.

This year's membership print is "Suwanee River," by Polly Knipp Hill. The library's membership print will become part of its circulating art collection.

Although new names are added each year, many persons look forward to familiar exhibitors as old friends, notes Mrs. Chizuru Boyea, who arranged the show.

LONG BEACH MUSEUM of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd., opens two exhibits today with a public reception from 2 to 4 p.m.

The shows are an expanded Art Rental display and selections from the Museum Collection featuring acquisitions from Dr. Ludwig Uri.

The 20 works from the Uri collection include serigraphs, lithographs, drawings, woodcuts and oil paintings by Howard Bradford, Hans Erni, Keith Finch, Ernest Freed, Robert Hansen, Mervin Jules, Roger Kuntz, Jan Lutz, Douglas McClellan, John McLaughlin, Arnold Mesches, Hadaka Yoshida and Jack Zajac.

This display will continue through Jan. 20.

Among artists represented in the Art Rental exhibit are Bettina Brendel, Orval Dillingham, Grace Dimmick, Milton Gershgorin, Frederick Hammersley, Jack Hooper, Ernest Lacy, Nels Nelson and Fran Soldini. The show will run through Jan. 27.

MOSAICIST and painter Dale Owens will judge the fourth annual Cash Award Mosaic Show at Seal Beach Art Center, Ocean and Main, which opens Saturday at 1 p.m.

Presentation of awards will be made at 2 p.m., with Owens explaining the selections in his conversational lecture.

The Artists League of Seal Beach sponsors this exhibit, largest of its kind in the United States. There is a nominal admission fee.

Mrs. Pat Jones, 632 Sea Breeze Drive, Seal Beach, will supply additional information.

LONG BEACH ART Association's first exhibit of 1963 opens today with a reception from 2 to 5 p.m. at the gallery, 800 E. Ocean Blvd.

In addition to oil paintings, the show will feature water colors and pottery by Jo Ann Loper, young art scholarship winner and student at Long Beach State College.

Norman Haskell, Lakewood High School art teacher, selected paintings for the exhibit and named as most outstanding a small oil by Mary Lehman, "Quita Harbor" in cool blues. Second outstanding is a grayed study, by Julie Polousky, "Cancion Triste."

PAINTINGS by Geoffrey Holt are being exhibited through February at the YWCA, Sixth Street and Pacific Avenue.

His subjects include seascapes, European and Western scenes.

MAJOR & MINOR NOTES

Musical Artists Face Dilemma

By RACHEL MORTON L. P. T. Music Critic

I talked with a man the other day and learned some astonishing things. John Ayre is an Englishman although he has lived in Southern California for the past 14 years. His two children go to the Long Beach elementary schools and both play in the school orchestra. The 12-year-old girl is a cellist and the 8-year-old girl a violinist.

These are some of the astonishing facts I learned. Ayre was born near Manchester, England, and at 9 years of age he played his first piano recital. When he was 16 he received a scholarship to the Manchester College of Music. After he graduated at 18 as a pianist he won a gold medal as a French horn player, as well.

Good French horn players are very rare, as it is the most difficult of all the instruments to play, so he settled on the French horn as his future instrument. At the Eastbourne Music Festival in 1937 he played principal horn with the orchestra under Felix Weingartner. Then came the war. He spent seven years in the Signal Corps and although he was in the front line during the invasion, he managed to squeeze in eight months of study at the Brussels Conservatory in Belgium. During this time he played French horn with the Signal Corps Orchestra which boasted some of the finest instrumentalists in England and on one program he not only played a French horn solo, but Beethoven's Concerto No. 3 for piano and orchestra.

Ayre's reputation as a French horn player was well-known in England so that when the armistice came, he was discharged from the army on a Friday and on Saturday night he was in the first chair of the Halle Orchestra as a French horn player. For three years he played under Beecham and Sir John Barbirolli with the Halle Orchestra and later with the London Symphony Orchestra in the same capacity.

ANOTHER astonishing surprise came when he played for me, on a tape recorder, a recording of a French horn trio, all parts being played by himself and re-recorded. The selection was written by Bach for piano, but Ayre had arranged it for French horn.

But this is the most astonishing fact of all: There seems to be no place in this area for him in our orchestras despite his distinguished background. What can be the reason for this? This expert musician has played under such conductors as Eric Coates, Joseph Krips, Kostalenez, Charles Munch, Vaughn Williams, Sir Malcolm Sargent and many others. And yet, his French horn remains locked in its case!

JOHN AYRE maintains that an orchestra should be made up of professional players only, not only for excellence in performance, but as a goal to set for young, talented musicians who want to earn a living in their profession. There are no amateur players in the large orchestras in England, Ayre informed me, and no one in such orchestras plays for nothing. Amateurs get their experience in smaller groups, and when they are ready, they are accepted in a professional capacity with a stipulated salary and a contract. Of course, in our own large city orchestras there are only professional, paid players.

In England, as in Europe, symphony orchestras and opera are subsidized by the government. That is the real solution.

Thank You for a 'Gift of Song!'

When Long Beach Symphony Association presented the opera, "The Gift of Song," Dec. 15 at Long Beach City College auditorium, its purpose was to give the community—and especially young people—a holiday musical present.

How well it succeeded was shown by a sheaf of letters, carefully and neatly written, sent to the symphony manager, Mrs. John O. MacDonald, to be forwarded to the composer, Mary Elizabeth Caldwell.

Writers were members of Miss Patti Halpers fifth grade class at Kettering Elementary School.

Wrote Jane Loomis: "We enjoyed your opera very much. 33 people in our class went to your opera. They all thought it was just wonderful. Our teacher, Miss Halper enjoyed it the most to me. We would like to see it next year too if it is showing. I don't know how we can show our gratitude for showing all of us the wonderful opera."

THE YOUNGSTERS were unanimous in wishing to see the production again. Many spoke appreciatively of the costumes, sets and music.

Said Gary Spencer: "I have seen your opera. It was very well done also. I enjoyed it because of the singing, the costumes and the music. The background was also beautiful."

"A Gift of Song is the best opera I have ever seen or heard. It was my first also."

A number of other students noted that this was their first opera, but Robin Gasper wrote with more experience: "Your opera was the fourth opera I have seen this year. I think it is the best of all. The opera had a standing ovation."

ELLYN KIELB also was impressed with the opera's reception:

"I am writing you this letter to tell you how much I enjoyed the opera that you wrote, 'The Gift of Song.' It was excellent. It may interest you to know it got a standing ovation and 4 curtain calls."

Wrote Mark Zippert: "Most all of our class went to your opera. It was the first opera I have ever seen. I liked it very much and know everybody else liked it very much to. Our teacher came with us. A lot of people stood up and gave a standing ovation. I would have stood up if I knew what it was before."

MARK STUART may be a future member of Long Beach Symphony Orchestra, if wishes come true: "The music you were playing was beautiful. The song 'Silent Night' sounded real good. I wish I was in the Symphony."

Wrote Thomas Pickert: "As I have just come to this country from Germany, I especially enjoyed your opera. 'Almost everybody in our class was watching the opera. Thank you again, we all appreciated this opportunity.'"

JIMMY PATTON graciously expressed his appreciation and added a personal note about a problem that has beset many an opera-goer:

"My mother drove some of my classmates in our car. When we got there, we were parked on the wrong side of the college. It took a little time, but we got there in time."

Mark Murufas wanted to know more about the production: "It was the first opera I have ever seen. The characters were the best group of singers I have heard. My teacher and classmates were wondering who these singers were. Could you tell us?"

Karen Sargent asked: "Where did you get the costumes? I would like to know. I hope you will show it next year."

A PARAGRAPH in Sherrie Mann's letter read: "I wish more people wrote operas for children, but since they don't maybe you'll put yours on in Long Beach next year again."

In her covering letter, Miss Halper summed it up: "Despite the grammatical errors and oft amusing phraseology, I felt that these letters are proof of the effect that music has upon younger children. Exposing the children to such a marvelous piece of work, I know, will enhance their understanding and appreciation for other classical works of art. I only wish you could know how sincere the children really are and how truly they enjoyed the performance."

STAR AT MAGNOLIA

Lyle and Paula Talbot, real life husband and wife, take opposite political sides in "The Best Man" playing weekends at Magnolia Theater, 2400 Magnolia Ave. Show runs through Jan. 13.

Anouilh's 'The Lark' at LBCC

Jean Anouilh's "The Lark" will be presented by Long Beach City College Liberal Arts Division drama students at 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday in the college auditorium, Harvey Way near Clark Ave. Tickets will be available at the box office both nights.

Marlene Silverstein has the leading role of Joan of Arc, named "the lark" because of the soaring spirit she inspired in her countrymen. Anouilh's two-act drama focuses upon the trial of Joan for treason and witchcraft after she had led the nation to victory.

Other major parts are taken by Fred Stokes as the Inquisitor, Gary Austin as the ineffectual Dauphin, Tim Felix as Bandicourt and Joseph Matarazzo as Bishop Gauchon, one of the few church authorities sympathetic to Joan. In important supporting roles are Helene Jones, Randi Cohen, Lara Gordon and Donna Needle.

Director is David M. Emmes, who made his debut at City College this fall with the highly successful production of Moliere's "The Miser." Technical director J. L. White has designed the non-conventional sets and lighting effects appropriate to Anouilh's fluid use of both time and space.

Limelinters Back

The Limelinters December appearance in the Southland, cancelled because of the trio's near-fatal plane crash in Provo, Utah, has been rescheduled for Jan. 19 at Santa Monica Civic Auditorium.

Women Painters in Palos Verdes Exhibit

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

"24 Women Painters of the Southland," an invitational show, opens today at the Palos Verdes Community Arts Association. The gallery at 2400 Via Campestina, open 2 to 5 p.m. daily and to 5 p.m. Sunday, will have this exhibit until Jan. 31.

While this is not an entirely brilliant show, there are proportionately more instances of excellence here than, say, women represented in a large juried show, women in any medical group, or women holding public office.

THE GENERAL character of the show is that of tremendous sensitivity to color and rhythmic relationships. The works are largely decorative and "easy-to-live-with." There is no dearth of craftsmanship, an element not requiring total commitment.

Among those works which I feel would stand up to the best being produced now in the Southland, regardless of the sex of the artist, is Mignon Gallup's "San Capland," a highly complex collage. The basic cruciform structure done in gold, grays, and blue profits from a bold use of black line.

SHIMMERING COLOR and a knowing suggestion of forms and figures contribute to the joy of Aimee Bourdiou's "Sunny Beach." Mabel Alvarez's "The Village," is another personal and highly original statement. A scheme of hot yellows and pinks flow through abstracted geometric units nestled against a stark Latin hillside.

"Totem" by Louise Freeman is a strange powerful figure, mysterious and threatening. Florence Cunningham's "Vigil" expresses a timeless and placeless feminine occupation.

BLACK, WHITE, and shades of gray in Arta Corrigan's "Procession" in textures of lace, along with conventional graphic techniques, individualize the shapes of seven women. Ruth Elliot's mixed media in "Voice of the Storm" match the astonishing and fine detail of Dubuffet's resist techniques.

Planned for the second Saturday of each month, the series will consist of one award-winning feature picture and one or more unusual experimental shorts on each program.

HEADLINING the first program will be the French film, "Game of Love," an adaptation of Collette's novel of awakening adolescent love. Set against the beauty of the Brittany seacoast, the wistful drama poignantly reveals the pleasure and pain of coming of age.

Larry Jordan's unique short, "3", employs exceptional photography which blends images together in an unusual psycho-drama.

She was recipient of a jeweled "M" at Millikan. Her fiancé is district director of water safety and first aid for the Red Cross.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD: My girl came up with some sort of an arrangement that she wants to date other boys and me, too. She started working about three weeks ago and she's acted funny ever since.

She works the night shift. We call each other two or three times a day. She told me today we have been neglecting our friends and ourselves, too. She wants me to call the same as usual, but I'm about to go crazy. We can only see each other on week ends and then she says she's too tired.

I've asked her to marry me and she keeps saying, "Yes, someday." I worship the ground she walks on, but I don't know if I can believe her. RAYMOND

DEAR RAYMOND: I don't know if she can believe herself, right now. She's under a strain on the new job and you're not quite as welcome as before. She doesn't want to hurt you. But she hasn't cut you out.

Give her time, Raymond, to adjust to a working day and the working men, and in time I think she'll want more than rest on week ends. —M. M.

Dear Molly Mayfield

Help him master the thirst. —M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD: "Hidden" letter (which appeared recently) describing her life as the "other woman" is something every man should read. It should open their eyes to why single girls can't see themselves in the "other woman's" shoes.

It is not unusual to hear that the "wife gets all the little knickknacks" while the "other woman" gets the promises (never kept).

Almost every day every single girl is subjected to the poor, misunderstood husband who simply can't fathom why the girl wants him to be proud to introduce her.

As she sits alone on all the important days of the year, she should be content knowing she has received the least he has to give—himself. —ENLIGHTENED

Shift in Affection

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD: What do you do with a man who curses you in front of your three daughters? He goes wild when he drinks. But when he isn't drinking he is a good person.

Our girls are afraid of him. He has ruined my life and now he's ruining the girls' lives, too. I have put up with him for 12 years because I love him. But I could write a book on how he is turning love into fear. I am as afraid of him as of a cobra. —THE SLAVE

DEAR SLAVE: His trouble comes bottled. Instead of writing that book, tell him he can't have you both. Either he takes the help available today to get rid of the bottle or you'll take the help available today to get rid of him.

It won't be easy. It will take all the sympathetic and realistic love you can manage, from A.A. to E.Z. But manage it you must.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD: An August wedding will unite Betty Davis and Frank Addleman, according to an announcement from her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Davis of Lakewood.

Miss Davis was graduated from Polytechnic High School where she was named homecoming queen in 1959, and later completed schooling in dental assisting at LBCC. She is a member of American Dental Assistants Association.

Her fiancé, son of former Southland residents, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Addleman, Honolulu, Hawaii, attended El Camino Junior College and is working on a master's degree at LBCC where he was named "outstanding athlete of the year."

Felts-Hawthorne
Mr. and Mrs. Daniel R. Felts announced engagement of their daughter, Danette, to Bill J. Hawthorne, son of Mrs. Ann Hawthorne, Long Beach, at a recent party.

A graduate of Jordan High School, the bride later attended LBCC where she received a Five-Jewel pin and the Viking Award. She is a senior at San Francisco State College.

Her fiancé was graduated from Poly High School and LBCC where he was a member of Tong. He will earn his doctorate in pharmacy from USC in June, 1964.

They plan an August wedding.

Curtain Care
Plastic shower curtains can be washed in the automatic washer and dried in a few minutes in a gas clothes dryer at the de-wrinkle setting, says the Gas Appliance Manufacturer Association.

to make his slam. Four heart tricks would be a cinch if West held the queen and if Ira played him for it. East actually held four hearts to the queen, but Ira worked out a winning play against that annoyance. He played the deuce of diamonds on the opening lead. When East played the eight Ira decided that West had probably opened fourth best of a five card suit. Then Ira cashed four spades. East discarded two clubs and Ira one club. Now West had shown up with four spades so he was likely to be short in hearts.

IRA'S NEXT assumption was that East held five or six clubs. In that case a submarine play was indicated. Ira started by leading the jack of hearts from dummy and letting it ride. His next play from dummy was the ten of clubs. East put up the queen and led a second diamond. Ira won that trick, led a club to dummy's ace and continued with a third diamond. East had to hang on to the king of clubs and the only way to do that was to throw away a heart, whereupon Ira had his four heart tricks and slam.

SEND ART TO VALPARAISO

C of C Women's Group Does Sister Act

WOMEN'S DIVISION, Long Beach Chamber of Commerce, art committee members Athena Hall (left), chairman, and Maria Louisa Evans show some of artwork by local public school students being sent to Long Beach's sister city, Valparaiso, Chile, for exchange exhibit. Below, closeups of drawings.

SCHOOL SCENE by Diane Corley, student at Rogers Junior High School.

Anybody knows it takes a miss (or Mrs.) to be a good sis.

That's why art committee members of the Women's Division, Long Beach Chamber of Commerce, feel they can be influential in helping cement family relations with Long Beach's sister city, Valparaiso, Chile.

Their first project: an exchange of children's art.

The exhibit, made up of 30-some works of art by Long Beach school children, is now packaged and ready for shipment, according to Mrs. Athena Hall, art committee chairman.

SELECTIONS include water colors, collages, crayons and a couple of oils, screened from last spring's all-city school exhibit at Long Beach State College.

With an assist from Ruth Burdick, retired art teacher who taught at Wilson High School, Mrs. Hall selected the exhibit numbers.

They represent artistic efforts from grades five through twelve, she said.

Isobel Connor, art director for the Long Beach Unified School District, had charge of packaging the classroom-originated art.

Robert H. Metzger, Harbor Department public relations director, is handling shipping. "The crated art will go out on the first Westfall-Larsen ship going to South America," he said.

No word has been received from the Chilean seaport, local officials said, about when reciprocal exhibits will be sent for display here.

A ROSE by Lakewood student Linda Fairman.

SETTING SAIL for Valparaiso is painting by Craig Matheson of Naples.

A Budding Cook Is 'Bud' Noted Lecturer Is Scheduled to Talk

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
L.P.T. Food Editor

His profession certainly hasn't gotten him down. In fact, one of his most outstanding characteristics is his waggish wit. He has been the recipient of the Kiwanis El Toro award (for throwing the bull). Today's Chef of the Week, Jesse S. (Bud) Holton, Jr. is the "son" in Holton & Son

Jesse S. (Bud) Holton

Mortuary. Founded in 1910 at 142 Locust Ave., it has been at its present site, 6th & Locust, since 1913.

A native of Long Beach, Bud, we hasten to tell you, was not around at the time the mortuary was founded. After leaving his mark at the Robert Louis Stevenson, George Washington and Franklin Junior High Schools, he graduated from Poly High before attending City College for one year. He then entered Chapman College and graduated with a B. A. degree. While at Poly High he managed the baseball team.

In 1934, Holton joined the Army and spent the next three years in Germany with the Military Police. In '46 he returned to the U.S. and enrolled at the California College of Mortuary Science in Los Angeles.

BEFORE he could sink his roots too deeply into the business, however, the Army again took charge, and for the next year and a half, he fought the battle of Korea with the Military Police in San Francisco. Somewhere among the above paragraphs, the former Joyce Horton of Long Beach, had, by the change of one letter in her name, become Mrs. Holton. They have three children, daughters Verdee and Sharon, 14 and 12 respectively, and son, David, six.

A Kiwanian, Holton was president of the club in 1959, and a member of its bowling team. He's on the board of directors of the CVO, and serves on the committee on management for the Armed Services YMCA. A Mason, he belongs to the Searchlight Lodge. THE ENTIRE family is active in the East Side Christian Church, and he presently is superintendent of the Sunday School.

Real great at organizing, the recent Kiwanian Tri-State District Conference held here, and which he planned and executed, was a topper of a success.

But probably Holton's most outstanding feat is the ground work he has laid for a really worthwhile organization, The Long Beach Historical Society. He was its first president.

Our "chef" admits to having a yen for short-order cooking, but also admits to resorting to a package mix every now and then. He enjoys playing the gracious host—and in that realm, he's never been known to let a guest arrive without having to maneuver a freshly hosed side walk. It's a fetish with him.

His recipe today is for Pork Chops and Rice Mexicana which he prepares from scratch.

PORK CHOPS AND RICE MEXICANA

Says Bud—"If you like Spanish rice and pork chops, you'll enjoy this two-in-one casserole." We agree!

- 4 pork chops
- 1 large onion, chopped
- 1 green pepper, chopped
- 1 clove garlic, chopped
- 2 cups raw rice
- 1 cup canned or stewed fresh tomatoes
- 1 cup boiling water or beef stock
- 2 tbsps. cooking oil
- 1 tbsps. chili powder
- 1 bay leaf
- Salt and pepper to taste

Brown chops on both sides in the oil in a hot skillet; remove chops to a casserole. Sauté onion, green pepper and garlic in the drippings until lightly browned. (If you like less garlic, use garlic salt.) Add rice and sauté until golden brown, then add remaining ingredients and simmer for a minute. Pour mixture over the chops, cover and bake in a moderately hot oven (375) for 50 minutes to 1 hour. Remove cover during last five minutes. Serves 4.

P.S. to Bud: Have you forgotten about the Coleman Lantern you loaned to a certain newspaper man who combs the beaches?

Mrs. Lorita Baker Valley, no stranger to the lecture platforms of Long Beach, will return here Jan. 16 to discuss world affairs and current literature.

This appearance will be one of her first in the Southland after spending December in Washington covering the political scene with research and interviews, and in New York viewing plays and analyzing literary trends through contact with publishers and authors.

Absent for some time from the Long Beach circuit, she has been appearing regularly in San Francisco, Los Angeles and San Diego.

MRS. VALLEY will be presented under sponsorship of St. Anne's Guild of St. Luke's Episcopal Church, Seventh Street and Atlantic Avenue. The guild will be hostess at a coffee hour from 1 to 2 p.m. with the lecture slated to begin at 2 p.m.

The public is invited to

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN Stay As Square As You Are

DEAR ABBY: I am writing this on my 17th birthday. My date just brought me home in a huff, telling me how "immature" I am because I wouldn't make out with him. This was our first date and I thought a lot of him. I have the reputation for being cold, stuck-up and even square. But I won't lower my standards just to get dates. I have no trouble getting the first date, but when I don't make out right away they don't call me again. Am I wrong? Maybe I am immature.—SEVENTEEN AND SAD.

DEAR SEVENTEEN: You are mature—the BOYS are immature! Keep your standards high, honey. You might be sad at the moment, but you'll be happier in the long run. And mature young men still appreciate quality.

DEAR ABBY: For six years I went with a girl we will call DOLL. I wanted to marry her but she kept putting me off. I had been drinking all this time but with the help of the Lord I quit drinking. I started going with another girl we will call BABY. She loves me and I love her, but not like DOLL. In the meantime, DOLL got herself a new boy friend who drinks more than I did. She keeps saying she is going to break up with him and go back with me but she is sure taking her sweet time. I told DOLL I would give her 30 days to make up her mind and if she didn't marry me I'd marry BABY. Is 30 days long enough?—JERRY.

DEAR JERRY: A man who would just as soon marry one girl as another is not ready for marriage.

There are lots of DOLLS and BABYS around. Stay single until you are sure which one you want. You might run into a SWEETIE.

DEAR ABBY: When we eat out my husband gobbles down his food and starts in on the person's plate nearest to him. This is very embarrassing to me. We frequently entertain in restaurants. Most always it is my plate he eats off of. But he thinks nothing of putting his fork into someone else's food if he sees something they haven't gotten around to eating yet. My husband is usually the host, but it embarrasses me to death. How can I get him to stop it without making him feel like a little boy?—RED-FACED.

DEAR RED-FACED: A man who behaves like a little boy has to be handled like one occasionally. Get him alone and TELL him how childish his ill-mannered habit makes him appear. There's no reason to sit in red-faced silence over a matter so easily remedied as this.

DEAR ABBY: Can any of your Italian readers help me? I went to an Italian movie and the word "chow" was used quite a bit at the end of telephone conversations and when people were departing from each other. Several Italian girls have told me it meant "good-bye," but one of my Italian co-workers said it was a low-brow slang expression which was not considered "nice" in Italian. Just what does "chow" mean? And is it Italian?—BOSTON BELLE.

DEAR BELLE: "Chow" is the familiar "good-bye" in Italian. And although it is a slang expression it is used by Italians—high-born and low!

FOR SWIM TIME, INDOOR POOL COVER HOISTS TO CEILING

Dance, Swim? Raise, Lower Cover of Pool

By VERN ANTHONY
Southland Progress Editor

First, they built a large oval swimming pool, then an ingenious movable cover—believed to be the first of its type; then they built a luxurious house around the pool.

That was the sequence for an unusual residence atop Rolling Hills, overlooking both the Catalina Channel on the south and sprawling Los Angeles to the north.

Dominating feature of this home is the fact that the pool cover can be raised to the ceiling which the 34x17-foot plunge is in use, or lowered to blend in with the flooring of the 75x30-foot family room.

★ ★ ★

AVID SWIMMERS, the owners wanted an indoor pool with their new home, designed by the firm of Paul L. Williamson and Merritt E. Morris Jr., AIA, of Long Beach.

The pool cover weighs two tons and is eight inches thick.

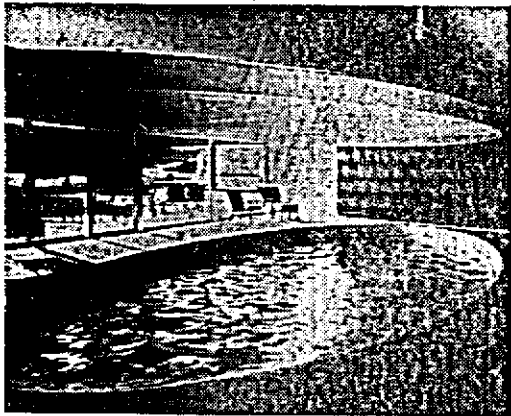

It is made of lumber ribs with marine plywood on the top and bottom, covered with a thousand pounds of fiberglass. It was built by the Harbor Boat Co., and was hauled up the hills to home-site at night under police escort.

THE COVER is raised and lowered by four electric motor-driven chain hoists and has special safety devices.

Lowered, it transforms the large room into space for dancing, other entertainment of family use.

Big Expansion Begun by Los Alamitos Plant

By BOB GEIVET

LOS ALAMITOS—A space-age plant which began operations here a year ago, after outgrowing a Long Beach facility, outgrew its plant here and so will double its size.

Arrowhead Products, which makes pressurized suits for astronauts, aviators, missile fuel handlers, and chemical workers, along with assorted extruded parts and tubings for the aviation and space industries, broke ground Friday for its addition at 4411 Katella Ave.

THE CONCERN, one of nine divisions of Federal Mogul-Bower Bearings, Inc., and the only one in the space industry, will spend $1.27 million to keep up with its growth.

General Manager Walter T. Camp, who welcomed a long list of dignitaries to the ceremony, recalled that the plant started here with 68,000 square feet of floor space, then went to 120,000 square feet within six months.

The new addition, to be ready next April, will more than double the capacity of the plant, Camp said.

Camp, general sales manager Arnold Dovey, Mayor James V. Bell, president Doss Jones of the Los Alamitos Chamber of Commerce, and various civic, fraternal and church leaders made up the earth-turning party.

Arrowhead's venture into space will be on an even broader scale in the near future, Camp disclosed.

Orange Co. Building Increases

Construction in Orange County maintained a high level in 1962, showing a gain of more than a million dollars and increase in number of permits issued, according to the Department of Building and Safety at Santa Ana.

Department figures do not include incorporated areas, which were many millions more.

Huntington Beach, for example, tallied a 1962 total of $66,661,327, according to Jack Cleveland, building director.

For 1962, the department issued 6,649 permits valued at $76,456,448, compared to 6,341 and $75,054,342, respectively, for the preceding year.

December '62 permits totaled 439 and valuation was $5,463,755. Single family dwellings led the list with 196 permits valued at $4,283,620. Twenty-four permits were issued for swimming pools; one for a fallout shelter; and 51 for home alterations.

April Opening Seen for La Mirada Clubhouse

LA MIRADA—The new La Mirada Golf Course Clubhouse built by the County Department of Parks and Recreation probably will open around April 1. It has been revealed by the office of Supervisor Frank Bonelli.

The facility is in the area of Luitwiler Avenue and Albano Road.

Designed by Merritt E. Morris Jr., A.I.A., of Long Beach, the clubhouse was built in two phases.

THE MAJOR work, let last May 31 to William P. Neil Co., Limited, of Los Angeles on a bid of $329,100, was accepted by county supervisors Aug. 28.

It was for a two-level clubhouse. The first floor includes the so-called professional area, golf pro shop, locker and shower rooms, coffee shop and golfmobile maintenance and storage room.

THE SECOND LEVEL includes the concession area, dining room, banquet hall, main lobby and lounge.

There is 16,400 square feet of floor space.

Contract was let Aug. 8 to Ray Wilson Co. of Los Angeles on a bid of $120,700 for the second phase to provide interior fixtures, alterations to meet needs of the concessionaire, and equipment for kitchen and dining areas. This work has been completed and is due for acceptance by the county supervisors in a week or two.

The county board, on Oct. 2, approved a 15-year lease with Mormeth, Inc., of Hollywood for the concession operations. Rental, on a sliding scale, would amount to $201,256 over a 15-year period. Contract for pro shop operations will be let later.

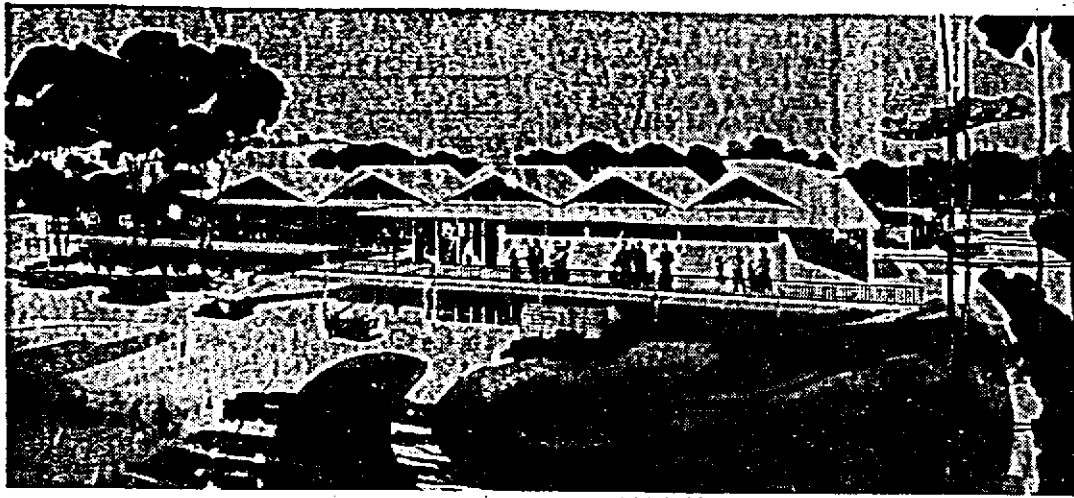

THE GOLF COURSE will be opened around April 1 after turf is established.

County engineers are preparing development of La Mirada County Regional Park, adjacent to the golf course. This will be up for bid in February, and work is due.

The pool is heated by radiant pipes running beneath it. A major construction achievement is control of moisture from the indoor body of water. This, Morris said, is done by a series of vents and blowers operated automatically by humidistats.

ONE LONG WALL of the room is of walnut treated to withstand dampness; the other is of glass. Upholstery of furniture is moisture proof.

A divider separates the more formal living and dining areas from the pool.

Sea breezes make airconditioning of the home unnecessary.

Area Officials Laud Home Fair Project at Westminster

WESTMINSTER — Civic leaders and business dignitaries throughout Orange County are voicing approval of Alco-Pacific Construction Company's new International Home Fair community at Bolsa Chica Road and Westminster Avenue.

Among those lauding the project are the following: Westminster Mayor Calvin G. Brack: "The character and strength of any city is dependent upon the type of residences constructed within it. For only in these can the educational, cultural and aesthetic value of any community be elevated. The citizens of Westminster are indeed fortunate that Alco-Pacific chose to locate its International Home Fair here."

GARDEN GROVE Mayor George P. Honold: "I wish to congratulate the Solomon family and Alco-Pacific for their foresight in locating the International Home Fair in West Orange County. We, the residents of the county, know we have the finest climate and business area in the entire United States. Even though this development is in one of our fine neighboring cities, the whole area will be improved both financially and culturally by its presence."

Huntington Beach Chamber of Commerce Manager William Gallienne: "The new Sol Vista International Home Fair subdivision will be ideally located to serve the great population now moving into Huntington Beach. This beautiful complex is adjacent to the $50 million Douglas Aircraft Missile and Space Center and joins Huntington Beach to the north. Living is ideal in this area because of its proximity to the Pacific Ocean."

HUNTINGTON BEACH Chamber of Commerce President Howard G. Stephens: "The International Home Fair is a welcome addition to Orange County. The City of Westminster is fortunate to have this exclusive community located within its boundaries. The many fine homes built within the city limits of Huntington Beach by Alco-Pacific are indicative, I am sure, of the type of dwelling that we will see in this new subdivision."

Fountain Valley Mayor Jim Kanno: "The dynamic growth of Orange County has been augmented by this new development. This has been accompanied not only in numbers, but in quality. The finest well planned project is always welcome to the community because it enhances the total value of the surrounding area."

WESTMINSTER Chamber of Commerce President Aubrey F. Holder: "It is indeed a great pleasure to have the International Home Fair as a part of the City of Westminster. A development of fine dwellings such as these is the culmination of faith in the growth, economy and future of one of the fastest growing cities in Southern California."

Huntington Beach Mayor Robert Lambert: "I'm sure that the International Home Fair will be subtly interwoven with an established residential community to give an air of custom permanence that offers the best social environment in which to raise a family. The public's love affair with quality merchandise will undoubtedly be a major factor in boosting sales of these exclusive homes."

FIVE MODEL HOMES are being built in the International Home Fair pavilion area, each reflecting a theme. There will be The Americas, The Scandia, The Oriental Garden, The South Seas and The Continental. Each model home will be lavishly furnished and decorated in the theme of the section of the world it depicts.

This exclusive Sol Vista residential community will have a school and park site. There will be 569 homes and they will be one and two story, contain three, four and five bedrooms, family rooms, two and three bathrooms.

The pavilion and model homes will be ready for viewing in a few weeks.

Sun Ray Harbor Estates Offer Low Priced 'Heartland Homes'

The normal human desire to be "right in the middle of things" has been fulfilled in the carefully planned Sun Ray Harbor Estates development. Featuring three-bedroom, two-bath homes from $18,900, Sun Ray Estates are billed as the "Heartland Homes" because of their central location to all civic, commercial and recreational facilities of the Los Angeles area.

Built with the same care and attention to detail as all other award winning Sun Ray Homes, these sites boast of a location unequalled by any other development. Only 1 1/2 miles from the Harbor Freeway, 3 miles from the Long Beach Freeway and 2 1/2 miles to the new San Diego Freeway, Sun Ray Harbor Estates residents are just minutes away from any facility they desire.

BANK OF AMERICA BRANCH TO LOOK LIKE THIS

New Bank Readied in Los Altos

Bank of America soon will open a new branch in Los Altos, at Bellflower Boulevard and Stearns Street, according to Gustav Tams, vice president.

The branch bank will occupy approximately 8,000 square feet and will be part of a shopping center soon to be developed.

The real estate firm of Herman Sims Co. negotiated a long-term lease with Bank of America, which culminated in a sale of the land to Wilshire-Ridgeley Realty, Inc. Sale of the land likewise was handled through the Sims Co. offices from the former owners, Hilp & Rhodes Realty Corporation.

The firm of Maxwell Starkman and Associates was hired to design the building, with construction by Jackson Bros., general contractors.

It is estimated that the bank will start installing fixtures on the premises about Feb. 1. Announcement of the bank's opening date will be made shortly thereafter.

THE BANK building faces Bellflower Boulevard. Directly south of it will be Bob's Big Boy restaurant; and Mobil Oil will occupy the northeast corner of the intersection.

The Sims Co. was the broker in negotiating the lease with the Hilp & Rhodes Realty Corporation to Unimart, which is building on approximately 12 acres of the same property.

Announcements soon will be made by the developers of the remaining seven acres, to be improved with two buildings.

Garden Park Estates Opening Another Unit

A GARDEN PARK ESTATE

Indicative of the continuing growth of Garden Park Estates, a walled "city-within-a-city," is the newly opened unit of architect-designed one and two-story luxury homes in this popular community at Knott Avenue and Garden Grove Boulevard. Here is a view in one model.

Underscoring the continuing development of Garden Park Estates as a completely planned "city-within-a-city" is the opening of another new unit of one and two-story executive-type residences in this walled community at Knott Ave. and Garden Grove Blvd., officials of the community pointed out.

1962 was marked by a great deal of progress, the spokesman said. The population shot way past the 3500 mark and new families are moving in each day. October saw the opening of the Garden Park Elementary School at Stanford and Holder, and shortly after, construction was begun on a new high school within the community's walls. New signal lights were officially "oked" for Knott Ave. and Garden Grove Blvd., and they will soon be in operation.

Another "high spot" of the year came when the handsome two-story luxury homes won a highly coveted, competitive award.

Rapid expansion of the Garden Grove and San Diego Freeways and the increasing efficiency of the interlocking connections with all of the vast Freeway complex is bringing this community closer to "everywhere" in the Southland. Major business and industrial centers as well as recreational areas are within a commuting time from Garden Park Estates.

NOTES OF BUSINESS

L.B. Leaders Feel Good Year Is Ahead

By KEN CHILCOTE

A strong note of confidence, voiced by Long Beach business leaders as they enter the new year.

While there is some note of caution in their predictions, all agree that gains of from 4 to 10 per cent should be made in 1963 business.

In brief, they agree that business will be good for the good businessman. They realize that on the vast competitive market the alert businessman can capture his share of gains through strong promotions and good advertising.

A GOOD YEAR for downtown Long Beach retail stores is seen by Joe Shuff, manager of Walker's Department Store and president of the Downtown Long Beach Associates. "Competition from the outlying areas has stabilized," says Shuff. "This, along with the new downtown parking facilities and current building, give downtown merchants every reason to look for a good year in 1963."

From Lakewood Center, Dan Campbell, manager of Bond's, reported an increase of 7.4 per cent over the previous year and expressed high enthusiasm over sales for this year. He attributes the upward trend to good promotion and advertising.

Ray Carl of Carl's Furniture predicts a 5 to 10 per cent gain for the new year. "Stronger promotional activity on our part" was credited for the good increase in business for the year just ended.

"WITH ALL THIS new construction under way or planned here, I'm more optimistic about Long Beach's future than I have been in 10 years," said Roland E. Robbins, manager of the Long Beach main office of the Bank of America.

Cole's Markets thinks 1963 will be a highly competitive year in the food store business. "But by staying on our toes and meeting the rapidly changing merchandising techniques, we expect to have another good year."

"Aggressive sales methods for a consistently fine product" will see good business in 1963, predicts Mike Salta, youthful owner of Salta Pontiac.

WESTERN home builders predict a 4 per cent increase in housing starts this year with an even greater increase in the Long Beach area.

The continued influx of new families makes the housing market stronger here.

WESTERN AIR LINES reported a net profit, after taxes, of $4,587,000 or $3.21 per share for the 11 months ended Nov. 30.

This compares with a profit of $448,000 or 31 cents per share for the same period in 1961.

CHARLES S. CAMP of Long Beach has been promoted to assistant vice president of the Bank of America in the Los Angeles headquarters Timeplan administration for the automobile division. James W. Kinnear, sales manager for Texaco in Huntington Beach, has been named Los Angeles division sales head. He succeeds W. H. Peterson who was named special representative for Texaco's nine-state western area.

Huge Gain by Harvill

After a record-breaking year in which sales more than doubled any previous year, Harvill Corp. of Long Beach is expecting continued gains in 1963.

James W. Tutthill, president of the die casting concern, predicted 15 months ago that sales for the fiscal year ending Oct. 31, 1962, would reach $6,000,000. The firm's sales in 10 years had never exceeded $3,000,000 annually.

His expectations were exceeded with sales reaching $6,200,000. "Now," says Tutthill, "we are forecasting another big year with sales reaching $8,000,000." Most of the increase is expected to come from military subcontracts.

The company now occupies a new plant at 19201 Susan Road.

Gifts, Bonuses for Hodges Sales Staff

More than $18,000 in gifts and bonuses were given to the staff and sales associates of the Rex L. Hodges Realty Co. at their annual award banquet held at the Petroleum Club. The affair was in recognition of having achieved the 1962 goal of $20,000,000 in sales of used residential homes.

More than 200 associates and their guests attended the dinner dance party. One of the highlights was the award of silver plaques to the top nine sales associates whose sales volume for the first 11 months of 1962 exceeded one-half million dollars. Those receiving awards were: Walter Richman, Jack Saxon, Madalyn Ursano, Lucille Noonan, M. Ellington, Helen Williams, Bob Hendon, and Margie LaBranch.

The top sales award went to "Ric" Owen, who for the 10th year exceeded the $1,000,000 sales volume.

Bess Hodges, widow of the late Rex L. Hodges, was the honored guest.

INTERIOR SPACIOUSNESS

Handsome fireplace dramatizes this large living room in furnished model at Yorba Linda Park.

Yorba Linda Park Offers Big Variety of Stylings in Homes

Can't make up your mind whether time-honored traditional decor or up-and-coming atrium-patio styling is your meat in the new home you're about to buy? Wish you could study them side by side, the way you do a motor car. In the dealer's window? Well, you can.

Yorba Linda Park, picturesque residential community in the countryside town of Yorba Linda, gives buyers a closeup look of the designer's artistry in both types of home styling.

Floor plans are offered in three and four-bedroom stylings. Each home features a family/dining room, two or three baths and two showers. Set on pool-size lots in a smog-free, countryside location, the homes emphasize spaciousness and stylish decor. Highlights are artistic entry halls, decorative fireplaces with log lighters, and sliding glass doors leading to patios.

MEDALLION all-electric kitchens contain built-in range and double oven, overhead range hoods with blower and light, and automatic dishwasher.

The homes may be purchased at no down payment for veterans, except usual costs and impounds. Non-vets may buy with minimum down payment on 35-year FHA loans, the builders stated. Cal-vet and conventional terms also are provided. Complete purchase price is from $20,950.

IT WAS POINTED out that families needing immediate occupancy can be accommodated in Yorba Linda Park's original unit, in which several models are still available at prices ranging from $19,750.

Three models furnished by Carl's of Long Beach are on display. The development is just three miles from Auto-netics' Anaheim headquarters.

From the Long Beach area, Yorba Linda Park is reached by taking either freeway to Placentia Ave. Go north on Placentia to Palm Drive, right on Palm to Valencia Ave., left on Valencia to Yorba Linda Blvd., then right to McCormack Lane.

"GOSH, GRAMPS, ARE YOU EVER LUCKY!"

I'd rather visit you than go any place else in the world!" And you know something? He is lucky! For one thing, he lives a resort life on a modest retirement income. An avid golfer, he has 18 in before 10:30 most mornings, then it's a leisurely trip home via the Town Hall where he can always find somebody to swap stories with about his game. After lunch, he usually heads for the Arts & Crafts Center. Lately, he's been very big on leather-working (Has a beautiful purse almost finished for her birthday that's coming up). But, no matter where he goes, he has a spring in his step and a twinkle in his eye for Life's been really worth living since he came to this happy city. But Gramps is no exception. We don't know if the people who move here are a special kind of people when they arrive, or if the spirit of the place is catching, but one thing's for sure! This is the happiest, friendliest place you ever saw.

If you're lucky enough to be 50 or more (or are the adult partner of someone who is), all this can be yours: the fine facilities for recreational fun and creative activity that cost just $20 per per-son, each year... the golf course which residents play at greatly reduced rates... the top-quality homes and coopera-tive apartments priced from just $10,950... the big shopping center and Del Webb's Kings Inn, right in town. You'll love it all, including the dry, warm, sunny climate and the rolling hills and green meadows all about.

This active way-of-life is also waiting for you in Del Webb's Kern City near Bakersfield off Highway 99. If you wish, you may get the full story on either city by writing or visiting Del Webb's Sun City Information Center, Room 246, 900 Wilshire Blvd., Los Angeles 17, Calif. Phone: MA 6-5127.

HOW THE BOXER GOT HIS NAME HAS NEVER BEEN DETERMINED

BUT THERE ARE SEVERAL THEORIES ON THE ORIGIN OF THIS POPULAR PET'S MONIKER

SOME AUTHORITIES BELIEVE THE TERM IS A CORRUPTION OF THE WORD 'BEISER', WHICH MEANS 'BITER', SINCE THE BREED WAS ONCE USED IN THE SPORT OF BULL BITING OR BULL BAITING

OTHERS SAY THAT 'BOXER' THE NAME OF AN EXTINCT BREED WAS THE BASIS FOR BOXER

STILL ANOTHER IDEA IS THAT SOME OF THESE DOGS SEEM TO SPAR WITH THE FRONT FEET IN FIGHTING, AND THUS EARNED THE TITLE

BUT, HOWEVER HE CAME TO BE KNOWN AS BOXER MATTERS LITTLE, FOR HE IS ONE OF THE TOP TEN MOST POPULAR BREEDS IN AMERICA

OUR COVER

After 10 years as a leading jockey, Bill Har-matz is readying for retirement at the age of 31.

"What would I do if I quit, though?" he asks, and then answers in the next breath by tolling off numerous Long Beach and Southern California investments from his million dollars in earnings astride horses. From California to New York, he's regarded as one of racing's foremost figures.

For a behind-the-scenes view of a jockey—from his first year on the track when he rode in a record 1,700 races to today when he guzzles soda pop and eats cake while his fellow jockeys starve themselves to maintain weight—read "His Kingdom's on a Horse," by Jerome Hall, on Page 7.

In the Roman Manner

Oil and hand rubbing give this heirloom chair a patina that comes from time and care. It was never varnished

By Helen L. Gillum

AMONG the many family heirlooms and lovely pieces of "handed down" furniture in the home of Mrs. George Cottle of 2191 Eucalyptus Avenue, there is an old chair that possibly holds more interest than any of the other items. Copied after a style that originated in early Roman times, it bears carvings of a unique design. And, to give full credit for its intended purpose, it must be added that the chair is also very comfortable, imparting a sense of relaxation and pleasure to anyone sitting in it.

This object was one of several articles of furniture that Mrs. Cottle's father-in-law ordered from a cabinetmaker for his young bride many years ago. Besides the chair, there were two massive china cabinets which now fill an entire wall of Mrs. Cottle's dining room, and a glass-fronted corner cabinet which holds antique chinaware and other treasured possessions from the Cottle family. According to one of three framed family records of the Cottles hanging on a wall of her home, the chair and other pieces were made in 1876.

AN INTERESTING truth about chairs is that they were not in common use until about the 16th century. Heretofore, simple stools and benches were the rule. However, the ancient Egyptians, Greeks and Romans did develop certain types of grand chairs, to be used exclusively by the ruling classes. Thus, for a long time, chairs were a symbol of power and honor. For instance, in ancient Rome, the "Curule Magistrates," the highest dignitaries, were distinguished from other persons by being given the privilege of sitting on ivory chairs of specific design, known as "curule" chairs. These had curved, bench-like seats, the curved lower sections much resembling our modern folding campstools with crossed legs. The curule chair eventually became popular design, and was copied later in the familiar Regency benches and other forms, such as Mrs. Cottle's chair.

A DISTINGUISHING feature of this chair is the expressive carving of old King Neptune in the back. The stern visage of the mythical ruler of the deep is easily recognizable in the center, while the mass of gently undulating, hand-carved waves surrounding him creates an illusion of deep, silently moving waters. Since the Cottle family was a seafaring one for many generations, this is a very appropriate motif. The chair's generous size and elegant carvings on the arms and curule-type legs add further dignity and charm.

Mrs. Cottle says that "The chair has never had one drop of varnish on it. Members of the family have periodically hand-rubbed and polished it with warm linseed oil down through the years."

This treatment has resulted in a deep, rich, mellow patina seen only on the finest of antique furniture.

A Horse, a Horse

His Kingdom's on a Horse

By Jerome Hall

Bill Harmatz, pictured astride Winonly, began his second decade of riding as leading jockey when Santa Anita's racing season opened recently.

HARMATZ? He's one of the best I've ever seen," said the little old man.

And then the little old man, whose name is Johnny Longden, let a smile creep through the deep lines in his weathered face and he added: "I guess I've seen 'em all, too."

William (Bill) Harmatz at the age of 31 wants to retire from his chosen profession. But he's making too much money to quit right now.

So for a few more years he will continue to ride horses, for which he is paid about $100,000 a year.

Bill Harmatz is one of the nation's best jockeys. Additionally, he is a Long Beach businessman whose real estate holdings are growing almost as fast as his horses are running. Latest acquisition is an 862-acre orange grove ($1.7 million). His Shoemaker-Harmatz Enterprises, Inc., soon begins construction on a shopping center in Canoga Park. Bill Harmatz has it made.

WHEN HARMATZ climbed astride his mounts on opening day at Santa Anita recently, it marked beginning of his second decade of riding. During eight of those 10 years, Harmatz has grossed better than $100,000 annually, which is a feat equaled only by such as Willie Shoemaker, Eddie Arcaro and Johnny Longden.

Sometimes, when Harmatz looks back over his riding career, he concludes that it's been a breeze ever since he rode his first race at Caliente. That first year he rode in 1,700 hundred races—"the most of anybody in the country"—in making a big splash as an apprentice. But then things got lean for a couple of years. And, just as suddenly, fortune turned upward again.

When Harmatz began his climb, he moved from Los Angeles to Lakewood.

The Harmatz family (Bill's parents and brothers) has been in business in Long Beach for years. Bill now resides with wife Connie and their four youngsters—ranging in age from 3 to 10—in Montebello. With his real estate interests in Long Beach now, Bill is considering Long Beach for his settling-down years after retiring from the track.

When? "I'm just now beginning to slow up," he says. He's becoming more choosy about the mounts. This, actually, is the indication to racing folk that a jockey "has it made."

A JOCKEY EARNS a minimum of $25 per race, even if the horse never gets across the finish line. So $25 times eight races adds up to a tidy sum each day even if the rider never gets into the one-two-three finish. A rider of Harmatz' caliber has no trouble getting a mount in each race and it is not until he piles up a sizeable bank account that he can overcome the temptation to pick up $25 or $50 for two minutes of work.

Though Harmatz is only 31, he is looked up to by his co-workers, one and all, whether they be apprentices hardly out of childhood, or old-timers. Even Longden considers Harmatz one of the old-timers.

When Harmatz and Longden begin a conversation, all the other jockeys within earshot gather around. You can learn something just listening in this kind of company.

A recent jockeys' room conversation took up

Harmatz looks forward to day he can retire, but he's doing too well now.

the topic of Manuel Ycaza, the so-called bad boy of the track. His fellow jockeys consider Ycaza a much-harassed rider. Ycaza recently finished a controversial suspension for claiming a foul which the stewards felt was not a foul. Since it was Ycaza, the jockeys feel, he was dealt with intemperately.

JOCKEYS HAVE the same regard for stewards that baseball players have for umpires. The difference is the jockeys are not allowed to voice a protest. "Make your foul claim and keep your mouth shut," said Harmatz to the rookie riders gathered around in the dressing quarters between races.

"Yah," said Longden, "but never forget that you never know what the stewards will do. I remember one time I finished a race and one of 'em asked me if I had any trouble. I told him no and he says what about coming out of the gate? I told him yah, I had a little trouble (interference) coming out of the gate and he says 'Why didn't you claim a foul then?'

"I told this steward that I didn't think it was a foul," continued Longden, "but after he looked at the films, he said it was, and suspended me for not claiming a foul that I didn't think really was a foul. So just remember that, you guys."

The rookie riders solemnly nodded ascent.

WHILE THE BIG names in jockey ranks are in the chips, there still is a struggle to break into the business. There has been a noticeable absence of successful apprentices in the past five years. Since there are enough experienced jockeys to go around, a thoroughbred owner is understandably reluctant to turn over his multi-thousand-dollar property to a young boy.

But once a kid gets a taste of riding, it has to be starved out of him. And not infrequently, it is.

"It's rough on the kids," says Harmatz, "but you can understand the owners' point of view. The owners actually put up quite a battle to get the best jockeys. Harmatz, for instance, has been kept busy on the eastern tracks since Hollywood Park closed last July. He passed up most of the Del Mar meeting because he was offered top mounts in Chicago and around New York's racing plants. He passed up the Los Angeles County Fair meeting at Pomona because 'I've got too much money to ride those turns.' The jockeys call the Pomona strip 'the imperfect circle.' It's only one-half-mile around compared to the mile distance at the larger tracks and the jockeys claim there are no straight-aways at the Fair.

LAST TIME HARMATZ rode on the West Coast was the final day of the Del Mar meeting in September. He flew out from New York to spend a little more than two minutes astride a horse named Top Performance. But, alas, Top Performance was topped by the performance of four others in the race. For riding this horse, the owner paid Harmatz two-way airplane fare from New York and guaranteed him $250. Since Bill wanted to come home for a short vacation with his wife and children, he was glad to accept.

That's the way it goes when a jockey's got it made.

When asked what he considers the toughest part of being a horse rider, Harmatz doesn't mention the long hours (start before dawn, finish after dark) and he ignores the physical strain and danger of an actual race. He doesn't mention the problem of dieting, either. The worst thing about being a jockey is, to Harmatz, the travel. Being away from his wife and children is what has convinced him to give up the track within the next few years.

Californians grow them from the seed

Oysters on the Half Shell

By Betty Hardesty

TO THOSE whose casual interest in oysters has been confined to an occasional plate of Blue Points on the half shell, it is a surprise to find that eastern species of oysters are grown along the California coast. Planted in shallow bays protected from marauding stingrays by long fences of shakes closely set together in the water, the oyster beds produce a valuable and unusual crop.

At Tomales Bay, the odd position of these fences stimulates a newcomer to investigate. The answer is found in the sign, "Tomales Bay Oyster Company," where friendly, white-haired Oscar Johansen explains his oyster enterprise.

He and his assistant, Victor Sousa, are preparing to bring in the oysters they have just gathered in a flat-bottomed boat, now tied at the end of their long pier. Wire bushel baskets are filled with big gray "clutches" of Japanese oysters which are broken apart with a metal claw-hatchet. The long-handled oyster tongs which is used to collect them—like two long-tined rakes, hinged so as to open and close like shears—lie in the boat.

JOHANSEN SAYS that he gathers large oysters when they are two to three years old and sells them retail by the piece or wholesale by the bushel. A restaurant owner from San Francisco buys a daily supply, carried away in gunny sacks. Before putting them in the truck, Johansen im-

Oysterman Oscar Johansen stands aboard his boat with a clutch of oysters as aid, Victor Sousa, breaks clutches apart with a hatchet. Scene is at Tomales Bay, north of San Francisco. Rate-like fool is used in harvesting.

merses them for a few minutes in the water of the bay. Wearing hip boots and standing in water almost to their tops, he moves the oysters about within the sack to make sure each is well moistened.

"They don't get this kind of care on their way to us," he complains, "they're merely sprinkled once in a while." Each clutch of oysters is made up of 4 to 15 individuals fastened to one old shell, and Johansen says it is a wonder there are that many because the boxes in which the seed oysters are shipped are stacked on deck and exposed to sun and weather. Many of the little seed oysters die on their journey from Japan where they are spawned, hatched and "set." "We can't set oysters here," he continues, "so we also buy eastern seed-oysters, the smaller, 3 to 4-inch smooth kind which you eat on the half-shell."

THE POPULARITY of raw oysters as a delicacy caused the natural bars and reefs to be depleted so rapidly after colonization of America, that by the mid-1800s oyster cultivation was begun. The eastern oysters of the United States (Ostrea virginiana) were found from the Gulf of St. Lawrence to the Gulf of Mexico at that time. The first oyster farmers followed methods used in Japan for centuries with such success in the United States that today farms on "about 350,000 underwater acres furnish more than two-thirds of 66 million pounds of oysters eaten annually" in the U. S. alone, according to biologist Robert Ingle.

In northeastern oyster beds water conditions are right for the setting of "spat" which become seed oysters. That is where large quantities of empty oyster shells are spread along the mud bottoms to provide a convenient hard surface on which the spat may attach themselves. The oyster-seeded shells can then be collected and transported to nearby or distant growing beds.

An oyster's life is beset with constant hazards beginning with fertilization of the egg. Inasmuch as the eggs and the sperm are released into open water, it is only by chance that they meet at all. Only a small fraction of the 60-million to 500-million eggs laid by one oyster in one season hatch into minute free-swimming spat. After about two weeks of floating, swimming and constant eating, the oysters develop tiny shells about as big as the head of a pin and sink to the bottom in search of a hard-surfaced home.

SATISFIED with the conveniently provided shell, the spat secretes an adhesive substance which hardens and cements it securely for life. Though it has survived thus far without being eaten by a jellyfish, the seed oyster is still not safe. It may be smothered in mud, parched by the sun or frozen if tides are low, or deprived of its required salt when spring freshets dilute the salt water. Still other troubles might destroy its food supply.

The oyster feeds constantly on minute sea life by pumping water over its gills so that solid particles are directed toward the oyster's mouth through canals of thick-flowing mucus.

The temperature of water governs the rate of growth of an oyster as well as its food supply. In Tomales Bay, oysters reach market-size in two or three years. The slower the growth, the more firm the oyster with some taking five years to attain their adult size. A 23 per cent solid meat content is found in these slow growers. Farmers consider water temperatures of 60 to 70 degrees ideal.

The oyster accommodates its shell to its increasing growth by adding to the edge. The deep half of the shell holds the oyster; the right, flat half, is a movable lid. The Japanese variety grows a 6 to 8-inch shell in Tomales Bay.

STARFISH, rays, fungus and unexplained maladies beset oysters. West Coast experiments to improve oyster farming are under way. Principal California oyster beds are found from Morro Bay northward. One oysterman had some success growing his oysters in baskets in Japanese fashion after stingrays had once wiped out his operation on Catalina Island. Some effort is being made to farm oysters near San Diego.

Southern California's chief source of Blue Points, however, is a trucked importation from the east in frozen form, in which they remain fresh and dormant for a considerable period of time.

Oysters rank fourth in dollar value but 14th in U. S. seafood harvest. They are protein and high in nutritional values.

Food oysters have pearls only rarely, and then not of a commercial value.

Buyer dips sacks of oysters before taking his purchase back to San Francisco restaurant. Pier serves the oystermen.

Victor Sousa separates oysters from clutches and packs them in gunny sacks for marketing.

A Resume May Land That Job

By Roberta Nichols

"IT WILL BE better tomorrow," the young wife said as her husband pushed aside his dinner, too tired to eat. "You're qualified for many jobs. It's just luck."

"That's what I keep telling myself," he answered. "But job hunting is time consuming—driving from one end of town to another, filling out applications, waiting endlessly only to discover that the job has just been filled; that my education is fine, but I lack experience. Or that experience is unnecessary; I just don't have enough background in science."

The young woman looked up from the help wanted section of the newspaper. "I notice that some companies say 'submit job resume.' Would that save time?"

He shook his head. "I hear that resumes are costly to have prepared and only executives use them anyway. I'm just getting started. Besides," he admitted, "I'm not real sure what a resume is."

"Why not find out?" his wife suggested. "Tomorrow."

SO NEXT day he went to the State Department of Employment for information. As a result, he was able to prepare and mail 12 resumes within the month. Out of these he received four responses from potential employers and had his pick of three jobs.

What the discouraged job seeker discovered was that a resume is an inventory of qualifications for a particular job. It is written concisely and accurately, aimed at getting an interview with an employer who needs someone with your education, experience, abilities, and ambitions. It is a job-hunting tool which can be sent to many more prospective employers than you could possibly visit. And an answer from one of them indicates interest.

Two popular misconceptions about the resume are that only highly professional persons need it, and that it must be prepared by an expert.

According to George Toll, office manager of the California State Department of Employment in Long Beach, anyone in clerical or sales work needs a resume as much as an engineer or scientist. And while it is not generally conceded that unskilled workers are benefited, there are exceptions. Because many large companies do not want job turnover, they like to make every job career-type. Therefore they want to know everything about an employee who will be with them until retirement.

ALTHOUGH A RESUME can be prepared by a professional, it is not necessary. "In fact," says Toll, "it is actually desirable to make up your own. Once it is complete, you have your own accurate record for future reference. Applicants should be cautioned, however, to make the resume concise and factual."

What should the resume include? There are no set rules. The following is only a suggestion.

HEADING. Name, address, telephone number.

JOB OBJECTIVE. Tell the employer what job or jobs you are qualified for and seeking. Don't make him guess.

WORK HISTORY. Start with the last job and work back. Give date of employment, employer's name, address, type of business, position held, and name and title of supervisor. Stating salary is optional. State duties performed, particularly those which pertain to the job you seek. What was your responsibility? What did you achieve?

MILITARY EXPERIENCE OR DRAFT CLASSIFICATION.

EDUCATION. Should also include extracurricular activities and honors.

MISCELLANEOUS. Special skills, membership in organizations, hobbies.

PERSONAL DATA. Date of birth (optional), marital status, physical description.

You will see that the resume is very much like an ordinary application—only one put together under ideal conditions. It is neatly typed. You have worked at home where records and dates of former employment and education are readily available. And you have written a covering letter.

THE VERY FIRST sentence of the letter should interest the prospective employer in reading the resume and

SOUTHLAND HOMES

Has Mobile Home, Doesn't Plan Travel

Handsomely furnished and spacious, the living room leaves nothing to be desired as a part of this home. Draped door in right background gives access to the den-study.

By Stella George

MOBILE HOMES have provided the answer to residential needs of a large and growing sector of the Southland populace and, that luxury in accommodations is provided, needs no further proof than a look into the mobile home of Mrs. Nina Burroughs of Belmont Shores Mobile Homes, located on Pacific Coast Highway east of Bellflower Boulevard.

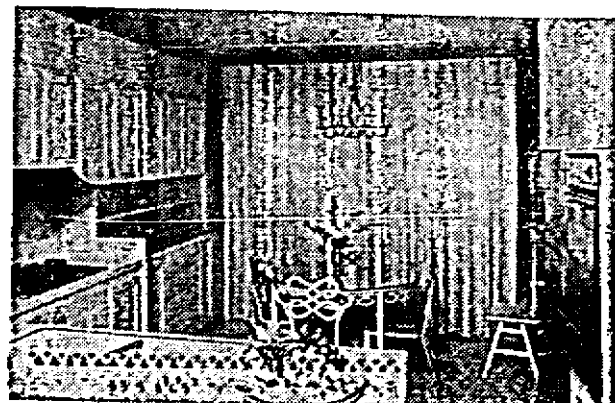

From an exterior view, the home would normally be judged as fairly large but the view from within reveals an amazing spaciousness. The living room is extended to 21-foot width; the kitchen accommodates a dining table as well as a desk in the alcove; a den-study can also be used as a guest bedroom; a walk-in storage room doubles as a dressing room for the den when need be; a bathroom is so spacious that it has approximately 13 running feet of dressing-table area; and a master bedroom has closets lining both sides.

MRS. BURROUGHS decorated her home with the artistic talent of a professional interior designer. Drapes, walls, and carpeting (which extends down the hall into the bedroom) are antique white. Twin lounge chairs and coffee table on one side of the living room face a quilted, flowered couch done in shades of blue and green. A handsome avocado green

Kitchen and dining area are ample for all normal needs. Full length drapes lend note of luxury (right). Cupboard space exceeds that found in most homes of average size.

Photos by Joe Risinger

occasional chair is nearby.

The separation which divides the living room from the kitchen is expertly designed. On the living room side are wide, open shelves that display knickknacks, books, and pictures. The top of the unit is used as a bar only for buffet dinners. Sink and work area are on the other side, and a folding shutter screen on top of the divider adds a decorative touch.

Kitchen woodwork is finished in antique white with matching floor covering color. Twenty functional cupboards serve the kitchen more than in most average homes. One built-in unit has two glass-front shelves for glassware.

Dining space in the kitchen has floor-to-ceiling drapes, providing a backdrop for a marble-topped dining table and upholstered chairs. A sparkling chandelier hangs over the table. In an alcove on one side a desk faces a window. Appliances are tinted to match the color scheme.

A NEW ADDITION to the mobile home is the cabana, a many-purpose room which can serve as a comfortable and attractive guest bedroom. The decor differs from the rest of the home, but blends in the intended fashion:

woodwork and carpeting are a dark beige or toast color. A couch pulls out to form a bed. Adjoining the room is a walk-in storage room with shelves about two feet deep on one side, closet space on the other with more shelves above, ample for items such as suitcases. A small dressing table with mirror above is in the center rear of the room.

The bathroom in this mobile home can be described in one word: luxurious.

THE MASTER bedroom has more closet space than in the bedroom of an average home. This, of course, provides for hidden chests of drawers, storage shelves and plenty of room for hanging clothes. White carpeting, continuing down the hall from the living room, adds elegance to the room.

A small garden surrounding the home is carefully landscaped. The home is new, so plants, shrubs, and trees are small. It is easy to visualize, however, that as years go on and the shrubs, trees, and plants grow tall the home will maintain and improve its attractive (and substantial) qualities. While it is a mobile home, it now rests on a hill, has a view, and it is unlikely ever to have a new address. According to Mrs. Burroughs, it is a dream home come true.

Bathroom has 33 inch test of dressing table area.

Designed especially for a corner, this house is pleasing from both exposed sides. Also suitable for a mid-block narrow lot, it is only 37 feet wide.

HOUSE OF THE WEEK

Design Solves a Corner Problem

By Jules Loh

ABOUT A YEAR ago, architect Lester Cohen designed a house specifically for a narrow lot, solving the problem of many House of the Week readers who were literally being squeezed out of most of today's home designs. "Since then," said Cohen, "I've been getting requests from persons who own corner lots, especially narrow corner lots. Their problem is more complicated—but not insoluble."

Cohen's newest design, House of the Week J-1, solves it effectively, attractively and economically. It is a three (or four) bedroom ranch with some optional features so the owner can accommodate it to his own needs.

THE HOUSE is only 37 feet wide including the garage, which means it could fit on a 50-foot lot in many areas. Its depth is 63 feet, and it contains a modest 1,522 square feet of living space not counting basement or garage.

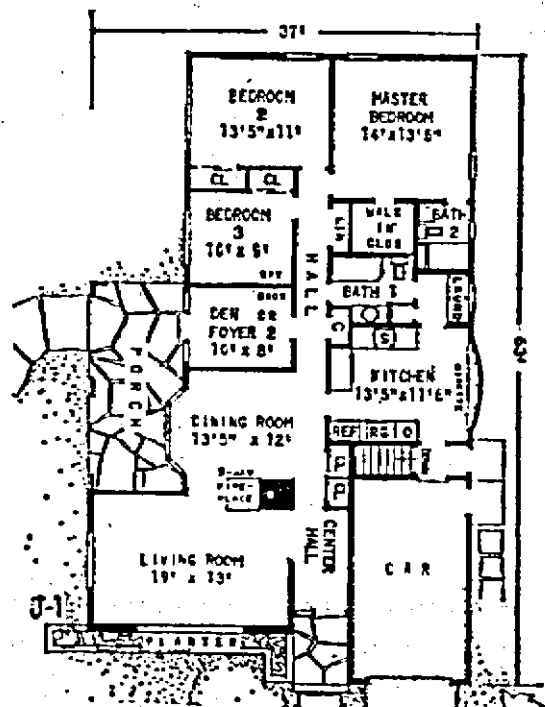

On a corner lot, both exposed sides present an equally pleasing appearance, so that actually the front door could be placed on either side. On the other hand, if the house were placed on a mid-block narrow lot it retains an area for outdoor living—a feature often sacrificed in "elongated" houses.

All this merely accommodates the house to the problem lot; there's plenty to recommend this house, moreover,

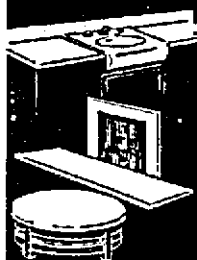

no matter what lot it's built on.

THE FLOOR PLAN is exceptionally well ordered for a medium-sized house, with the sleeping area placed well away from the housekeeping and entertaining areas, convenient bathroom facilities, direct entry from the garage to the kitchen, efficient use of floor space, plus a number of luxury touches seldom found in homes this size.

If the main entry were placed on the narrow side of this house, next to the garage, the room adjoining the dining room could be used as a den or, in a pinch, a fourth bedroom. An optional door between it and bedroom No. 3 also would convert it into a two-room apartment for in-laws. As a den, library, music room or other relaxing spot, however, it is ideal. A door leads to the flagstone porch, and windows on both sides provide plenty of sunlight.

Den offers optional location for front entry, and optional door between the den and bedroom No. 3.

If the main entry were placed on the long side, this den would become the main foyer—and a spacious one at 10x8 feet.

AN EYE-CATCHING three-way fireplace divides the living and dining rooms, complementing the broad window overlooking the planter on the front wall of the living room. The dining room also has a dramatic bay window, looking out over the porch and side yard.

A pleasant bow window also enhances the kitchen and provides an obvious spot for the breakfast table, out of the way of the work area. There is abundant counter space in the kitchen, and no less than 32 linear feet of hanging and counter cabinets.

Laundry facilities are located unobtrusively near the kitchen and adjacent to the bedroom wing and the main bathroom; and the supply cabinet is extra large.

A second entrance to the main bathroom makes it do the work of two, serving both the kitchen and the bedrooms. The master bedroom, of course, has its own bath with stall shower.

Note that every bit of the plumbing in this house — kitchen, laundry and both bathrooms—is grouped in this location, a real money-saving feature.

Large and well-placed closets are another feature of this house. There are two closets near the center hall, another opposite the den, a linen closet convenient to all the bedrooms and a large walk-in closet in the master bedroom.

To obtain plans, address Building Editor, Independent, Press-Telegram, 6th and Pine, Long Beach 12, Calif., enclose 50 cents and request House of the Week Study Plan, Design J-1.

BACK-ACHE?

If you suffer pains of an aching back due to over-exercise or nervous tension, begin at once to enjoy the benefits of deep penetrating heat and gentle massage in your own bathtub with a

Jacuzzi
WHIRLPOOL BATH

Many common aching backs are the result of too much physical activity or unusual exercise... or the everyday tension that tightens back and neck muscles. Muscle spasm causes pain until nature slowly repairs the damage and relaxes the sore, tight muscle.

Tension headaches and aching backs often respond quickly to hydromassage. The forceful, moving water filled with bursting air bubbles is the kind of massage that relaxes muscle spasm and stimulates local blood circulation where applied. The Jacuzzi Whirlpool Bath provides the warm water massage doctors and therapists recommend to speed up the relaxation process and help nature do her job.

If you suffer pains of an aching back, muscular soreness, headaches—you should try a Jacuzzi Whirlpool Bath in your own home bathtub. This pleasure can be yours immediately—perhaps tonight.

FOOD

A Return to Diet Normalcy

By Mildred K. Flanary
Southland Magazine Home
Economics Editor

AFTER THE TURKEY, ham and festive desserts, perhaps you're in the mood for that budget-compatible, all-occasion food—beans. They'll be a welcome diet change, we assure you.

Did you ever try a "Rinktum Ditty" (no one seems to know how it got its name or how old it may be) is a distant cousin to the supper-party favorite, "Welsh Rabbit." Easy to make and inexpensive, this tomato-cheese dish gains distinction and becomes more substantial eating by the addition of white beans.

The mixture may be cooked in a double boiler and transferred to a casserole, to be kept hot over a food warmer of some sort, as it is ladled over crisp hot buttered toast triangles. Cooked bacon strips or curls make a good topping; pickled watermelon is right as a flavor accent. Finish off with coffee and a light but festive dessert. Good the year around but especially now!

This recipe makes 6 to 8 servings, using 2 cups cooked and drained beans, but it is well to double or triple the amount in cooking the beans. The unusual flavor of large white beans adds a delicious difference to any recipe calling for white beans, and to many another which ordinarily does not, such as this variation. Besides, with the liquid left from draining the beans plus some extra beans, you can have a good soup for lunch.

Incidentally cooked beans freeze well.

Rinktum Ditty With Beans

- 1 can (10½ ounce size) condensed tomato soup
- 2 cups (½ pound) shredded sharp Cheddar cheese
- ¼ teaspoon dry mustard
- ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- Dash or 3 of Tabasco sauce
- 1 egg, slightly beaten
- 2 cups cooked and drained large, white, dry beans

Heat the soup, cheese, seasonings, over hot water in chafing dish or double boiler. When cheese is melted, quickly add the slightly beaten egg, stirring constantly until smooth. Then carefully stir in the cooked, and preferably hot, drained beans. Add dashes of salt and pepper. If desired, ¼ cup minced onion, cooked in butter, may be added. When hot, serve over crisp piping-hot buttered toast. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

For the same effect but a different flavor, you may like to use either cooked red or pinto beans. These beans are prepared in the same fashion but should be cooked at least a half-hour longer for any purpose.

After a surfeit of ham, turkey and fancy holiday desserts, return to plainer, but tasty fare is indicated. This "Welsh Rabbit" variation with beans is an idea.

Recipe of the Week

SALAD DRESSING that serves in a dual role wins this week's best recipe prize of $5 for Mrs. Dorothy Mitchusson, 2149 Ocana Ave., Long Beach 15. The recipe:

All Salad's Dressing

(Equally good on fruit or vegetable salads)

- |                     |                           |
|---------------------|---------------------------|
| ½ cup sugar         | ¼ cup vinegar             |
| 1 tsp. celery seed  | 1 tsp. salt               |
| 1 tsp. mustard seed | ½ tablespoon grated onion |
| 1 tsp. paprika      | 1 cup salad oil           |

Combine all ingredients except salad oil, which is added very slowly at the last, then blend well by shaking vigorously.

Very Young, Very Elegant

Arrives the busy 1963 season and the very young elegants select their "party clothes" with just as much thought and good taste as their elders.

Pretty, becoming dresses in Crompton cotton velveteen are the vogue for the younger set. The colors are marvelous and it is definitely very smart to be seen in black and navy too! Designers for these social butterflies have added wonderful touches such as deep heavy lace collars, appliques and other distinctive features certain to enchant the young ladies. The toddlers have flattering no-waist line styles to choose from, while the older girls have a variety of silhouettes to select from. Even young brother can't be outdone by his female compatriots. He, too, can be decked out perfectly in an Eton suit in bright red velveteen.

Each and every one of the young elegants really is very elegant, and enchanting . . . and all set for the important occasions about to come.

MEDICINE AND YOU

Emotions Held Cause of Hives

By Ben Zinser

Southland Magazine Medical Science Writer

A WIDELY held view that chronic hives are emotional in origin appears justified, a psychiatrist reports.

Dr. Robert J. Shoemaker, clinical assistant professor of psychiatry at University of Pittsburgh School of Medicine, told the Academy of Psychosomatic Medicine of studies of 40 persons afflicted with chronic hives.

In general, psychiatric examination revealed a childhood setting of emotional deprivation and chronic frustration of fundamental need for love. This provided a "backdrop of insecurity forever reflected in their lives."

Patients were found to be more active before onset of the ailment.

A VETERANS Administration research project shows the importance of early surgical removal of suspicious-looking lung nodules in men over 50.

More than 70 VA and armed forces hospitals pooled information in a study of 900 men who underwent surgery for a single nodule in the lung.

Fifty-five per cent of the nodules in men over 50 were cancerous.

Some of the nodules turned out to be a result of tuberculosis or fungus diseases such as valley fever or histoplasmosis. But surgery is the only way to tell definitely whether a solitary lung nodule might be malignant, the researchers say.

FOR THE THIRD time since 1958 surgeons have successfully removed a life-threatening blood clot from the lung area.

In the latest effort a team of surgeons at Touro Infirmary, New Orleans, operated on a 31-year-old man. During the operation a heart-lung machine was hooked to his circulation to serve temporarily as his heart and lungs.

A massive clot—three inches long and an inch in diameter—was removed. It had been blocking completely the left pulmonary artery and partially blocking the right pulmonary artery. The patient was discharged from the hospital 45 days after the operation.

SAFETY GLASS used for auto windshields and windows isn't as safe as another kind of glass, a researcher contends.

Safer—but unfortunately prohibited by law—is glass tempered with heat, says Dr. William A. Lange of Wayne State University in Detroit.

This glass, when shattered, produces fragments with rounded edges—far less likely to inflict injury, he says.

Safety glass, on the other hand, tends to shatter into sharp, jagged pieces on impact, Dr. Lange maintains. Safety glass is made of two layers of glass compressed against a sheet of plastic.

Auto manufacturers would substitute tempered glass for so-called safety glass, but can't. Some states have laws insisting that cars have safety glass, he explains.

The report is in Medical World News, a newsmagazine for doctors.

A NEW antibiotic called cephalothin appears to be as effective as the tetracycline drugs against a wide variety of germs.

Trials to date show cephalothin can subdue staph germs which resist penicillin.

The drug, not yet available to the general physician, is given by injection.

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave. Long Beach 12, Calif., for origin, meaning and brief genealogy. For reply only in this column.

DEAR MISS RULE: Have you data on McCrimmon.—E. M., Seal Beach.

EM: McCrimmon is a Scotch name usually spelled MacCrummin. The source meant "sons of the bent one," referring to an ancestor with a bent back. This clan were a sept or division of Clan MacLeod of Lewis, near whom they lived. Their shield is silver, decorated with a gold lion between three red crosses on a blue chevron. The unusual clan motto "Permitte caetera divis" means "Leave the rest to the care of the gods," a primitive pagan slogan handed down from time immemorial. Donald Ban MacCrimmon, a famous bagpiper, was among the ancestors. He was killed fighting with the Scotch royalists for Bonnie Prince Charlie in 1745.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please explain CHARBONEAU. — Mrs. C., Garden Grove.

MRS. C: CHARBONEAU is from the French occupational name Charbonneau. This meant "little charcoal seller" in the Middle Ages. The Charbonneau family were granted a coat-of-arms in the old French province of Dauphine. Their shield is red, emblazoned with a golden warrior's sling twisted in a triple "X" design, placed vertically in the center of the shield. On the sling is a silver pebble; below it on the red background are two more pebbles.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would like the origin of TATUM and TATOM.—W. T., M. R., Long Beach.

W. T., M. R: TATUM and TATOM incorporate within them a personality characterization of the remote forefather. The source of these surnames, "Tata-ham" translates as "the cheerful man's home." The root name became Tatham, then Tatum and Tatom. The town of Tatham, Lancashire, is named for these families. Records of 1198 A.D. mention an ancestor, "William of Tatham." London records of 1744 note the wedding of Sarah Tatum. The family shield is covered with six alternating silver and blue triangles.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please explain GUNN.—N. B., Los Alamitos.

N. B: GUNN, a Scotch clan name, honors the ancestor Gunnar of Caithness, whose name meant "warlike one." Legends say Gunnar's beautiful daughter Helen was engaged to her cousin when a young Clan Keith chief attacked her home with his followers. The Keiths killed many Gunn warriors and carried off Helen to their castle. She was so unhappy she jumped to her death from the castle tower. Gunn and Keith descendants feuded for many years after this tragedy until they finally agreed to a truce meeting. There were to be 12 horsemen of each clan at the meeting. The Keiths arrived with two men on each horse and killed many Gunns. Escapers later retaliated by killing the Keith chief and carrying off his son. The Gunn coat-of-arms used by them in battle, has six alternating blue and silver horizontal stripes covering the shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give data on BAER.—M. B., Long Beach.

M. B: BAER is a German name based on the old High German word "bero" meaning "bear." This surname indicates that the ancestors owned a shop or inn trademarked by a colored sign picturing a bear. Baer is also a variation of the English surname Bear with the same origin.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please analyze PELLETIER.—J. P., Lakewood.

J. P: PELLETIER, a French surname, indicates the progenitor's occupation. This name reveals Pelletier as a medieval "furrier." Among the ancestors was Pierre Pelletier, noted French chemist of the early 1800s.

DEAR MISS RULE: Can you give information on SANCHEZ. — M.S., Long Beach.

M.S: SANCHEZ is a famous Spanish family name traced to a progenitor known for his piety, since this name deciphers as "son of the pious one." The Sanchez coat-of-arms has a gold-crowned, golden eagle centered on a blue shield. Descendants were California settlers in the 1700s.

Home shop project to whet the appetite of anyone with a yen for Early American, this colonial hutch is tops.

By William Meyerriecks

WINTER workshop project that will keep you busy for some time but will yield a lifetime of pleasure thereafter is this colonial hutch with its broad, 60-inch long buffet base. It's not a beginner's piece, but, if you want to try out new Christmas tools on Colonial pieces, we suggest one of the more simple projects such as Colonial Accent Pieces (S-46) or Colonial Nightstand (S-17).

If you're looking for a big challenge, this one offers it. The buffet section includes four drawers and four cabinets big enough for large service pieces as well as special occasion appliances. The drawers are deep enough for boxed silver as well as table linens.

THE HUTCH section adds an ideal background for display of your best china.

The plan provides scale squared outlines for the curved parts and section and detail diagrams to make perfectly clear door and drawer construction. All other parts are dimensioned precisely in the Parts List.

TO OBTAIN Colonial Hutch Plan S-89 send name and address and 50 cents to Building Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif. S-46 and S-17 are also available for 50 cents each.

Handy Shelves You Can Make

One way to have things at low cost is the do-it-yourself formula—a few scraps of wood, some leisure time in your workshop and nothing to pay each week. Suppose your home needs more shelf space. Marilee Jones, NBC television actress, displays a three-unit arrangement for wall storage in most any room of the house. When scrap wood is used, the cost is nil, and the project is easy with a full sized pattern showing each step and details of variations. Make one or more. Send 50 cents in coin, check or money order, with name and address, for Pattern No. 172, to Steve Ettington, Southland Magazine, Pattern Department, Box 2133, Van Nuys, Calif.

Help in Spelling

By Harry Karns

Education Research Associates

QUESTION: Are there any techniques a child can use to become a better speller?

ANSWER: Certainly. Educational studies have shown that the good speller has a system for studying his words. He looks carefully at words, uses the dictionary a great deal, and repeats words aloud.

Suggest these steps to your child:

1. Look at the word. Divide it into syllables; think of its meaning, its length, its sound.

2. Cover the word and repeat these things in your mind. What did the word look like? How long was it?

What did it mean? How did it sound?

3. Uncover the word and check how well you remembered it. What mistakes, if any, did you make?

4. Cover the word again. Write it from memory.

5. Check it for accuracy.

6. Use it in a sentence.

7. After studying the entire list of words in this way, have someone give you a test.

8. Repeat the process in studying the words missed.

QUESTION: Where do you start in helping a child who has difficulty with word problems in math?

ANSWER: Look at his papers and watch him do several problems, and ask yourself these questions about his work:

1. Is he using the correct process? Does he divide when he's supposed to divide and subtract when he's supposed to subtract?

2. Is he using the correct process but doing his calculations incorrectly?

3. Does he read the problem through before starting the work?

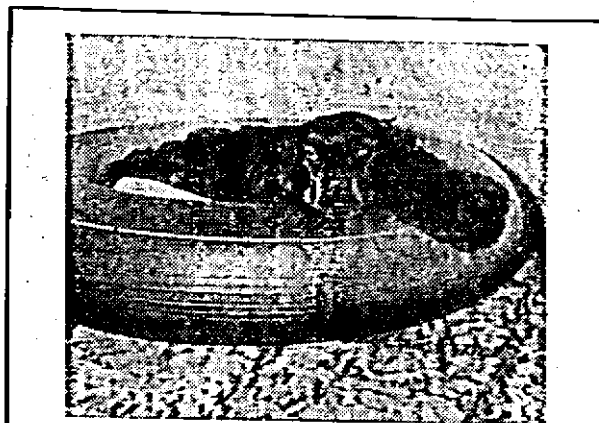

4. Does he guess at answers?

5. Does he understand what the problem means when it speaks of the "product," the "dividend," or the "total"?

6. Does he go back and check his work?

7. Does he copy the work correctly from the book?

NOTE: Many students are tripped up by word problems because they failed somewhere along the line to learn certain basic information. It is important to know how many inches there are in a foot, how many weeks in the year, how many pounds in a ton, how many quarts in a gallon. Most texts in the elementary and junior high school grades refer frequently to weights, measures and distances.

Bed That's Real Doggy

WHEN A GIRL is dog-tired and wants to curl up in a cozy corner for a snooze, a good old inner tube, like that shown above, can be a life saver. With her own favorite blanket, and a chin-rest in any direction, she is ready for solid comfort, protected from drafts on all sides. Besides, her bed is mostly flea-proof.

If she gets a restless urge, she can move her bed all by herself, as Ci-Ci, pictured here, could tell you. Her only problem was that people kept grabbing up her bed every time she vacated it, until a wide strip of adhesive tape was placed on the inner tube, reading, "Ci-Ci's Bed—Do Not Disturb."

—MYRLE CHANDLER

Tradition tells us that philodendrons are strictly house plants, but any local member of the California Association of Nurserymen will tell you otherwise. Here in Southern California gardeners can enjoy these richly textured foliage plants both in their homes and in their gardens.

We can't recommend them for general garden use, but for protected patios and against shaded walls, they make a dramatic showing. They are excellent for the lanai room, also, extending the garden right into the house by their use.

Philodendrons are loosely grouped in two sections, one of which contains the trailing or climbing varieties, while the other includes those tree-like specimens with giant leaves, which make such an impressive display.

One of the best for dramatic effects is the Tree

Philodendron, a lush tropical with deeply-lobed leaves two to three feet long.

When you grow philodendrons in a pot or container—especially indoors—they require frequent attention. Water is the main problem, usually a lack of it. Make sure the root ball is soaked through when you water. Feed indoor philodendrons every month with a complete food and repot them with some new soil every year or so.

The Mystery of a Cat's IQ

Double Grand Champion Di Napoli's Serenade in Blue and kitten are Siamese owned by Marge Naples of Long Beach.

By Eleanor Avery Price

held in the Southland and the first cat show ever presented in Santa Monica Civic Auditorium on Jan. 12 and 13. Cats are at their best in winter, and a top-quality exhibit is anticipated.

It is easy to see that cats are independent, cunning, curious, and possess a charming lunacy. It is not so easy to determine a cat's intelligence. True, nearly all can gauge heights and widths, stroll among precious articles without breaking them, and walk through cacti without being scratched. And some have been taught or teach themselves to do an amazing number of tricks.

But for every cat that can turn a tap there are thousands that cannot. And a cat does not cooperate in fancy mazes nor in other research tests. In fact, cats seldom perform at all unless it is to their advantage. As St. George Jackson Mivart, English scientist, wisely said, "We cannot, without becoming cats, perfectly understand the cat mind."

ONE THING we know for certain, all cats become adept at expressing themselves. A cat showing affection for another feline licks the other's face. When one cat wishes to join another in a pre-empted place such as a comfortable chair or sunny windowsill, the newcomer almost always licks the cat who was there first. Both may comment in a monosyllable or two. If the first occupant wishes to eject the newcomer, he will hiss or growl.

Cats, especially Siamese, enjoy talking to humans. They make themselves heard when they want to go out of the house or are hungry. Many talk uninterruptedly while waiting for a meal. When stroked by a human, they usually purr. When spoken to, they return the greeting with little throat noises.

Cats also "talk" by pantomime. They run back and forth from the meal-getter to the place their dish is supposed to be. They act out the charade of twining around the ankles which means, "Can't you see I'm starving?"

WHEN A CAT senses trouble, it can become very noisy. A number of cats have aroused their sleeping owners when they smelled smoke.

A deserted kitten is most audible in its desperate plea for friendship and food. A cat deserted even for a weekend in its own house doesn't give up its depression quietly. It shows its trauma eloquently before it returns to its usual affectionate manner.

Cats also express themselves with their tails, fur, eyes, ears.

JUST TO SET the record straight, the Weimaraner is MOST happy as an upland game dog. A typographical error in this column December 30 made it appear that the reverse was true.

His Kingdom's on a Horse

BILL HARMATZ is a complete contrast to the usual picture of a jockey. He has never been injured in a race, aside from a few bruises. And he doesn't have to maintain a starvation diet. During the course of a three-hour interview for this article, he consumed three bottles of soft drink, two pieces of cake and several cups of coffee with cream. All this between lunch and dinner.

"I guess since I don't have to worry about my diet, it makes life a lot more pleasant," he admits. "I just plain like riding." Asked what he believes he would have done had he not been so constructed as to be able to jockey horses, he quickly replies: "Drive race cars."

There's one thing he knows he would never be: a horse race bettor. "Toughest thing in the world is to pick a winner," he says.

When he's asked for "hot tips" he politely refuses comment. In years past he tried to be helpful, but "they got mad if they didn't win."

So now Harmatz simply tells 'em all: "If I could pick 'em, I wouldn't have to ride 'em."

Job Resume

You will not lack for help in your project. Although the employment office will not prepare a resume for you, it will advise. A pamphlet entitled "How to Do It" is published by the California State Employment Service, Sacramento, and is free upon request. Samples of resumes are included.

An excellent reference book, "Why and How to Prepare an Effective Job Resume," by Juvenal Londono Angel, is available at the public library as are city and telephone directories which are invaluable in verifying addresses and names that tend to drop out of memory during the years.

It's true the resume is only a glorified job application, but properly prepared and properly used, it is THE application. The one that gets the job.

They Amassed a Fortune in Art

By Vera Williams
Southland Magazine Book Editor

HOW TWO wealthy spinster sisters wandered into modern art on the ground floor and amassed a fabulous collection is told in "THE COLLECTORS, Dr. Claribel and Miss Etta Cone" by Barbara Pollack (Bobbs-Merrill, $5). Their collection, in a special wing at the Baltimore Museum of Art, attracts thousands of visitors every year.

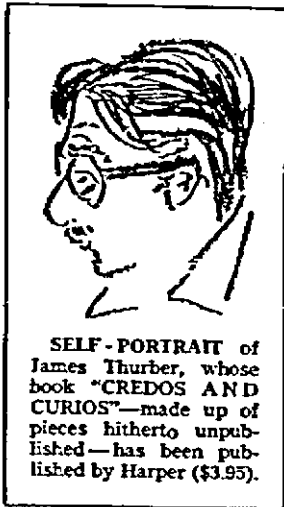

The sisters early became acquainted with the Stein family — Gertrude, Leo, Michael and Sarah—even before the Steins became part of the Paris art world and the art wave of the future. They became good friends with Matisse—and the Baltimore gallery has one of the best Matisse collections in the country.

They were not inspired collectors, one wonders exactly how much they knew about art, but they liked to travel, get acquainted with artists, and collect their wares. The interests paid off.

IF YOU are one of those who believe air power was the decisive force in World War II, you will want to get "THE WAR IN THE AIR" (Crown, $7.50) by U.S. Air Force Maj. Gene Gurney.

Fifteen-hundred of the best action photographs taken in the war by American, British, German, Japanese and Russian photographers illustrate a text that carries you from the development of the airplane starting after World War I to V-J Day.

Buildings and layout of the old Bean Ranch are shown in this photo taken by the author in 1918. Only the eucalyptus tree now remains as a reminder of past era.

By Loretta Berner

IF JOTHAM BIXBY were to ride down Bixby Road on one of his quarterly inspection tours today, he would stop in bewilderment to look at the land that went on sale for 80 cents an acre in 1866. Don Juan Temple received $20,000 in gold that year from Flint, Bixby & Co. for the entire Los Cerritos Rancho, including the Temple Hacienda, now the historic Casa de Rancho Los Cerritos. Today a single residential lot is for sale on California Ave. at an asking price of $26,000.

Used first for grazing, then for farming, the present day Bixby Knolls area of the old Rancho became known about 1906 as the "Sulphur Well Field," and was used as a watering spot for cattle and horses. As time passed, a barn and a blacksmith shop were built on the top of the hill and a house moved in. Lima beans became the principal crop with barley and alfalfa occupying a small portion of the area. It was known as the "Bean Ranch."

Today the old ranch has become the site of ultra modern stores and offices. Paved streets, schools and churches, fine homes complete with patios and swimming pools have spread over the area, until one finds only an occasional vacant lot. Hughes Junior High School and Longfellow Elementary School now stand along the route of the old Bixby Road that cut straight through the fields from Long Beach Blvd. to Cherry Ave., perpendicular to the front door of the George H. Bixby home, now 11 La Linda Dr. North of the ranch buildings, an old reservoir spread over part of what is now the "Devil's Hill" area, around

Myrtle Avenue and Cartagena Street. All that remains now of the old ranch house and farm buildings site is a eucalyptus tree standing in the side yard at 3930 California Ave.

THREE OTHER ranches were still a part of the old Cerritos Rancho in those years, located north of San Antonio Dr.: the Mitchell Ranch to the northeast, the Oscar King Ranch to the northwest, and the Howard King Ranch, north of the old Long Beach Blvd. bridge.

The Mitchell Ranch was operated in conjunction with the Bean Ranch for many years, the former being headquarters for both. All that remains of the Mitchell Ranch today is an old well site in the Maynards' back yard at 1501 Harwick St.

Colby Clarke, still living in Long Beach, was boss of the Mitchell Ranch, and his brother, Edwin Clarke, now living in Gardena, was the boss of the Bean Ranch. Both are now retired.

I remember Ed Clarke squatting on the front steps on early spring mornings to plan the day's work with his men, while the meadow lark's song wove itself in and out of the chorus of crowing roosters and clucking hens.

The ground had to be plowed and disked and harrowed in preparation for bean planting in May. By midsummer the beans were ready for cultivating and, in September, for cutting. In between the work with the beans, the barley that had been planted the previous November must be cut. Traditionally this cutting began the first Monday after July 4. Bean thrashing was done much the same as in any other part of the country, with one exception. The day's work did not begin until all traces of fog had vanished and the sun had shone long enough to dry out the vines. Then the barley field was plowed and the seed always planted beginning the Monday after Thanksgiving.

FROM THEN until spring, only seven or eight men were kept on the place. The winter months were spent repairing machinery and harness. Seed sorting took place in the bean shed, while the blacksmith shop hummed with horse-shoeing and parts repairing. And, interwoven through all this, were tall tales of far-off places and unusual experiences as rival storytellers spun their yarns. Iowa corn fields, Kansas wheat farms and southern cotton fields along with Oregon rodeos and Texas cattle country became mixed up in my mind with the land of Paul Bunyan and the exploits of Father Junipero Serra and Joaquin Murietta.

Fred King, the blacksmith, used to let me crank the blower on the forge in the shop when he wasn't too busy. As such times he was most careful of his language. But sometimes I used to sneak up on the overhead storage rack, where lying flat on my stomach I could see all that went on below. Everything would be fine until a streak of profanity would turn the air blue, and I would be unable to suppress a giggle. After a moment of dead silence would come the command "Go to the house and tell your mother she wants you."

The ranch house itself was typical of the times. The big dining room had benches flanking both sides of the long table. On the white oil-cloth the sugar bowl, spoon-holder and condiment cruets always shared a spot in the center with the toothpicks. A clean dish towel was thrown over these between meals, and if flies were bothersome, big sheets of "tanglefoot" fly-paper were spread carefully around.

The cook was boss of the ranch house, which was home for the men, and she served as nurse and advisor when called upon. However, about twice a year she descended on the bunk house and made all hands help with a general housecleaning. Each bed must be personally inspected by her and liberally anointed with "bed bug poison." Like a crusader whose duty has been done, she would return to her kitchen followed by her grumbling helpers, where they would gorge themselves on huge pieces of pie and cake.

HOBOS CAME and were fed. Some were yearly visitors, just as were the barn swallows who arrived regularly in the spring and departed just as regularly in the fall.

Sunnyside was a cemetery even then, dotted by wooden crosses and an occasional stone. And Signal Hill had truck gardens instead of oil wells down its sides. A house and a water tank sat on the very top. Cherry Hill was the "road test" for all new cars, the old model "T" generally out-performing the fancier makes. A hog ranch occupied the northwest corner of Cherry Ave. and Wardlow Rd.

About 1919, some Japanese farmers moved in about where Lewis Ave. and San Antonio Dr. are today and garden produce took the place of part of the bean field. Some Hindus also leased a parcel of land at about present day Carson St. and Cherry Ave. They were at familiar sight with their colorful turbans, until a fight resulted in a murder and the group left.

BROODINGLY, the old tree still towers over the hill. Its rustling leaves stir up memories of the smell of freshly plowed adobe, the dust of bean thrashing, the heavy aroma of flowering alfalfa, the pungent scent of hay drying in the sun. Of the noise of tractors and the crunch of plows, hammer meeting hot metal, and the unrestrained swearing of the blacksmith; of harnesses put on backwards and snipe hunts and men singing in the dusk; of the meadow lark's early morning call; of turkey buzzards circling overhead in the midday sun and of owls and bats flying silently through the night.

Of the mouth-watering smells of hearty cooking and the metallic clang of the dinner gong. Quiet conversations around the supper table while the cook stacked and washed the dishes and tidied up the big kitchen.

Of the boss, the cook, and the hands. Of a small girl who also cherished the memory of all these things.

Mardi Gras, New Orleans' famous celebration where all cares are forgotten, will be held on Feb. 26.

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

WHILE most cities are still groggy and trying to recover from the holiday hangover, New Orleans is furiously preparing to get a fresh one.

The old French city's world-famed Mardi Gras — gayest, most carefree celebration in the United States — is coming up Feb. 26.

Everyone there, quite naturally, gets in the act sooner or later. It's sooner — right now — for those trapped in the behind-the-scenes work.

For fathers (and mothers) of debutantes, costume designers and bead salesmen, the calendar moves ahead 10 days for the first of a series of 20-odd parades which get rolling Feb. 16.

AND 65 grand balls! The carnival season traditionally begins with a ball, and at each of these a debutante reigns as queen while other debutantes make up her court.

ANY PARENT with a debutante daughter attending one or two balls a night for seven weeks soon finds himself or herself in a tizzy that, to put it quite mildly, becomes maddening.

Last year, 8,000 maskers rode floats during the Mardi Gras parade season. Literally hundreds of thousands of other participants—many of them masked, naturally — jammed the streets. All of which gives a fair idea of what the costume designers are up against.

Strings of cheap beads are tossed from floats by mask-to help make the parades bolsterous, running give-and-take affairs, on their 40-block runs. The bead salesmen generally do an annual gross of around two-fifths of a million dollars filling these needs.

IF YOU PLAN to go—and Southern California is always well represented — you are urged not to rely on a New Orleans costume designer. Bring your own and, on top of that, make reservations for accommodations as early as possible. Information on lodging and dining may be obtained from the New Orleans Tourist Commission, 400 Royal St., New Orleans 16.

LON A. WYNKOOP, 2485 Long Beach Blvd. (NE 9-2476), has just returned from a five-week train tour of Mexico, covering much of the area south of Mexico including Oaxaca, Mitla, Tehuantepec, Merida, Campeche, Coatzacoacoas, Isle of Carmen and

Veracruz. He reports:

"Beautiful hotels are available at 23, 30 and 35 pesos. First class travel averages 1.4 cents per mile with pullman around $2.50 per night. Remember that the peso is 8 cents American.

"As an example of cost of meals I might mention the beautiful Hotel Emporio in Veracruz where my meals averaged 8½ pesos. Five dollars per day should allow for excellent living. If I can be of help to anyone I will be glad to give what information I can."

IN THE TRADE: William Stevens, formerly of Long Beach, has been named assistant manager of dining facilities at the Royal Mail Inn, a novel cottage-type resort on Hassel Island, just a three-minute boat ride from Charlotte Amalie, U. S. Virgin Islands. Celebrating a year of cruise service between Los Angeles Harbor and Acapulco, Mexico, the Natumex Line is offering a "Family Plan" for its Jan. 19 sailing — full fare (as low as $295) for one member of the family, half the round-trip fare for the other members. . . . Alitalia Airlines now is including a stop at the Canary Islands on its 17-day European economy ($648) tours. . . . National Airlines announces the issuance of personal air travel credit cards. No deposits are required, and holders may buy personal and business transportation for others as well as themselves. . . . Western Air Lines has inaugurated aircoach service to these additional midwest and Rocky Mountain area cities: Calgary, Canada; Great Falls, Helena, Butte and Billings, Mont.; Sheridan, Casper and Cheyenne, Wyo.; Idaho Falls and Pocatello, Idaho; and Rapid City, Pierre and Huron, S. D. . . . L. B. Maytag, Jr., president and chief executive officer of National Airlines, has been elected to the board of directors of the Air Transport Association of America.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH

DELA PLANE

"... prefer to go to Europe by boat but I don't know whether the weather would make it too rough at this time of year."

I'VE ONLY GONE to Europe once by sea—the SS Independence of American Export Lines. They make a southerly crossing via Cannes, Genoa and Naples which should be smooth. (It was for me.) Warmer, too. (It was swimming third day out.)

These are the luxury ships with 1,000 passengers and bon voyage all the way.

For their brochures, you write American Export Lines, 39 Broadway, New York City. Maybe make it attention Al Graham, I know him.

"... how do you find out about freighter trips. I hear they're the best."

THERE'S A GOOD guide book on this called "Ford's Freighters." Lists ALL of them and where they go. The problem with freighters is they usually carry only 12 passengers (by law) and are booked up most of the time.

Couple of real luxury freighter runs are made by American President Lines and Pacific Far East Lines—address either of them at San Francisco, Calif., for folders. They make some interesting off-beat stops.

"Are there any small ships running to Tahiti?"

I'VE SEEN foreign freighters, mainly British, loading copra there. I don't think they carried passengers. The major callers at Papeete and the island of Bora Bora are the Matson cruise ships. Matson Navigation Co., San Francisco, brings you the folders. Great, warm, sunny cruise. I've done it.

There will be a sailing cruise down there about June. Write Captain Mike Burke, Windjammer Cruises, Miami, Florida. Mike runs several schooners on cruises into the Caribbean. But he'll do the long one via Panama sometime this spring.

"If we stop over in Samoa en route to Australia, can you sail around the islands of the South Pacific?"

THERE ARE cargo schooners all over the South Pacific. But you have to sort of catch them when they are going to lesser islands—usually for shell or copra.

If you fly via Nadi airport in the Fiji, you can drive an hour over to Lautoka and catch one of Captain Trevor Withers' "Blue Lagoon" cruises.

He runs twice a week down to the primitive Yasawas. Four-day and two-day cruises. (Continued on Next Page)

Going Places

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

MOST North Americans would describe New Zealand as a funny old-fashioned little country. It was cast by fate in the middle of nowhere and seems to gallop determinedly after a world that is always a step ahead.

Australia, its nearest neighbor, is 1,400 miles away, and hardly at the center of things itself.

Its leading city, Auckland, boasts a magnificent scenic location astride two harbors, but it has about as much sophistication as Oklahoma City on a rainy Sunday 30 years ago—and as little amusement.

But if New Zealand is no land for the culture-and-fleshpot-oriented tourist, it is a veritable paradise for the nature lover. In an area no bigger than the British Isles, it harbors samples of most of the scenery of the world, and a few attractions that are uniquely its own.

THE COUNTRY is divided into North and South Islands, each quite different from the other. The South Island is spectacular, serrated by fjords and studded with ski-sloped Alps, vast glaciers and even volcanoes.

Here in the North, the land seems gentler and more familiar. On its rolling slopes, planted to a velvet green and made luminescent by lush southern light, millions of sheep graze. The landscape is relieved from its many subtle shades of green by splashes of yellow broom and equally yellow eucalyptus blossoms. Forests of towering pines, the tallest we have ever seen, fill the landscape for miles on end.

Fish are far from strangers to these islands. Thousand-pound sharks have been hauled from the Pacific and the Tasman Sea. Lake Taupo, near here in the center of the North Island, yields 500 tons of fish a year, among them 14-pound trout.

But Rotorua Lake may well be the only one in the world where you can catch a fish and boil it without taking it off your hook or moving a step.

Rotorua is in one of New Zealand's thermal regions. Beneath the ground and the lake, geysers boil through fissures or bubble up through the surface. The sands surrounding the chill lake are warm beneath the feet, and occasionally a spring seethes through within inches of the waves lapping the shore.

THROUGHOUT the area wraith-like clouds of steam blossom in the air. A local golf course has one hissing through a green. Along the stream which runs through the town, geysers and springs have left chunky mounds of limestone which ultimately break off in cakes from their own weight and tumble back into the water.

Rotorua is one of the few preserved centers of culture of the Maoris, the intelligent and artistic Polynesians who were the islands' original settlers. They have by now been largely absorbed into the white man's culture.

The Maoris frequently settled in thermal regions for the free heat, wash water and cooking facilities with which the springs provided them. Some still live the traditional communal life here, having built stone fences around the pools and steamy fissures, where they continue to cook and wash as they have for six centuries.

At nearby Whakarewarewa a palisaded Maori village has been reconstructed.

Possibly the most spectacular sight on the island is the glow-worm cave of Waitomo, a few miles west of Rotorua. Here, for some unknown reason, hundreds of thousands of glowworms have attached themselves to the ceiling of an underground grotto. A silent boat glide through the cathedral-like cave has the eerie quality of viewing a heavenly firmament while far under the hollow, steam-rent ground that gives the surface of New Zealand so much of its character.

The "Blue Lagoon" sleeps 12 and has wonderful food.

These are really wild Melanesian islands. And while the frizzy-haired natives won't eat you, I think you still LOOK tasty to them. Make a reservation in advance. The cruise is popular. For brochures: Captain Trevor Withers, Blue Lagoon Cruises, Lautoka, Vita Levu, Fiji.

"Would it be possible to get a group together and rent a boat to sail to places like Jamaica and Haiti?"

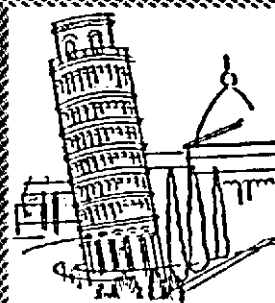

THAT WOULD be for Mike Burke in Miami who I just mentioned. I don't have his price list with me—you could write for it with descriptions of the boats. Several hundred a day. But that includes a sailing master and food. If you split it enough ways, it's reasonable.

"... where we can find out about fishing, boats and skindiving in Lower California?"

I HAD TO GO to Robert de Roos, the National Geographic writer, for this: Bob says the place to go is La Paz (by Trans Mar de Cortez airlines from Tia Juana). Later 60 miles south to Bahia de Palmas.

For boats: Bill Calahan.

Write him at Apartado 152, La Paz, Baja California, Mexico. Skindiving: Richard Adcock, Hotel Perla Building—also La Paz, etc. For boats, fishing, skindiving at Bahia de Palmas (good hotel): write John Mitre, Bahia de Palmas, Baja California, Mexico.

Zinnias: Two Are Tops for '63

By John Ronson

TINIEST zinnia of them all —only about six inches in height—shares All-America Selections top honors for 1963 with a husky relative that towers over it to 30 inches in height and bears blooms up to six inches in diameter.

The dwarf zinnia is Thumbelina, diminutive for Tom Thumb of the Hans Christian Andersen tales. It wins a gold medal, first such award since red Fire Chief petunia won the choice in 1950.

Many zinnia colors are represented in the double flowers of 1½ inches diameter and the colors are very stable.

Thumbelina starts blooming when it is only three inches tall and brings a long season of color to edgings, borders, walks, driveways, window and porch boxes, rockeries and wall gardens, urns and pots for porch steps and patio. Arrangements of cut flowers in bowls, as is done with pansies, are effective.

Zinnia Firecracker, first true hybrid and a large-flowered plant, is AAS silver medal winner for 1963.

HUSKY COUSIN to Thumbelina and AAS silver medal winner is Firecracker zinnia. Blooms are bright, rich scarlet, borne on long stems in cactus-flower fashion—exhibition type flowers. The plant is resistant to mildew. Firecracker is best in border and foundation plantings and is excellent cutting material.

Plant these zinnias from seed and get best results without transplanting, although they may be reset if roots are not disturbed.

AAS selections for 1962 are still high in demand. They include scarlet dianthus Bravo, bicolored zinnia Old Mexico, purple ornamental basil Dark Opal, scarlet zinnia Red Man.

'Spud' That Climbs

By Walter Finch

IF YOU are looking for a "climbing potato," Dr. William D. Wainwright, 4704 Greenmeadow Road, Lakewood Village, is probably your man. He has loads of them, some already sprouted and awaiting planting.

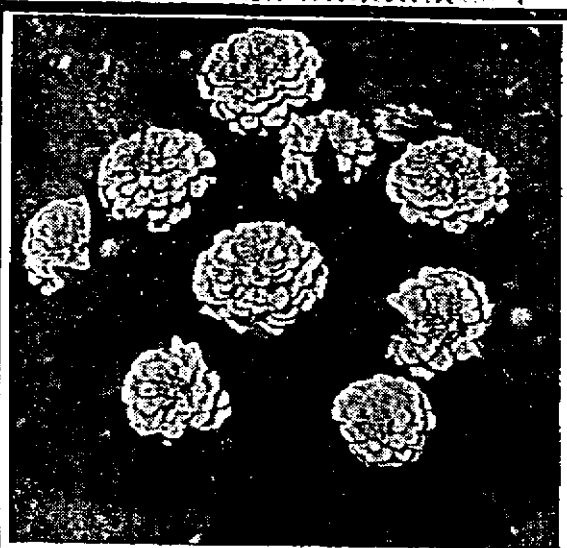

In case you don't know, the plant is better known as chayote and is a native of Peru. The fruit is pear-shaped, tastes something like and is cooked like summer squash. It grows in vine-like fashion.

Dr. Wainwright found a chayote fruit that had sprouted in a grocery store case. He took it home, planted it and the resulting plant spread over his yard, sending out runners 100 feet long and climbing an apricot tree. He harvested about 200 pounds of chayotes and says he'd like to give them away.

Thumbelina, smallest of the dwarf zinnias, received the AAS gold medal. It is compact and long bloomer.

NEW JAPANESE IRIS
Largest of all Irises
Gorgeous MARMIGO STRAIN with flowers 8 to 12 inches across

We offered these magnificent new Japanese Iris for the first time in 1958 and have sold out completely every year since. We now have sufficient stock available for distribution once more. You will receive the same stock from which we select a few each year for introduction, priced from $3.00 to $11.00 each. Honestly, the price we ask is ridiculously low for such high quality, and the only reason for this extraordinary offer is to acquaint more flower lovers with MARMIGO IRIS. Colors include gorgeous shades of BLUE, RED, PINK, PURPLE, WHITE and many fascinating color patterns unknown to other irises. The huge blossoms are carried gracefully on slender 3 to 4 foot stems above decorative arching foliage that is attractive at all times. And, best of all, these beauties come into flower after other iris bloom is past.

Give This Bird Time to Bloom

By Joe Littlefield

BIRD OF PARADISE is a reluctant bloomer in its earlier years and may show the same retarded effect when transplanted from container to garden plot in mature years—and therein lies a reason for many complaints about citrus, bougainvillias, hibiscus and pyracantha.

Container plants usually become root-bound, either while still in nurseries awaiting sale or on ornamental containers about the home. When they are set into the ground, the roots suddenly find room to expand and proceed to do so until a normal development is achieved. In the meantime a season of flower or berry bearing may be lost; in the case of citrus about two seasons.

In the long run, the patient gardener, recognizing this need for development, will receive a proper reward.

BIRD OF PARADISE, as commonly found in gallon-size containers at nurseries, has not yet reached the maturity needed for blooming, often requiring from 3 to 8 or 9 years after planting before flowers are put out.

One may obtain blooms a little sooner by giving the plant bone meal and putting a three-inch layer of manure around it about mid-March, then feeding it two or three times throughout summer with a balanced fertilizer.

Tub-grown plants that have flowered each year for some time may not bloom for a year or two after being planted in the ground or repotted into larger containers. That's because restricted roots again have to become re-established.

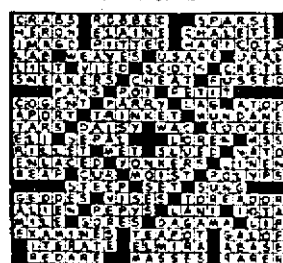

the base of the plant without checking to see whether there is an embryo flower spike developing within the thick portion of the stalk. The leaf stalk area is hollow. As a flower spike or new leaf starts to burst forth from within the hollow area, it breaks through the tight fold. Old leaves should be cut off just above this fold. Later, if the fold opens and there is no flower spike or new leaf within, the old stock may be cut close to main plant.

Wise gardeners buy bird of paradise in larger containers, plants in bloom or that have bloomed. They know they don't have to wait years before the plants flower.

Camellia Talk

Joe Littlefield, garden consultant, writer and lecturer, will discuss "Growing Camellias for Winter Color" at a meeting of Long Beach Garden Club at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in Linden Hall, 505 E. Broadway. Questions on gardening will be answered in a post-lecture period.

SOLUTION TO TODAY'S PUZZLE

Container-grown bird of paradise will bloom well but will be set back by transplanting into a new medium.

Tips on Gardening

Garden tips for the week... Many dormant trees—especially fruit trees—should be pruned now. Don't prune spring-flowering shrubs and trees until after their bloom, however.

Daphne, heather, azaleas and camellias are all to be found in bloom now and may be planted for quick color.

Peach trees should be sprayed to prevent leaf curl later on.

Snails and slugs love the cool weather. Scatter snail pellets to keep their populations from building up.

Plant roses and all other deciduous trees and shrubs now.

Prima Donnas

Flowering trees and shrubs are prima donnas of the spring garden. Such beauties as the saucer magnolia, Forsythia, flowering quince, flowering crabapple and dogwood are the true symbols of spring and should be planted by all gardeners who wish to emphasize the change of seasons.

These are all available for planting now during the bare-root season.

Blooms Early

Mr. Sam, named in honor of the late speaker of the House of Representatives, Sam Rayburn, is a bright yellow marigold that is among W. Atlee Burpee Co. seed developments for 1963. Mr. Sam blooms in early midsummer.

By Dorothy Jonson

We used to think of borers only in connection with peach trees, but these pests seem to have widened their range of activities to include almost every variety of shade and fruit tree. I cannot over-stress the importance of doing everything you can to control the borer menace.

Just as soon as we get a touch of cold weather, most borer species will go down into the soil at the base of the tree to hibernate for the winter and they will go through their entire life cycle. So that will be the time to use a borer solution... one containing either in the form of ethylene dichloride... by diluting and pouring it into the soil around the tree. Have your tree well watered and then the ether fumes in the borer solution will spread underground, destroying the borer larvae without injury to the tree. Thus you prevent the borer larvae from ascending the galleries and killing the tree next spring.

You Ask, We Answer

By Haskin

Q. What is the average cost per day for a person to tour the U. S. by automobile? L. K.

A. The cost depends to some extent on whether the person travels alone or as a member of a group. For two people traveling together, the American Automobile Association recently estimated the average cost as $15.50 per person per day, or $108.50 per person per week. This is broken down as follows: meals and snacks for two, $15.50 per day; lodging, $11; gas and oil, $7; tips and miscellaneous, $2.50. The estimate for lodging may be high or low, depending on the season and the type of accommodations.

Q. Where was the zero symbol (0) first used? N. E.

A. The cipher, symbol for zero, was introduced by the Babylonians about 500 B.C. After some centuries it became part of the Indian system of notation, which reached the West through the Arabs as the Arabic number system. Our words cipher and zero come from the Arabic word sifr, the Arabian translation of the Hindu word sunya, meaning void or empty. At first the zero symbol was simply a marker to indicate an empty position in number notation. The concept of using zero as a number was introduced by the Hindus and the Chinese at about the same time, in the sixth century.

Q. Who first made flat record discs? R. T.

A. Emile Berliner (1851-1929), a German-born American inventor obtained a patent in 1887 on a gramophone playing a flat disc.

With her children and servants she followed her husband to the war-torn New World where she viewed and participated in the great battles including the debacle at Saratoga where she cared for the wounded in a cellar.

She captivated both sides, became a friend of Thomas Jefferson and entertained Boston society while her husband commanded the hated German "greencloaks."

A richly detailed and factual story of this remarkable woman is told by historical writer Louise Hall Tharp in "THE BARONESS AND THE GENERAL" (Little, Brown, $6.50).

The life of Kit Carson was,

In essence, the story of the opening of the American west and like that great historical adventure the facts have been distorted by fiction and pure fancy.

Author M. Morgan Ester-green sets the record and the man straight in "KIT CARSON—A Portrait of Courage" (University of Oklahoma Press, $3.95).

Using unpublished materials including interviews and correspondence with Kit's family and friends this book reveals Carson—father of seven, Indian fighter, scout, explorer, trader, general, Pony Express rider—as bigger in life than he was in legend.

ANOTHER attempt to determine accurately what happened before, during and after the massacre of the 7th

Cavalry on the Little Big Horn in 1876 appears in "CUSTER AND THE GREAT CONTROVERSY: The Origin and Development of a Legend," by Robert M. Utley (Westernlore, $6.75).

Utley, a ranger-historian at the Custer Battlefield National Monument in Montana, comes closer than most Custerphiles. This book deals less with the battle itself than how the controversy developed, created by two distinct camps—the Custer idolators and the Custer haters.

PRINCE Bernhard's career as a businessman, sportsman, traveler, daredevil, devoted husband and father is detailed by Alden Hatch in "BERNHARD, PRINCE OF THE NETHERLANDS" (Doubleday, $4.95).

IN MODEST type on its elegant menu, The Tenderloin restaurant, 4363 Atlantic Ave., offers this quotation from Homer: "Always to excel and be superior to others."

Those words explain perfectly the goals of owner Rex Welch and his brother Bill, manager of The Tenderloin. Thanks to careful, thoughtful planning, tremendous culinary skill and beautiful surroundings, this restaurant is definitely superior to others in two very important departments: Quality of beef and customer satisfaction.

For years Long Beach epicures bemoaned the fact that this community did not have a restaurant devoted to glorifying beef. It was for this reason that Rex Welch created The Tenderloin, offering marvelous, tender cuts of prime, aged eastern beef. Available are many varieties of prime rib, New York cuts and top sirloins, plus tenderloin steaks, considered by many to be the finest cut of all because of their small-grain texture and tenderness. This is also one of the costliest cuts when you consider that a whole tenderloin from a 1,000-pound steer weighs about seven pounds.

Also featured at The Tenderloin are Utah mountain trout, tenderloin of beef Stroganoff, wonderful Chateaubriands chicken curry and broiled Australian lobster tail, with prices starting at $3.50 for the complete dinner, including huge chilled salads, baked potatoes stuffed spectacularly with chopped bacon and melted butter, vegetable du jour and coffee. The superb service is by teams of highly trained waiters.

Closed Mondays, The Tenderloin is open for luncheon daily starting at 11:30 a.m. Dinners are served from 5 p.m. on.

TELEVISION LOG OF THE SUNDAY NEWS AND THE INDEPENDENT-PRESS-TELEGRAM

BERT'S EYE VIEW

New Oater 'Naked City of the West'

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

A serious young man is Chad Everett, a new cowboy on the video range.

Chad co-stars with Larry Ward, Jack Elam and Michael Greene in a western series, "The Dakotas," making its premiere 7:30 p.m. Monday on channel 7.

"Our series concentrates on telling a story rather than cross-country rides and expansive scenery.

"Our series is a 'Naked City of the West.'"

Chad maintains the quality of the series has been upgraded to meet what he labels the "drama intelligence" of the viewing audience.

TELEVISION, from the standpoint of drama, has made "college seniors" of almost all of the viewers. They demand quality now because they've seen everything else, according to Chad.

"You must tell a story in a way that does not play down to the drama intelligence of the TV audience," he said. "You can't insult that intelligence or you're out."

The new series, Chad claims, isn't going to insult anyone's intelligence.

"Our heavies don't wear black hats so you can recognize them as the villains," he said. "Our heavies have a point of view. Our good guys are sometimes the antagonists."

In the series, Chad has the role of good-guy Del Stark. To prepare himself for the role, Chad wrote a 75-page "autobiography" of the fictional character. The "autobiography" begins:

"I am Del Stark. I am four years old."

HE LEARNED, while taking a psychology course, that the area of memory generally begins when an individual is about four years old—most

Since he grew up, he has been on close terms with just about every thing that is wild—from spitting cobras to anteaters, gooney birds, porpoises, bats and moray eels, to name a few. He began his zoo career in 1926 and, from 1944 until just recently, was director of the Lincoln Park Zoo in Chicago. Now he's the director of the St. Louis Zoo.

"Zoo Parade" went off in 1957. Now Perkins is back with a new, different, and exciting (he hopes) unraveling of wild life mysteries—a half-hour color-film weekly series which NBC will carry each Sunday, starting today, (3:30 p.m., channel 4). The series is titled "Wild Kingdom."

WIGS

Throughout this month you may buy your wig directly from me at wholesale and save from $60.00 to $90.00.

Every January I make my wholesale prices available to the public for the one month and permit each individual woman to have a wig at exactly the same wholesale price that beauty salons and wig salons pay me during the rest of the year when they buy a dozen or more at a time.

My wigs are all one hundred percent pure European human hair of virgin cutting and are made by the proudest and most experienced wig makers in France and Germany. There are no better wigs anywhere at any price. They come unwet and wostyled ready to be fashioned to your own good taste by your own hair stylist.

Shop around first and then compare these prices: German or french in dark ash, strawberry, copper, Auburn, milk brown, dark brown, sable and black $38.90.
(The average retail price for these wigs is $150.00. You save $61.10)

Light platinum, regal platinum, silver beige and platinum beige $33.85. (The average retail price for these wigs is $165.00. You save $71.15.)

Champagne beige, salt & pepper and light ash $38.95. (The average retail price for these wigs is $190.00. You save $91.05.) All prices plus 4% California sales tax.

By definite appointment made by telephone you may select your wig in the privacy of my home in Bellflower, purchase the wig on the spot and take it right with you at the time. No waiting. Appointments available from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. 7 days a week during this special offering.

January is the only month of the year during which you can get a wig at wholesale so it is suggested that you not delay too long $38.90
— $33.85 — $38.95.

Q. Has Jane Russell quit making films? What is her deal with studio head Howard Hughes? — H. T. L., Eugene, Ore.

A. Jane is not particularly in demand as a film star but may do a picture in Spain later this year. In 1955 she signed a 20-year contract with Howard Hughes for $50,000 a year.

Q. Please answer this question: During the Cuban crisis when all the wives were sent home from Guantanamo, were there any women left on the base? — K. H., Jacksonville, Fla.

A. Ten Navy nurses.

Q. When President Kennedy's father was our ambassador to England in 1939, he had a code clerk in the American embassy named Tyler Kent. Recently I read in Germany that this man Kent was a leading Hitler spy. I have no recollection of Tyler Kent having ever been tried for treason in any U. S. court, and I understand he is now free in America. Can you supply any details to this hush-hush affair? — B. L., Westport, Conn.

A. Tyler Gatewood Kent and a British traitor, shop-keeper Anna Wolkoff, worked as a Nazi spy team in the early phase of World War II. Kent, a code and cipher clerk in our London embassy, turned over to his lover some 1,500 secret messages and reports, including copies of top-secret reports sent back to Washington by Kennedy. The U. S. was not in the war at that time. When the British arrested Kent, Ambassador Kennedy immediately waived the clerk's diplomatic immunity and insisted he be tried. Kent was then tried in secret at The Old Bailey and sentenced to seven years in jail. His paramour

Anna Wolkoff was sentenced to 10. Kent was released in September 1945 and returned to the U. S. Had this country been at war with Germany when Tyler performed his treachery, in all probability he would have been tried and executed.

Q. Is Judy Garland a barbiturates addict? — Louis Allen, Passaic, N. J.

A. No, but from time to time she has taken barbiturates. Her ex-husband Sid Luft charged in a divorce action that Judy's upsets "are due in part to the use of barbiturates."

Q. Where did Frank Sinatra get the scars on his neck? Was it in a Jersey gang war? — F. T., Louisville, Ky.

A. Sinatra, born in Hoboken, N. J., on December 12, 1915, was delivered by forceps, which scarred the left side of his neck permanently.

Q. Is it true that Mao Tse-tung hates Chiang Kai-shek because one of Chiang's generals strangled Mao's first wife? — William Maulding, Wilmington, Del.

A. That is reportedly one reason.

Q. Who is Alain Robbe-Grillet? — Iona Von Hagen, Brooklyn, N. Y.

A. An outstanding and controversial French writer who wrote the film Last Year at Marienbad and has just finished a new film in Turkey, L'Immortelle.

Q. Why has the American press refused to publish the medical report on Winston Churchill's daughter Sarah? Is this because we are not to be told about her alcoholism? — T. F., Indianapolis, Ind.

A. Actually there is no report. Recently, however, her physician, Dr. Denis Leigh, who has been treating her for 18 months, wrote the British court, explaining: "Since her treatment here her behavior has changed considerably and she has remarried, a considerable gain to her. . . . The problem is that she becomes extremely excited, overactive, aggressive and almost manic after she has had drink. Her pattern is very stereotyped, for she usually abuses the police and demands to be charged in her maiden name. . . . She has been making such good progress, however, that I am quite hopeful for her ultimate recovery, although she is a somewhat difficult case."

Q. Why is Danny Kaye going to do a weekly TV show when he can make a fortune doing one TV spectacular per year? — D. L., Denver, Colo.

A. Kaye says, "I believe it's tougher to do one show a year than to do a weekly show."

The audience expects so very much if you do an occasional show. If you're on every week, the audience knows that while some programs will be very good, there will have to be others that will be just passable and even not so good. But they go along with you."

Q. What's happened to the great tennis star of the 1930s, Ellsworth Vines? — V. Francis, Rutland, Vt.

A. Vines, 51, switched to professional golf 20 years ago, has been working as a pro at the Tamarisk Country Club, Palm Springs, Calif. A few weeks ago he announced he was going into semiretirement, would spend much of his spare time in Naples, Fla., "fishing and getting to know my children, Edith, 13, and Ellsworth, Jr., 12." Says Vines, "After 20 years I'm a little tired of golf, golf talk, golfers, although I must say golfers as a group are a nicer, more democratic bunch than tennis players, at least those tennis players I used to compete against."

Q. Is it true Dinah Shore will marry a wealthy Palm Springs builder, Maurice Smith, when her divorce becomes final? — Georgette Hildebrand, Omaha, Neb.

A. Good possibility.

Q. How old is Hayley Mills' father, John? — P. Yorty, Oakland, Calif.

A. John Mills is 54, his famous daughter, 16.

Q. Was Fidel Castro ever an actor in Hollywood? — C. Ramirez, Miami, Fla.

A. About 20 years ago, Fidel and his brother were reportedly taken to Hollywood by their mother; for a little while they worked as extras. Bandleader Xavier Cugat claims to have known them in Hollywood.

FROM PANIC TO PEACE

THE NEW RED SKELTON

by LLOYD SHEARER

PALM SPRINGS, CALIF

FOR 20 YEARS RED SKELTON has been a legend in show business—and not an altogether happy one.

Until a few months ago he was pictured as a sad and lonely clown, a tormented, bedeviled man, a great and neurotic talent given to phobias, insomnia, periodic bouts with the grape and his beautiful second wife of 17 years, the former Georgia Davis.

He was portrayed as a moody, intense Pagliacci who viewed those around him with distrust and suspicion.

Stories of his quirks and irrational behavior—supposedly he refused to talk over the telephone, chewed 50 cigars a day, insisted upon wearing maroon ties—his childish hates and pet peeves were written up in publications the world over.

It was said, for example, that if Red got angry at one of his writers, he would refuse to sign the writer's paycheck, make him wait for it indefinitely. At one point CBS was compelled to place a Skelton writer under contract to the network to assure a continuity of scripts, because the scribe refused to work directly for Skelton.

At another point a prominent CBS official was known as the "Vice-President in charge of Red Skelton." His assignment: "Keep Skelton happy."

For years Red's emotional agonies were characterized as adolescent, his insecurity as perennial, his friendships as temporary. When over a period of months he successively fired his attorney, business manager, press agent and personal adviser, it was rumored that his subsequent resentment and brooding had brought him to the breaking point.

Suicide seemed certain— and imminent

Two years ago one shrewd veteran Hollywood observer told me, "Every morning I pick up the paper, I expect to read about Red Skelton's suicide." Another former Skelton employee told me: "This man has so much hostility within him—all with good reason—but no way of releasing it. He's going to blow his top."

Supposedly Red Skelton's personal and professional demise was imminent.

Today all this propaganda has suddenly evaporated, and the problem child of 48 or 55—Skelton doesn't know exactly how old he is—is no more.

When one inquires at CBS how Red Skelton is doing, one finds that the hand-wringing has given way to applause, that this stand-up comedian who has lasted longer in TV than any of his colleagues is described as "The New Red Skelton, the finest, nicest, most warmhearted character in show business."

In Palm Springs where Skelton lives with his wife and daughter Valentina, 16, in a new $160,000 house on the grounds of the Tamarisk Country Club, I asked several of Red's neighbors and club members what they thought of him.

Skelton clowns beside the pool of his new $160,000 Palm Springs home. Paintings were done by the comedian himself.

A rival comedian, not particularly noted for his generosity, said, "Red has finally found peace—with himself and with the world."

A music publisher told me, "He has the soul of an artist and the kindness of a saint. Do you know that he is probably the only man in the country who gives thousands of dollars away to charity each year without taking it as an income tax deduction?"

Later when I asked Red if that statement was true, he confided that in the past 20 years he'd donated about $1,000,000 in charity without deducting it.

"I've never mentioned it to any reporter before," he said, "and there's no point in mentioning it, because the whole subject of money bugs me. I'm sure you've read about how I'm supposed to be distrustful and suspicious, because people have taken me to the cleaners."

"The truth is that they hate, not because I'm suspicious but because I'm trusting, maybe too trusting. A few years ago after 40 years in this business, I woke up one morning, and I found I was broke. Not completely broke. I'll never be that, because I've got a God-given talent to entertain and make people laugh, and I guess I can always make a living. But the people I'd associated with, who were supposedly looking after my affairs, you just wouldn't believe it what they did to me.

$1,000,000 worth of insurance,
just in case

"I found out," Red continued, "that before they shipped me off to the hospital to be operated on for a herniated diaphragm, they insured me for a million bucks, just in case I was knocked off. And my son Richard—even before he died of leukemia, they took his insurance policies and borrowed money."

"When I came out to California in 1937 or 1938, I'd never had a business manager in my life, but I'd done pretty well. I had $29,000. Four days after I got my first business manager, I lost it. The guy was great. He showed me all the things I was doing wrong, and he wound up doing right."

"I'll tell you what business managers do—not all of them, but some of them in the Hollywood group. Whenever a business manager walks up to you and says, 'You've had a great year, a sensational year, but we can't pay the tax yet,' I'll tell you what they've done. I knew a guy who used to manage about nine stars and pay their income tax, and of course he had power of attorney. He would have 'em sign checks for the tax, which came to about $2,000,000. Then he'd ask the government for an extension, maybe for six months, maybe for a year. He'd deposit the $2,000,000 in various banks, collect the interest for himself, then eventually pay the government."

"In addition to this he takes 10 per cent for management fees and 10 per cent for accountancy fees. And he gets a cut on all the purchases. I knew this all along—that I was being taken. But if you're an entertainer, you entertain; you don't have too much time to check the books. When eventually you do, the guy who's checking for you, he gets bought off. He comes to you and says, 'A lot of this stuff doesn't add up. But let's not fire your man yet, let's wait awhile. So you wait until he takes his cut.'"

Skelton estimates that in 30 years he's lost close to $10,000,000 by not managing his own affairs.

"And what these business managers did to my personal life! They make trouble. They confuse you. They divide your family. Like they used to come to me and say, 'You're got to stop spending so much money.' And I'd say, 'Who's spending?—not me.' They'd say, 'Of course, not you. It's Georgia, she's spending dough like it was water.' Then they'd go to Georgia and say, 'Listen, you've got to keep dressed in the highest style. After all, you're Mrs. Red Skelton. You're out in the public eye.' And then they'd spread divorce stories. They believe in divide and conquer.

"Georgia and I—we've been married for 17 years, and we've stuck it out. Why? Because we love each other. She's a great inspiration for me. She's taught me a lot of things—how to meet people and not to just be a clown all the time when I'm out—and to find responsibilities in life."

Out of suffering came understanding

According to Red, his wife and his late son, who died in 1958, have been the two most beneficial influences in his life.

Of his boy, he says, "He made me understand about pain and to feel for people who were suffering, but also to enjoy the happiness around us. People say, 'Merry Christmas' during one week of the year. I go around saying, 'Merry Day.' For years I lived to learn—now I'm learning to live."

"It seems to me that ever since we moved to Palm Springs—me and little Red [his wife] and Valentina—things have straightened out. I've got a new group of associates, talented and honest men. We share a mutual respect. I've learned to understand myself and my behavior. I've taken time to look into my childhood and not run away from things I previously blocked out.

"I try to know why I have certain quirks. Like I won't get into a bathtub filled with water. I have to get in first and let the water come in on me. And the water has to be a certain temperature. It takes me an hour to get into my pool, which is heated to 82 degrees. Why? Because when I was a little kid my relatives threw me into a gravel pit and tried to drown me. So I still have a fear of water. That's why when I'm working, I wear a dogtag around my neck which says that in case I faint, no one is to throw any cold water on me, or I'll just go into another faint.

"Another quirk I have—about not smoking. The reason I don't smoke is I have such a great fear of fire. When I was a baby in my crib back in Vincennes, Ind., my father's half-brother burned down our grocery store. He lit a gasoline coil drum and it blew through the house, and they ran in and rescued me. Today when anyone lights a match, I instinctively back away from them, and that's why I won't light a cigar.

"The main reason I carry a cigar is that when I started off in show business, I used to work as a tramp and use a corocob pipe. When I moved into burlesque,

I used a rubber cigar. One day a guy said to me, 'Why don't you use a real cigar? You don't need that rubber thing flapping all over your face.' So I went out and got a real cigar, and after the very next show, a guy in the audience, Eddie Nelson, came up to me and said would I like to go into vaudeville with him at $250 a week. So I've always felt that if I have a cigar with me, I attract money.

"Another quirk I'm famous for—not talking on telephones. I talk on telephones but not very much. It's just that I like to look into people's eyes when I'm talking to them. I like to test their sincerity, and you can't do that on the phone."

The authority on Red Skelton, both old and new versions, is his wife, the former Georgia Maureen Davis. A tall, freckled, gracious young woman, "Little Red," as she's known, regards her husband as "one of the world's great geniuses . . . a good, good man—a man who wants only to make others laugh."

Her entire life is so wrapped up in the comedian, she is so completely devoted to the man, that she lacks any objectivity in describing him. "Years ago," she'll admit, "he was a little difficult to live with. What man of genius isn't? Now that we're rid of the stooges who tried to separate us, everything is wonderful.

Quiet life in the desert: no nightclubs, no parties

"Down here in the desert, we live a simple life. No nightclubs, no parties. We generally get up and go to bed with the sun. When Red finishes a TV show in Hollywood, I see to it that he rests for the next two days, does absolutely nothing, because when he works, he gives all his talent, every bit of energy he's stored up.

"Big Red has never been in better condition since I've known him. He's gotten his weight down from 230 to 190. He sleeps well. His company, Van Bernard, which encompasses all of his activities, is doing extremely well. I'm telling you, we're out of the woods and at peace."

The Skeltons not only look and talk alike, they think alike. Constantly with them, for example, is the memory of their son Richard. They seem to think of the little boy simultaneously. After he passed away four years ago, Red erected a little shrine in the hall next to Richard's room. The boy's toys and clothes were kept just as he had left them. Then Red got sick and went to the hospital. "And when I came home, the shrine was gone. And I asked Little Red why. And she said, 'Well, I think it's about time to take it down because it's beginning to depress our friends and people who come around.'"

"But you know one thing?" Red continues. "It's funny how we came to buy this house in Palm Springs. We walked out on the golf course, we were talking. Then we both stopped and looked ahead, and little Ritchie seemed to be out there on the grass, playing and smiling, we had the feeling he was there, just invisible, that's all. And even now we will look out across the grass and see him. He's with us always. And we feel that's why we're here, that he wants us to be close to him."

"People tell me we shouldn't have reverence for the dead, too much of an obsession. But Moses and Christ were pretty great people, and everyone remembers them for the good they did; so I remember my son the same way, and so does Little Red."

In the autumn of his life Richard "Red" Bernard Skelton has become a pious and philosophical man, a clown with a great soul.

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

DESTRUCTION DEALERS. Cuban saboteurs seized in New York and terrorists who blew up Venezuelan oil fields are graduates of the same exclusive finishing school: the Castro School of Sabotage in Cuba. The student body is recruited throughout Latin America. As many as 3,000 students have started classes in a single week. Most graduates return to their native countries to await orders.

MOVIE ADMISSIONS. Motion picture admission prices have reached an all-time high according to the latest Department of Labor statistics. Biggest jump, approximately 25%, has been in the price of children's tickets.

LIQUOR PRIVILEGES. The new Congress can expect a drive to abolish the privilege overseas travelers now enjoy of bringing one gallon of liquor, duty-free, into this country. Behind the campaign lies the National Alcoholic Beverage Control Association, which speaks for the state liquor control commissions.

NIGHT WORK. Car owners have been complaining for years about the inconvenience of getting their vehicles serviced at agencies during the day. Result: Manufacturers have talked dealers into offering night service. Chevrolet, for example, has persuaded more than 600 car dealers throughout the country to offer their customers night service.

FACT OF LIFE. The U.S. Post Office handles 68,000,000,000 pieces of mail per year, half the world's total.

SWISS COMPLAINT. Switzerland, with a population of 5,500,000, has 650,000 foreign workers, 450,000 of them Italian. Because of Switzerland's chronic manpower shortage in a boom economy, Swiss immigration authorities have permitted so-called "Italian tourists" to enter the Swiss labor market en masse. But now Italians, mostly from southern Italy, have become so numerous that the Swiss find them a threat to national identity.

FILM CLASSIFICATION. Unless the motion picture industry voluntarily provides parents with advisory film classifications, five Catholic bishops have vowed to support legislation which will make it mandatory. The bishops, headed by Archbishop John Joseph Krol of Philadelphia, have expressed special concern over "the increased screening of questionable foreign and independent films in neighborhood and family-trade theaters."

DRUGS AND PREGNANCY. Scientists have reached the conclusion that during early pregnancy women should avoid taking even the commonest drugs. Reason: Little is known about the possible effects of most drugs on human embryos.

NEW U.S. RADIO NETWORK. To keep in touch with our nuclear Polaris submarines throughout the world, the Navy is constructing one of the largest radio towers in Western Australia. From 1,200-ft. masts at Northwest Cape, 700 miles north of Perth, the station will beam, on low frequencies, instructions to our growing fleet of Polaris subs in the Indian Ocean. The radio station will cost $70,000,000 and may be the forerunner of a supply base in the Western Pacific. Heretofore our supply and tender base was in Guam; it was pretty much leveled by a hurricane a few months ago.

BRITISH NAVY. Once proud ruler of the seas, Great Britain's navy is diminishing both in size and prestige. Since the end of World War II, Britain has built no aircraft carriers, battleships or cruisers.

TWO-WAY STRETCH. Belt manufacturers are toying with the idea of distributing exercise booklets with each elastic belt produced. They recommend that men's belts be used not only to hold up trousers but for early-morning setting-up exercises.

Actor Dan Duryea demonstrates exercises with elastic belt.

COMMUNITY PROPERTY. Originally intended to protect wives discarded by their husbands, the community property law these days has become a boon to husbands. In Hollywood, George Montgomery, ex-husband of Dinah Shore, is reputedly $1,500,000 richer since Dinah broke the marital ties. If screen star Doris Day proceeds to divorce Marty Melcher, these two will reportedly divide $15,000,000 acquired in their marriage. One reason Sid Luft is fighting Judy Garland's divorce is that he insists she's a resident of California, not Nevada, that they have at least a million to divide in community property, most of it Judy's profit percentages in various films. Sometimes it pays to marry a screen actress.

If Doris Day and husband part, they split $15,000,000.

GREEK TRAGEDY. John Nasos, a Greek naval officer, ordered a cream puff in a pastry shop in Piraeus. Vasiliki Firou, young daughter of the proprietor, waited on him. John was so struck by her beauty that day after day he returned to the pastry shop just to look at her. Vasiliki's father explained that his daughter was too young to marry. Three months later John returned to the pastry shop in anguish, pleaded with Mr. Firou. "I just can't forget your daughter. I've got to marry her. If not, something terrible will happen." He tried to approach Vasiliki on her way to school, was arrested. A few weeks ago he again appeared at the pastry shop in Piraeus. This time Vasiliki was there with her mother and 15-year-old brother. John walked up to the love of his life, pulled a revolver from his pocket and fired five times. Vasiliki's brother threw himself on the intruder. John knocked him down, reloaded the revolver, shot the brother. Neither Vasiliki nor her brother were killed, just paralyzed for life from the waist down.

Stretching across the nation from Savannah, Georgia to San Diego is U.S. 80, the most travelled, all-weather highway of its kind in America. On its way to the West coast, Route 80 courses through the beautiful, sun-bathed Southwest where one of the greatest land booms in our country's history is taking place. Cities like El Paso, Tucson, Phoenix lie astride this great highway. And smaller cities like Las Cruces and Deming, New Mexico—also on Rt. 80—are beginning an astonishing growth. Nowhere—not even in Tucson and Phoenix—is there the brilliant sunshine and healthy climate that blesses southwest New Mexico. And, whereas, the price of a rich piece of land near the larger cities is beyond the means of most of us, you can still buy a Ranchette in the Deming region for only pennies a day.

win the Olympics

by HUBERT H. HUMPHREY

U. S. Senator from Minnesota

WASHINGTON, D.C.

THE RUSSIANS are feverishly building toward what they expect to be a major cold war victory in 1964: a massive triumph in the Tokyo Olympics. They plan not only to beat us, but to do it decisively, while the whole world watches.

You may ask what the Olympics have to do with international politics. Make no mistake about it, the relentless struggle between freedom and Communism embraces almost every level of life from spacemen to sprinters. Because the Russians understand this, they have converted the once-idealistic Olympic games into an ideological battlefield.

They sneer at the "Amerikanis" as a nation of softies and portray the United States as a "tired, decadent, declining power." Once they have crushed us in the coming Olympic battle, the Red propaganda drums will thunder out a world-wide tattoo, heralding the "new Soviet men and women" as "vile, unbeatable conquerors" in sports—or anything else.

Indeed, the USSR's massive Olympic preparations cannot be matched by any other country on earth. The Russian program is expected to produce 50,000,000 sportsmen by 1965, including 30,000 "Masters of Sport." The "Masters," of course, are amateurs in name only. The government provides them with everything—training, housing, transportation, food. They need worry about only one thing: finishing first! (The International Olympic Committee, while sounding off periodically against "state amateurs," has done nothing about them.)

Apathy and Squabbles

If Russia is at the top in Olympic preparation, the United States can only be described as part way to the bottom. Many countries on both sides of the Iron Curtain do their utmost to win Olympic honors. They provide heavy state financing or, as in Italy, use a national lottery to pay for the effort. But while foreign athletes get wholehearted support, their American counterparts are handicapped by a combination of national apathy and intramural squabbles.

The Amateur Athletic Union and the National Collegiate Athletic Association have been waging a cold war of their own over who should represent the nation's amateurs in world competition. One group even threatened to disqualify any athlete from the Olympics who had competed in a meet sponsored by the other. Also, many minor Olympic sports—from fencing to volleyball—are represented by small groups, loosely organized, haphazardly financed and attracting too few participants to develop top competitors.

Our country has a wonderful record in past Olympics, but time appears to be running out on us. We had to come from behind to win in 1956, and, no matter what scoring system you used, we showed up poorly in Rome in 1960. One widely used scoring method rated us third: behind Russia and Sweden.

Although we finished first in men's track and field, basketball and swimming, we gave up our crowns in rowing and weight lifting. We failed to pick up any points at all in canoeing, cycling and Greco-Roman wrestling, though points were given for ninth place in some events.

Since our inglorious showing in 1960, we have done little to remedy our weaknesses. Yet the Russians have made a national cause of improving their standing.

It is time we realized the deep issue at stake here, and it involves far more than whether or not we get our ears pinned back in Tokyo. I believe our greatness as a nation has arisen, in part at least, from the fact that we always play the game to win and that we don't take any defeat lying down. For when the day comes that we can shrug off a resounding defeat with indifference, a whole era in our history must be considered closed.

What must we do? Let's not forget that many a great champion has literally gotten up off the floor to win. Although we are still far from flattened, our Olympic trend is downward, and it must be reversed.

Let's remember, too, that we are the richest, greatest nation on earth. With the exception of Russia, we have the widest range of geography and climate for training men and women in all fields of sports. Our people also have more leisure time than those of any other advanced power.

To use these advantages, we must all work together to regain the ground we have lost in fitness and athletics. I urge that we start off 1963 by adopting the following national New Year's resolutions:

1 We should make a voluntary, all-out effort to step up the physical fitness level of our whole population. In your community, make sure the schools have a good physical fitness program carried out by qualified instructors using approved facilities. Then set a good example of physical fitness for your child, not by saying but by doing.

2 To insure that the athletes we send overseas are our best, we should set up a vast, nation-wide "Junior Olympics" competition, starting at the neighborhood level. Work with local civic groups to organize competition in your neighborhood; urge your mayor to set up an Olympic committee in your city; call upon your governor to establish a state committee.

3 We must interest young Americans in the seemingly "obscure" Olympic sports, which don't excite our sophisticated youngsters much but which pile up points in world competition. Write to the U.S. Olympic Committee, 57 Park Avenue, New York 16, N.Y., for literature on any sport you might be willing to promote.

4 As interest is aroused, we must see to it that facilities for these sports are adequate.

Here's how to get to the basic root of your constipation problem. Bring enough moisture to your lower colon every day. As soon as food wastes are normally moistened, you will enjoy daily elimination.

So do this to end your constipation worries: Take SERUTAN, the all-vegetable laxative aid, every day with plenty of water. SERUTAN provides the proper moisture, bulk and peristaltic action to help keep you regular. This is utterly different from forcing your system with chemical laxatives. Get SERUTAN at your drug-store today.

DO YOU TAKE VITAMINS AND STILL FEEL TIRED?

If you take vitamins yet still feel tired—you may need more than vitamins to restore your normal strength and energy. Your worn-out feeling may be due to iron-poor, Tired Blood.

Vitamins alone can't build up iron-poor blood. But GERITOL can! Because GERITOL contains 7 important vitamins and, in addition, supplies the therapeutic amount of iron needed to build iron-rich red blood. Just 2 GERITOL tablets, or 2 tablespoons of GERITOL liquid, contain twice the iron in a pound of calves' liver! In only one day,

GERITOL-iron is working in your bloodstream, carrying strength and energy to every part of your body!

Proved By Medical Tests: Patients diagnosed with iron-deficiency anemia, frequently were pale, nervous, irritable and easily tired. After patients took GERITOL daily, doctors reported definite clinical improvement.

So when you feel tired, check with your doctor, and if this is your problem, take fast-acting GERITOL every day. You must feel a noticeable difference in the first seven days... or money back from the maker.

Before Tokyo, a White House send-off

For instance, there isn't a single banked track for cycling in the country. And there is only one speed-skating rink (in Squaw Valley, Calif.), while Moscow alone has 32.

5 We must persuade our athletes to adopt Olympic rules and standards in their sports. In skating, for example, we race against one another instead of racing against the clock, Olympic-style. And the Olympic wrestling form is quite different from our collegiate style.

6 We should encourage our girls and young women to participate in sports. They have been taking a drubbing in the Olympics from Soviet women.

7 We need to change our basic attitude toward our athletes. So many of our star athletes turn pro at the height of their powers that we must send over relatively inexperienced competitors to each Olympics. When they are beaten, foreigners naturally conclude that our country's "best" have been defeated. Thus our Olympic teams assume global importance, but you would never know it from the way we treat them. When our teams go overseas, we virtually ignore them, and, except for a brief flurry of publicity, they are accorded the same treatment on their return. A little public appreciation might persuade the stars to keep their amateur standing and carry their country's banner on the field of honor.

8 Uncle Sam should do more to stimulate enthusiasm in the Olympics. The government could help conduct a nation-wide publicity campaign, could also help by picking up more of the tab for the international travel and expenses of the coaches and teams. Now, the State Department often doesn't even know who is on the teams, or where or when they are going. Although the decision as to who goes is strictly private—which is correct in a democratic society—we must not overlook the fact that foreigners view our athletes as official representatives of our country.

9 We must find ways to raise the funds necessary to provide adequate training and facilities for our international competitors. Your contribution to the U.S. Olympic Committee will help assure better teams.

10 The President's Council of Youth Fitness should be established on a permanent basis, and the National Defense Education law should be amended to provide matching grants-in-aid to the states for physical fitness programs. Urge your congressman to support these changes.

I have talked to President Kennedy about the Olympics' challenge, and he shares my concern. As a first step, he urged the NCAA and the AAU to settle their differences. We can also look forward to his greeting our athletes at the White House before they go to Tokyo. Win, lose or draw, they should also be given an enthusiastic reception upon their return—parades, banquets, awards.

We can win the next Olympics if we give it a real, old-fashioned American try. As A. O. Duer, secretary-treasurer of the NCAA, puts it: "The Olympic Games are second only to the space challenge as the major issue in the cold war."

YOUR IDEAS CAN HELP

As our first step toward meeting the Olympic challenge, perhaps a Foundation for Fitness should be established—to raise funds and promote fitness across the land, and to be dedicated to strengthening the well-being of youngsters and adults alike.

Let us know your reaction to this suggestion. Send your comments to: Foundation for Fitness Proposal, Parade Publications, Inc., 733 Third Avenue, New York 17, N.Y. Your response will be studied and turned over to suitable authorities.

Guides for a happy baby

BRINGING UP BABY: HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF FIVE

Certainly babies should have some leeway in setting their own patterns in the matter of feeding and sleeping the first few months. But as baby grows toward a more settled existence, he should be gently steered toward a reasonable schedule. The baby who is guided toward good habits early, is less likely to rebel at more exacting regulations later.

You can sweeten eatin' schedules by offering a goodly variety of good-tasting foods. Gerber offers over 50 pleasing, appe-teasing strained foods for your baby ... all prepared with the Gerber flair for preserving true-to-nature colors and flavors. Everything from fruits to vegetables, meats to dinners, juices to desserts. And each and every one is individually processed by specialists with special know-how in preserving the utmost in precious food values.

Carriage cues. (1) A bright balloon or pin-wheel, taped to the front of baby's carriage, will provide many happy looking moments. (2) A transistor radio, tuned sweet and low, will delight baby when he's awake... won't disturb him when he's a-snooze.

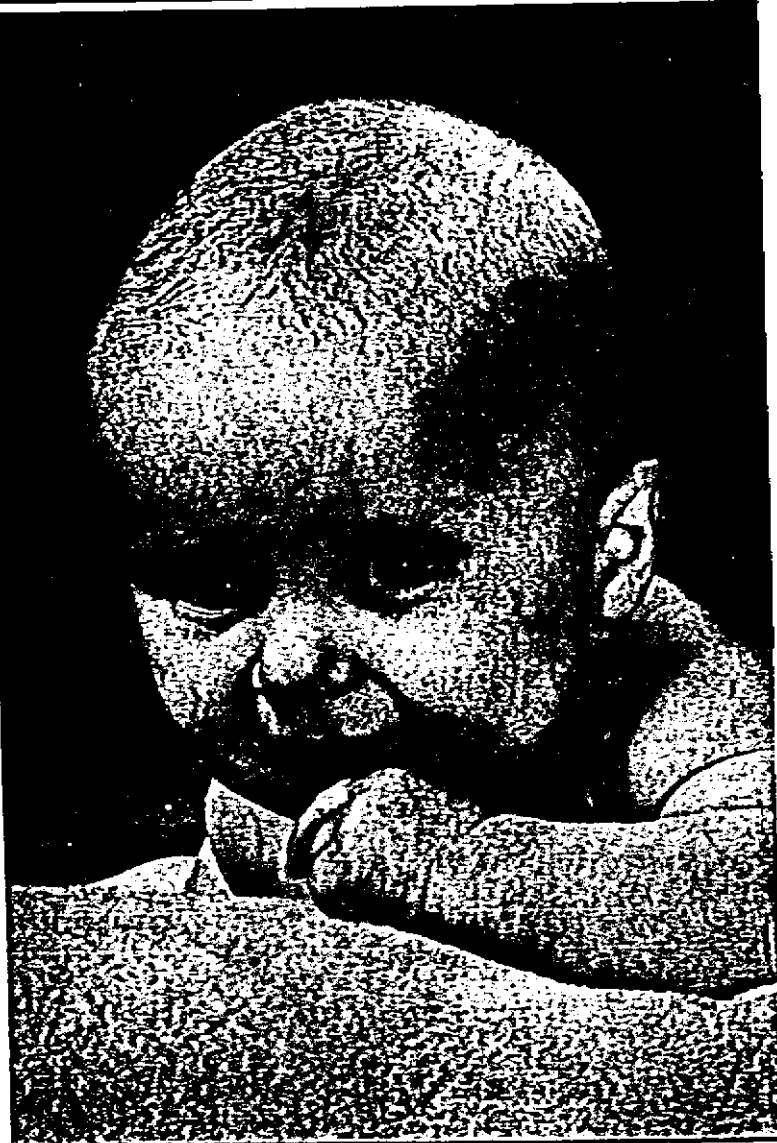

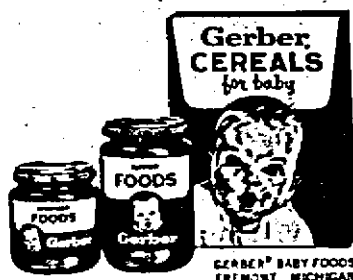

Toy trickery. (1) If baby gets take-apart, put-together toys before he's manually ready to use them, let him play with the individual parts, provided they're not small enough to swallow. (2) When you wash squeak toys, put a piece of adhesive tape over the squeak mechanism to prevent water damage.

High on the happy list of favorites for the little fellow on a full food schedule are combination dishes. (More ingredients, more flavor.) Gerber Strained and Junior High Meat Dinners are bound to win any mealtime popularity contest. That's because these flavorsome casserole dishes are savory with extra meat. (3 times as much as regular vegetable and meat combinations.) Garden-good vegetables and subtle seasoning are added to the meat for truly sprightly flavor. Nutritionally, they're a good source of protein, offer significant amounts of certain vitamins and minerals.

Important: Gerber prepares over 100 baby foods—infant formulas, cereals, strained and junior foods—to meet your baby's nutritional needs. We're proud to say:

"Babies are our business
... our only business!"®

Specialties for little sweethearts

Suggestions from
Mrs. Don Garber

There's no doubt that variety makes mealtimes more interesting. That goes for wee ones too. Take the baby who's just starting on cereal. Easiest way in the world to introduce him to the delights of different flavors: Gerber Cereal Sixes. This handy, 8-in-1 package contains small-size boxes of Rice Cereal, Barley, Mixed Cereal, High Protein Cereal and two Oatmeal. Each has its own delicate, pleasing flavor... all 6 have an exceptionally smooth texture. For baby's nutritional well-being, they're enriched with iron, calcium and important B-vitamins.

Cover story for lap-sitters or gada-bouts. Of course you want your baby to be as comfortable as possible at all times. Gerber Baby Pants are comfort (and protection) personified. They're made of soft-as-silk polyvinyl film that's waterproof, leak-proof, acid-proof. Downy nylon edging protects tender legs and waist... ample cut assures wiggle-room and grow-room.

Naturally, Gerber Baby Pants are machine washable... will stay soft through many, many sudgings. Medium, large, extra-large, in pull-on or snap-on styles. At supermarkets everywhere.

Toddler treats with nutritious overtones. Toddlers dote on snacks but the best are those with built-in nutrition and fun. Like Gerber Cookies for Toddlers. These crunchy, cinnamon-y flavor surprises have twice as much protein as most other cookies, plus B-vitamins in the icing. The animal shapes are absolutely adorable, and I can't think of a nicer, more nourishing way to teach your toddler animal names.

Noteworthy treat for teething: Gerber Teething Biscuits. Extra-hard and waffle-surfaced, they're designed to give your teething the biting experience he wants and needs. Gerber® Baby Foods, Fremont, Michigan.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Danny Davis, a 29-year-old native of Philadelphia who bears a striking resemblance to Yul Brynner, got his first big break in show business as a winner on Arthur Godfrey's Talent Scouts show in 1952. He later developed a night club act and appeared at a number of leading supper clubs throughout the country. Danny records for Warwick Records, and his first release, "The Egghead and I," hit the record shops recently. His second album, "The Close Shaves of Danny Davis," will be out soon. Here are some of Danny's favorite funnies:

my favorite jokes

by DANNY DAVIS

"Susan, darling," said the anxious young man, "will you marry me?" "No," she said, "but I will always admire your good taste."

The bright-eyed salesman bounced up the steps, rang the doorbell and was greeted by the man of the house. "Good morning, Sir," said the young man, cheerfully. "Want to buy a letter opener?"

"Buy one?" snorted the disgruntled husband. "I married one!"

Many a man who goes into politics with a bright future comes out with a dark past.

What this country needs is more slow readers and fewer fast talkers.

An elderly, foreign-born gentleman was proudly applying for his U.S. citizenship. He was doing very well until he was questioned about the American flag. "What is it," asked the judge, trying to elicit the correct answer, "that you always see flying over the courthouse?"

The old man thought and thought, then smiled brightly and exclaimed: "Pigeons!"

There would be many more geniuses in this world if people retained as much of what they read as of what they ate.

A woman visited a psychiatrist and pleaded: "You have to help my husband. He has delusions and thinks he's a horse."

After subjecting the patient to extensive tests, the psychiatrist said to the woman: "I think I can cure your husband, Madam, but it will cost a lot of money."

"Oh, money is no object," she quickly replied. "He just won the Kentucky Derby."

There's a new beatnik doll on the market. You wind it up and it doesn't work.

I saw a movie that was so bad—all the credits were under assumed names.

There's a new alarm clock for actors which is guaranteed to produce results. It doesn't ring—it applauds!

More people might live to a ripe old age if they weren't working so hard to provide for it.

I saw a hitch-hiker standing in the middle of the road with his thumb up to his nose. "You'll never get a ride that way," I told him.

"Who cares," he replied. "I'm on my lunch hour."

A woman applying for her driver's license was uneasy despite the simple questions. "And what is the white line in the middle of the road for, Madam?"

She thought it over for a moment, then blurted out: "Bicycles!"

Anecdote of the week

ON HER MOST RECENT VISIT to Paris, Jacqueline Kennedy enjoyed a chat with President Charles de Gaulle. "Do you know, General," said Mrs. Kennedy, whose maiden name was Bouvier, "that my family origins are French?" De Gaulle nodded, replied with a smile, "So are mine."
